THE "wild man" of Yolo and Colusa was again seen by a party of hunters in the foothills back of Dunnigan on the 2d instant. He made bold this time to confront the party and ask for some tobacco, which was given him. He refused to answer any questions, and when he received the tobacco started off into the brush.

GLASS WICKS FOR LAMPS.—Messrs Voubriel and Beck, of Hanau, have invented a patent form of lamp wick, made entirely of glass, the use of which they claim to be attended with very considerable advantages. It is chiefly intended for petroleum and spirit lamps. A series of experiments have been made with it at the instance of the Technisches Organ for Gwerke und Haushalting, and the report given in its columns is decidedly favorable. The flame clings closely to the wick, so that lighted lamps may be carried about without fear of their being extinguished by sudden draughts; moreover, no sparks are liberated from it. With an equal amount of this wick turned up, a much brighter and clearer light is obtained than where cotton ones were used. The smoking is greatly reduced, and at least ten per cent. of oil is saved. There is scarcely any waste of wick itself, and the troublesome trimming and cutting to which the lamp burners are accustomed is altogether needless, for no portion of it is carbonized. Used in spirit lamps, it greatly increases the heat of the flame, and finally, it can be produced and sold at a very cheap rate.—Boston Journal of Commerce.

THE report now comes that Russia objects to the annexation of Afghanistan by England. Possibly thereby hangs a tale of war.

CHALFANT & PARKER.

J. E. PARKER, P. A. CHALFANT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25.....1879

COL. TOM. TAYLOR, of Eureka, Nevada, and a mining man of judgment and much experience, has recently returned from an extended tour through Idado. His observations possess interest. The Yankee Fork country is covered with snow from September till the following July, so that prospectors have but a very brief season for advantageous operations. The ore is all of low grade, requiring the most extensive and economical machinery and processes to make it pay. There are neither mills in the district or roads by which they can be taken into it, consequently nothing to allure working men from paying jobs elsewhere. There have been no developments whatever in Yankee Fork to warrant any part of the exciting stories told in relation to the same. Nevertheless, it is considered a certainty that Yankee Fork in due time will become a grand mining district. Like the greater part of Idaho Territory, the work of prospecting it has scarcely been commenced.

IN his lecture before the New York Bullion Club, on the "Valuation of Mines," Prof. Raymond said that in the eternal average of chances and things every mine needs to have "new money" put in it to get any more money out every five years, meaning that at the expiration of such time the ore, no mattar how rich, runs out, or a "horse" comes in; also, that the Western miner is generally willing to sell his mine for double he takes out in any one year. Thus: Western Miner—One year's income from the mine $250,000. Will sell for $500,000, though the mine be valued at one or two millions, because he goes on the principle of getting out of the mine before the mine pegs out with him.

IT seems probable that the joint Senatorial District of San Francisco and San Mateo, will have to enjoy the luxury of a special election. The new Constitution provides that a man must have been naturalized at least three years before he is eligible to be a State Senator. Robert Desty, the Senator-elect from that district was naturalized in San Francisco this year, but he claims that he was originally naturalized in New York in 1848, and that his full name was Robert Daillebout d'Estimauville de Beau Mouchel, but he had since changed his name to Robert Desty, for short.

A REPORT is telegraphed that an attempt is on foot to get up a sort of reciprocity tariff treaty between France and Germany which shall result in shutting off American imports into those countries. The probable true inwardness of this story is that it is intended to bulldose the United States into the acceptance of Leon Chotteau's one-sided reciprocity treaty between this country and France.

MISS RYE, a noble English woman, has just made her thirty-second voyage across the Atlantic with a cargo of "wastrels," or street waifs—girls collected from the highways of London. These girls are taken to Canada and placed in respectable families, and in almost every instance have obtained comfortable homes and led virtuous lives. The work has been carried on for about ten years.

ONE cause for the great rise in iron is that during the past five years many of the furnaces had been permitted to go out, and the quantity of crude iron on hand was used up by the quiet construction of local roads, and by the sudden resumption of railroad building to an unprecedented extent, and largely in the completion of old lines, partially made or graded roads abandoned since 1873.

THE Workingmen of New York have formally indorsed John Kelly, the Tammany Chief, as their candidate for Governor. This is considered as a settler on Robinson, the Tilden candidate for the same position, and no less so on the chances of Uncle Sammy himself for the Presidential nomination.

NEVADA must look to her laurels. Colorado threatens to wrest from her the prestige of the greatest silver producing State in the Union. The last named State is on the eve of a mining rage, which will cause the prospecting of every hill and gulch within her borders.

THE Kansas Legislature is engaged in looking up the manner in which Senator Ingalls secured his election. It has been proven that several votes were purchased, the average price paid being about $500 per vote. This is said to be a great reduction on the Nevada price.

U. S. GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

A most important work, in its bearing upon the mining interests, is now being carried on by the Department of the Interior, in the United States Geological Survey. Clarence King is at the head of a party making an elaborate and exhaustive survey of the Comstock. Another branch of scientific members of the expedition is working in the gold fields of the foothill counties. The principal office is in San Francisco, under the surpervision of G. F. Becker, geologist in charge. In a letter under date of the 20th inst., the Professor says:

A main object of the United States Geological Survey is to advance the knowledge and practice of the mining arts by investigation and description of the occurrences of ores, of the methods employed in mining them, and of the processes by which they are treated. Every mining district will receive the attention of the survey; the information obtained and the results of special investigations will be so presented as to afford a trustworthy record of the mineral character of the country and of its resources, and of the methods of manipulation which have proved most suitable under varying local conditions. Each district will therefore receive the benefit, not only of the labors of the survey within its limits, but of the collective experience of the whole country.

In prosecuting this work the aid to be derived from the mining information contained in the newspapers is indispensable, and it is most desirable that files of all the newspapers containing information of this kind, which are published west of the Rocky Mountains, should be kept at the San Francisco office of the survey. The expense of subscribing to all such papers is, however, greater than the survey can afford, and you are therefore respectfully requested to co-operate in the work of the survey by placing this office on your free list.

THE INDEPENDENT will be regularly supplied as requested. It is probable that the several fields of operations by the different corps of the survey are for each season designated by the authorities at Washington, and by advice of the Chief, in pursuance of a regular plan. Nevertheless, it is not now out of the way for us to urge some of the claims that this region can put forth as being a most important and proper field of geological survey. Government appropriations for the purpose are immense, and where intelligently used, as we now believe them to be, can not fail to prove of a proportionate, practical benefit. It differs from the old State system, wherein our direct taxes were squandered in order that Whitney might endow eastern colleges, hunt bugs and name mountains. The present investigations will produce results of value to practical men, miners and capitalists.

The Inyo range is, we believe, one of the greatest geological studies on the face of the earth. It abounds in all of the principal metals, and is practically unprospected. The mines of Cerro Gordo, around which for a radius of ten miles new discoveries are constantly being made, have yielded from twelve to fifteen millions. The principal mine is opened by shaft for a depth of 900 feet, affording splendid opportunities for geological study, while investigations as to the experiences and methods of reducing the vast bodies of ore extracted would be equally valuable. The Belmont silver mines, of great value when the cost of working their ores become less through proper milling and transportation facilities, next adjoin Cerro Gordo on the southeast. Then comes Lee District, the ore of which is a counterpart of White Pine chlorides, and the mines are of the same character except as to elevation and mountainous surroundings. Further on, the great lead and silver regions of Darwin and Lookout need no special reference now, save that a railroad would render millions of tons of low grade ore profitable to mine and work, while scientific prospecting would develop more of the rich ore bodies upon which extravagance and mismanagement formerly run riot. Panamint, just springing into life again, shows on the top more rich ledges to the square mile than any other district on the Coast.

Foregoing touches upon only one class of our mineral resources. And we have only to add a word to the "powers that be" in control of this survey—that a region which has produced so much and which in the future will prove so immensely more important than the old districts on the other side of the Sierras, is the more entitled to their attention.

NOTWITHSTANDING the Indian troubles, the New York Sun still persists that the United States army is too large, but the War Department wants an appropriation for a big microscope so that it can see the army. The Sun's talk about the army being too large is sheer nonsense, when it is considered that there are not soldiers enough in it to fight one small tribe of Indians without hurrying and scurrying all the available troops from the four points of the compass to the scene of hostilities.

THE great "bed of solid gold" found in sounding the ocean outside of Coos bay, has turned out to be copper. It is always safe to copper beds of solid gold.

EATING POISON.

"Bread is the staff of life," says the time-worn quotation; recent investigations go to show that it could quite as truthfully read: "Bread has become the poison of life." This is true because of the alarming extent of the use of "baking powders," or rather of the alarming extent of the poisonous adulteration of the same. As this is a matter of interest to all persons, a little consideration of the subject will be in order. The San Francisco Chronicle gives at length the result of late inquiries on this subject by the New York Board of Health. It remarks:

"The baking-powder business of the United States is enormous. Many millions of dollars are invested in it, and the high price of pure material has led 'cheap baking powders' to be made of alum, as a substitute for some or all of the cream of tarter. Alum will make bread or buscuit look whiter, so that bakers can make an inferior flour salable by its use; and they use it in some places, calling it 'rock,' so that no inadvertent expression may let 'outsiders' know that alum is used. Alum is an injurious article to the human constitution in large quantities, or in small quantities often repeated. It is the small quantities, taken every meal, that do the mischief in bread."

In the Scientific American of last November appeared an article by an eminent chemist of New York, showing the presence of alum in large quantities in a number of baking powders. This article was copied into many newspapers, creating great excitement in every household where baking powder was used. The popular feeling grew so strong that in the early part of December, at a meeting of the Brooklyn Board of Health, on motion of President Crane, the Sanitary Superintendent was directed to procure samples of the various kinds of baking powders sold in Brooklyn, have them analyzed, and make a report thereon to the Board.

The following extract is all we can give of the report submitted. We commend it to careful attention:

Dr. Henry A. Mott, the well known chemist to the Government, in the course of his examination of baking powders offered to the Indian Department, was astonished to find out of forty-two samples, seventeen contained alum: His report is as follows:

DEAR SIR: In accordance with your request, I herewith embody the results of the analysis of baking powders procured during the past three months, in all of which alum was found as an ingredient:

"Donnolly & Co.'s" Premium Yeast Powder, San Francisco, contains alum; "Champagne," J. S. Taylor & Co., San Francisco, contains alum; "Dooley's," Dooley & Brother, New York, contains alum; "Patapsco," Smith, Hanway & Co., San Francisco, contains alum; "Gillett's," Gillett, McCulloch & Co., Chicago, contains alum; "King" contains alum; "Charm," Rohrer, Christian & Co., contains alum; "Andrew's Regal," C. New York, January 5, 1879.

NEWS from Santa Fé, New Mexico, to October 20, is to the effect that "the one hundred citizens who left Mesilla last Tuesday to relieve the settlements of Santa Barbara and Colorado from the savages returned. They found the bodies of ten Mexicans eight miles out. They had been killed by Indians, their wagons destroyed and teams captured. Four other dead Mexicans and the body of Wm. T. Jones, killed on the 13th, were found. They also found sundry other Mexican ranchmen and traders killed by Indians. Most of the hostiles have left for the Florida mountains and New Mexico. Major Morrow, who is pursuing them, intends to follow them across the boundary. The visitors have apparently been reinforced by Indians from old Mexico."

A CIVIL engineer and fifteen men in the employ of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé R. R. Co., were recently on the Gila near the San Carlos Agency, viewing a route for a road.

MAKES SOME CORRECTIONS.

The Lake District Times (nee Review) does us the honor to make some intelligent corrections, some of which we accept and some we don't. It says:

Referring to the visit of a well known ex-steamship Captain to Independence, THE INYO INDEPENDENT relates an incident in the Captain's career in which there are about as many mistakes as the average editor is ever guilty of. In the first place the Captain's name is not Edward Wartan but E. R. Warsaw; the ship that was burned while under his command was not the City of Peking, but the Japan.

So far, as regards the errors in the names, our neighbor is right; we made the same corrections in the issue following that of the original article. Reverting to that once more, we assure our seemingly well posted contem. that very trifling circumstances sometimes lead the best intentioned editors into error, but, let us hope, not intentional wrong doing. Maritimely speaking, our neighbor and ourselves are in the same boat. For instance, we were lead to make both of the aforesaid mistakes after the article was actually and correctly in type, all at the instance of a gentleman who, incidentally, mentioned the wrong names as the right ones, hence the miscorrections. We will presently point out the incident which we think has similarly mislead the Times editor in his over confident "corrections" in the following:

She [the Japan] was not burned at sea, but in the harbor of Yokohama; the fire did not originate from spontaneous combustion of Japan coal, but from other causes. The Captain was not exonerated; on the contrary, he was roundly censured for not having saved more of his Chinese passengers with the facilities at his command.

With all due deference, we submit that the Times editor is entirely "off" in these assertions of facts except, perhaps, that the Captain was censured for not saving more of his Chinese passengers, for it is certain a great many of them did go down with the ship. In the rest our corrector has doubtless got his facts mixed up with those attending the destruction of the equally costly steamship America, which splendid vessel was undoubtedly burned at her anchors in Yokohama harbor, and almost exactly a year prior to the burning of the Japan. This last named steamer was certainly not burned in Yokohama or any other harbor as so positively asserted by the Times, but full twenty miles off shore, and probably three times as far from her anchorage in Yokohama harbor—at least, we find it substantially so stated in our issue of December 26, 1874, nine days after the occurence of the disaster.

We just thought we'd mention this, thinking it barely possible the average Lake District editor can be guilty of about as many little mistakes as any inland naval authority we know of.

A SINGULAR ATTITUDE.

The New York World, recognized as the leading Democratic paper of that city, occupies an anomalous position in journalism. It is a consistent opponent of Mr. Tilden, and casts its influence also against Mr. John Kelly for Governor, and yet stoutly advocates the claims of Governor Robinson, the protégé of Mr. Tilden, for the same position. No one can doubt that the management of the World is honest. It is at the same time dignified and clean. It necessarily gives offence to a considerable portion of its party, and to incur its displeasure is the best proof of its independence. In opposing Tammany, it keeps itself in line. That association has broken away from party usage. In this reflection the World finds its consolation. What course it will pursue if Mr. Tilden gets the Presidential nomination of the Democratic party may readily be conjectured. Its present attitude toward him may be learned from a paragraph which we copy from its editorial columns. Says that journal:

No man can be the candidate of any party for the Presidency who has handicapped himself, or suffered himself to be handicapped, with such scandals as those of the cipher dispatches, the income tax suit, and the elevated railway squabble. No party ever did elect or ever will elect, a President on the platform of a personal cross-examination.

A TERRIBLE sentence has just been pronounced by a court-martial on Chas. A. Paybeya, General Service Clerk in the office of Adjutant General Wherrey, at West Point. He was charged with attempting to blackmail a cadet and found guilty, and the sentence was that he be discharged, dishonorably stripped of all pay due and coming due, and sentenced to two years' imprisonment in the military prison at Fort Leavenworth. It would look as if a man as badly disgraced as that had nothing left to live for.

THE report of the American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions shows that from the beginning of the mission work the Board has received $17,000,000. The heathen is a very expensive luxury, and it takes a great deal of money to keep him in Bibles and flannel underclothes.

THE Grand Lodge of Free Masons, assmbled in San Francisco, elected the following officers on the 17th instant: Grand Master, Wilson W. Traylor; Deputy Grand Master, Samuel S. Denson; Senior Grand Warden, Clay W. Taylor; Junior Grand Warden, John Q. Adams; Grand Treasurer, Moses Heller; Grand Secretary Alexander, G. Abell. The election was a spirited one and kept the Grand Lodge in session until nearly 11 o'clock in the evening. The Grand Treasurer was elected by an unanimous vote. The Grand Masters' vote was nearly so. All the other offices were warmly contested, in some instances requiring a third ballot, the law requiring a majority of all the votes cast to elect. The retiring Grand Master, John Mills Browne, was to install the newly-elected and those to be appointed that afternoon. The attendance, as we learn from our returned Inyo representatives, was extraordinarily large, there being some 600 members and delegates present. Inyo had a strong representation, of a character to credit their county as well as their order.

THE St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a leading Democratic paper, seems to be trying to convey a hint to Uncle Samivel Tilden in words as follows: "The Democratic standard next year must be carried by clean hands. Every watchword, argument, appeal or consideration will be in vain unless this is done. It is the very first consideration. The party leader must have clean hands, and the party must not be put on the defensive to apologize and explain. A defensive campaign means a disastrous one." And many other influential Democratic papers, talking in the same strain, make even more pointed allusions as to the unfitness of the "Sage of Cipher Alley" for their standard bearer next year—and we consider it a certainty that he will not get to be such standard bearer without a most desperate struggle on his part.

THE San Francisco Bulletin thinks the chances are good for the gradual extension to Southern California of the narrow-gauge coast railway system now operating in Santa Cruz and Monterey counties. It says: "The completion of the South Coast Pacific Railroad as far as Santa Cruz is now only a question of a few weeks. Whether this road is extended any further south is a matter probably only known to those immediately concerned in the construction. It is probable, however, that a Southern Coast road, constructed by one or more companies, will extend down the coast as far as Los Angeles county, and probably as far as San Diego."

AN Illinois man who had placed five Government coupons in a tin box and deposited them in a stovepipe, where they had been destroyed, recently presented the ashes and demanded their redemption. A scientific examination proved that the ashes were the remains of the coupons, but the decision of First Controller Porter holds that the statute authorizing the redemption of called bonds which have been destroyed does not apply to coupons detached from the bonds. The stovepipe depositor, therefore, will not get his money.

IT has been decided at the Postoffice Department that stamps on misdirected letters stopped in the office of deposit and returned to the sender for better direction shall, provided the letter has not been transmitted through the mails, though canceled, be accepted as good for forwarding. Also that stamps on letters for foreign countries requiring prepayment that are stopped for deficient postage shall be regarded as an installment of proper prepayment.

IN the midst of the performance of an extravaganza at a Boston theater, an old man rises in the parquet and says that he is displeased with his seat, as he is unable to hear well. One of the actors invites him to sit in a chair on the stage, which he does, and finally takes a ludicrous part in the acting. It is not until near the close of the piece, so clever is the imposition, that the audience sees the old man is a member of the company.

NEWS comes from Ohio that Ewing men will certainly expose the duplicity and treachery of leading men of the Thurman faction. It is openly charged that under the lead of John G. Thompson, Thurman managers arranged in a number of counties a general exchange of votes for Governor, in return for Republican support of such Democratic candidates for the Legislature as were supposed to be friendly to Thurman for the Senatorship.

THE Indians of New Mexico are helping their brethren, the Utes of Colorado. Forty whites—men, women and children—are reported as having been murdered within the last two weeks.

THE Bodie Free Press says it is evident there will be a deal in Bodie stocks ere long—before the holidays. Some important developments have already been made.

Escheat of an Estate.

John Guliford died in Alameda county December 4, 1876, leaving no will, and the estate was administered by the Public Administrator of that county. A suit was brought in the Ninteenth District Court by the Attorney General, to obtain a judgment of escheat, on the ground of failure of title by defect of heirs and devisees. Yesterday Judge Wheeler made a decree by which the estate escheats to the State for the benefit of her common schools. The estate is valued at $13,000, and consists of 50 shares of California and 50 shares of Con. Virginia mining stocks; also, real estate, being a portion of a 100 vara lot at the corner of fifth and Harrison streets, in this city. The title of the suit is State vs. Rutherford (Public Administrator), and Palmer (Treasurer), of Alameda.—S. F. Alta, Oct. 22d.

There is probably not a single county in this State in which the Attorney General could not find similar escheated estates were every Public Administrator compelled to render a strict account, as they should be, the more particularly as all such money belongs by right of law to the school children of the State.

THE Los Angeles Express says: "Some of the temperance people in San Francisco are claiming Grant as their own because they have discovered a wine-card of his, made out on board the Tokio, which merely called for Congress water. As the wine-card is dated from his stateroom, the incident has a very different effect on the minds of the 'old rocks' who know how it is themselves, from that produced on the minds of those who have had no experience in coquetting with the rosy over night."

THE railroad issue which will be the feature of Nevada politics is beginning to crop out in the assessment of the roads for taxation. In nearly all the counties of the State through which the Central Pacific passes the assessment has been raised from the figures which have been the rule in previous years, and the two local roads have been raised largely over previous assessment.

A CLEVER hoax has been going the rounds of the press lately. It is the pretended description of the horrible death of a young lady. Her lover, Mr. Cole, had thrown off on her. The heroine was named Carry C. Noyle (kerosene oil). No wonder that spontaneous combustion took place.

IT is proposed to have a convention of all the Superior Judges-elect meet soon for the purpose of considering the subject of amending the Codes to conform to the new Constitution. Probably it wouldn't be a bad idea to instruct the incoming Legislature on these points.

PNEUMONIA.—The fatality of this disease is quite remarkable. Two men died Monday, James Mulcahy and Patrick Furlong, somewhat advanced in years, and members of the Miners' Union. Mulcahy was sixty, and Furlong fifty-six years of age. This morning the bodies were conveyed to Miner's Union Hall, where they were viewed by a large number of people. Another man, Thompson by name, whose initials we were unable to learn, died at the Syndicate this morning of the same disease. He was a miner, and had been employed by the company but a short time.—Bodie Standard, Oct. 21.

CHINAMEN VS. INDIANS.—A number of Mexicans and Mexican-Indians have been in town during the week. The competition of the Chinese has made sheep-shearing and herding an undesirable business for whites. After some years' experience, sheep-owners generally find that Chinese won't do. They are two smart, selfish and unreliable, so the employment is becoming relegated to the Mexicans, who in turn will be superseded by whites, when they are attainable.—Merced Express.

THERE is a report in town to the effect that the Mormons are negotiating with Mexican authorities at the City of Mexico for the purchase of Sonora. We think this is unfounded, still it may be true.—Arizona Miner.

Miners' Meeting.

ANTELOPE MINING DISTRICT,
Inyo Co., Cal., Oct. 14.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Pursuant to call, a miners' meeting was held whereby the name of the district was changed to Bishop Creek Mining District. The western boundary was also extended from a point on Owens river along the north line of the county in a westerly course to a point where the line intersects the line of the Sierra Nevada District; thence southerly along the line of said district to the line of Cummings District; thence along the line of Cummings District in a southerly course to a point on Big Pine Creek to the southeast corner of Cummings District; thence along Big Pine creek in an easterly course to a point on Owens river opposite the mouth of Big Pine creek.

Resolved, That the proceedings of the meeting be published in THE INYO INDEPENDENT.

J. B. SWEARENGEN, Chairman,
H. H. BUCKLEY, Secretary.

THE NEW CHURCH AT BISHOP.—A committee of ladies, consisting of Mrs. Jos. Rowan, Miss Laura Hall and Miss Eliza McCrosky, all of Bishop Creek, have been actively at work for some time past canvassing for subscriptions to the building fund for the proposed new church at that place. In pursuance of this duty, they spent a few hours in this place Thursday afternoon, starting on their homeward journey the same evening. The sum total of their collections here was by no means large as compared to the whole sum required, but, all the unpropitious circumstances considered, was quite satisfactory. And here it is but right to remark that some young gentlemen here seem to regret it extensively that they happened to be called away from their regular places of business just at the moment the ladies called, and they say it won't turn out that way the next time. Altogether, this committee has been quite successful, having already secured about two-thirds of the required $3,000, and sufficient, we understand, to warrant the immediate commencement of the building—a result probably due more to Mrs. Rowan's efforts than that of any other one person, although a number of others have rendered equally valuable, though less active aid. Judging from the plan shown, the church building is to be not only commodious but very tasty in general style and finish, and quite an imposing structure withal, and a credit not only to its locality but the county. And right here we will undertake to say that that building of itself is bound to exert a vast influence on the material prosperity of its locality, let its effects spiritually be what they may. It will stand boldly out as tangible proof that its builders have an abiding faith in a permanent future for their section and community, and yet be no less a living monument to that faith that the grand hope of life lies beyond the grave. But taking it in the narrowest view, that of dollars and cents, it becomes a standing advertisement to attract the eye of home-seekers of the most desirable class, and such will come in numbers sufficient to give life to all needed new enterprises to make an independent and prosperous community. For this certainty alone, every property holder in that section will directly promote his own interests by giving liberally in aid of this work, let his own religious or irreligious tenets be what they may. And in any event it cannot be too strongly emphasized that the responsible parties in this undertaking will save themselves a world of care and expense hereafter by completing the work of providing sufficient funds now to save all terrors of an otherwise inevitable mechanics' lien—an "Old Man of the Sea" harder to shake off the neck of a debtor church than almost any other enterprise. Let the committee try them all once more.

KEARSARGE.—An upraise has been commenced directly above the deep winze, and in the same ore chimney, at a hight of six feet, there are three feet of solid ore; an average specimen from this, in our possession, shows it to be extremely rich—probably average $200 per ton. This development conforms to our own opinion expressed on the occasion of our late visit to the mine, namely, that the ore chimney of the deep winze would be found to run a long way above the tunnel level, possibly entirely to the surface over 300 feet. The North or Cliff mine crosscut has been driven twenty-five feet, at which point the ledge is six feet in width, between as perfect walls on both sides as could be desired. The ledge matter is not all good ore, but a good proportion of it is, and the development is considered very promising. It now seems to be a settled fact that this is the Cliff ledge sure enough, therefore opening that something near 800 feet below the old original surface workings where so much of the richest ores of the Kearsarge property was taken out years ago. Several additional men are being put on to put the mine in shape for a still larger force by the time the mill is ready to relieve the dumps.

A GOOD WORK.—In his now well-established business of examining mines, sampling, assaying and shipping ores, Mr. S. D. Woodhull has been doing a valuable work for the country and proven himself exactly the right man in the right place. His long experience in working mines and ores renders him thoroughly practical, while the utmost confidence can be placed upon his judgment and reliability.

ARRIVED.—Rev. F. M. Willis and family arrived a few days ago and have taken up their residence in the parsonage.

F. & A. M.—A stated meeting of Inyo Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., will take place at the hall to-night.

They Respond.

PALACE HOTEL,
San Francisco, Oct. 21.

MESSRS. EDITORS—In your paper of October 11 the following appeared in your local colums:

A SCURSION.—On his trip to tide-water, anent his three years' sojourn within the hospitable walls of San Quentin, Henry Tessier was accompanied by as tough a lot of citizens as Independence could well send forth at one time. Should they approach the prison gates together, candor compels us to state that, judged by appearances, Tessier would be the last man taken in charge by the authorities. Under Sheriff Welch, Judge A. R. Conklin, County Treasurer Isaacs, Omie I. Mairs and Geo. W. Brady constitute the excursionists. If Chief Kirkpatrick don't increase the police force when they reach the city, we mistake his efficiency as guardian of public property.

The parties named in the above item appreciate so highly the witty, complimentary and gentlemanly remarks that they deem it worthy of the annexed appendix, which they feel assured you will publish with pleasure:

X-CURSE-ON.

The funny fellow who runs independently THE INDEPENDENT must have mixed his'n considerably when, while having the State Prison and Henry Tessier in his minds' eye he coupled reputable citizens, who chanced to be on their way to the Grand Lodge of Masons with a felon, who, if noticed at all, should have had a private coupé.

Under Sheriff Welch will return with a requisition for the brilliantly witty and sarcastic cuss who cannot distinguish the San Quentin boarding house from a whisky punch. And as for Judge Conklin, Treasurer Isaacs and Messrs. Mairs and Brady, they have taken Chief Kirkpatrick in hand and supplied him with a photograph of THE INDEPENDENT'S infant, so that if he tramps down to the Bay he may be easily recognized and taken in, so that his teeth will not get sunburnt.

FOUR-IN-HAND.

[In his original joke our Lokleitems said nothing about the real purpose of the party's visit to San Francisco; but as a member of the body referred to by "Four-in-hand," he desires to correct the statement that "—* * citizens, who chanced to be on their way to the Grand Lodge of Masons with a felon." Our Lokle aforesaid didn't joke so bad as that, and now claims that honors are easy.—EDS. INDEPENDENT.]

Our New Mines.

Mr. S. D. Woodhull, who has just returned from Swansea and other points, furnishes us with the following mining items: The Indiana mine, owned by Messrs. Boley & Tuttle, near Swansea, is turning out some of the richest silver ore ever seen in California. Several assays made by Mr. Woodhull of the last ore taken out averages 933.72 oz. per ton. Work is being prosecuted in following the vein in the tunnel, from which the ore is taken. The vein is perfect and continuous and is gradually widening. The tunnel is in nearly 200 feet.

Messrs. Boley & Tuttle are also opening a new mine near the Indiana. They have a two-foot vein, the croppings of which assays 127 ozs. in silver—a splendid prospect.

On the same belt, in a direct line with the Indiana north one and a half miles, is the Flagstaff mine, owned by C. Meysan, of Lone Pine. This mine has struck it rich, having a two-foot ledge of solid ore, assaying 400 ozs. in silver per ton.

Other mines are being prospected in that vicinity with very encouraging results, and Swansea bids fair to be a very lively camp before long.

Mr. Woodhull, in connection with Boley & Tuttle, has made some valuable locations near Swansea, on which work will be immediately commenced, and judging from the samples of ore we have seen they are "way up."

Mr. Woodhull has also made an examination of the Owens River mine, owned by Billy Lake. This mine is situated in the Inyo range, ten miles north of the Crysopolis mill. A large mass of smelting ore has been uncovered—probably 500 tons. There are several immense boulders of solid ore that will weigh from 20 to 30 tons each. The ledge is apparently 10 feet wide, and all ore. The average assays are 40 ozs. in silver per per ton. There is a fine spring of water near the mine. This prospect offers a splendid opportunity to put up a smelting furnace. Mr. Lake is now engaged at work upon the property.

RETURNED.—Our sagebrush representatives to the late Masonic Grand Lodge arrived home last evening, except Mr. Brady, who stopped over at Olancha, at Uncle Billy Walker's place. The latter gentleman, a Past Master himself, had accompanied them—a fact which we did not know when mentioning the departure of the party. In the city, among the sights which they did not see, was Gen. Grant, but some consolation was found in the fact that Mr. Brady was taken for him. Judge Conkling and the rest return with severe colds, and when the point was suggested to them that possibly it was on account of having taken a bath while down there, several and divers threats were made against the perpetrators of any further jokes at the party's expense.

THE FISH QUESTION.—Mr. V. G. Thompson has forwarded to Mr. McMurry at Reno the sum of $102, the contribution so far of Independence and Lone Pine toward stocking the waters of Owens Valley with catfish. George's Creek has not yet reported. It is thought that with Fish Springs, Big Pine, Bishop and Round Valley a sum sufficient has been made up.

PREACHING.—Rev. F. M. Willis will inaugurate his appointed work in this circuit by services at the school house in this place, beginning at 7 o'clock to-morrow evening. All are invited to attend.

PANAMINT. — Connelly and Thos. May got back from their Panamint trip two days since, for which place they will again start with additional supplies on Monday next. Connelly and Robinson, the latter in immediate charge, have begun their contract to deliver 300 cords or more of wood per month to the mill, which steamed up for an extended run on the 20th, according to intention as stated two weeks ago. The Stedefeldt furnace will not be put to use yet awhile, the mill having plenty of free milling ore on hand to keep it busy for some time to come. Panamint now has a well stocked store where all ordinary supplies can be obtained at reasonable rates—a fact of possible interest to prospectors and others wishing to take a look at that region.

TAXES.— Sheriff Moore this week gives the regular notice as to times and places of receiving annual contributions toward the support of State and county. Tax times seem to be growing harder each year, somehow—a fact owing in some degree to the escape from taxation of several heavy mining and real estate properties in the past two or three years.

DEPUTY.—See brief account under the proper heading, of a valuable acquisition to the County Clerk's office.

DENIS KEARNEY appears to be moving in earnest in his efforts to establish a co-operative factory for the employment of workingmen, women, boys and girls. He claims to have secured the proper persons to superintend the establishment and to oversee and instruct the workers provided the capital can be raised to put the thing on its feet. There is something practical about the project, and it is more in accord with the needs of the city and the spirit of the times than the political agitation which has thus far been Kearney's mission. There are philanthropists among us, but to be philanthropic to a purpose requires the possession of wealth. If there are any philanthropists in our midst they ought to help Kearney out in his industrial project. If his idea can be carried out, and we see no reason why it cannot, except the all-important one in carrying out all the utilitarian ideas, it will do more towards settling the Chinese question than all the agitation of the subject that can be brought to bear from now till doomsday.—Stock Report.

YESTERDAY afternoon, while preparations were making to lower the pump into the Del Monte, the strain on the winch engine proved too great and the gearing gave way. The gear-wheel was completely ruined. The arms were broken off at the hub and rim, and one of the pieces was thrown against the steam pipe, cutting it in two and allowing the steam to escape in such volume as to completely envelop the building. Chief Engineer Hartnett was at the engine and immediately closed the throttle. A bulkhead having been put in to guard against such an accident no particular damage was done to the pump, the gear-wheel being the only piece of machinery injured. The accident will cause a delay of several days.—Esmeralda Herald.

SECRETARY SHERMAN has decided that silver certificates mutilated to the extent of one-tenth or more must be presented for redemption to the Treasurer of the United States in accordance with the regulations governing the redemption of U. S. notes. That is, that silver certificates mutilated to the extent of one-tenth, but not two-tenths, are redeemable at nine-tenths of full face value; two-tenths, but not three-tenths, at eight-tenths of their face value; three-tenths, but not four-tenths, at seven-tenths of their face value. Fragments of notes, each constituting clearly one-half, are redeemable at one-half the full face value of such whole notes.—United States Record and Gazette.

SINCE Gen. Grant informed the public as to the years he was in California it has been impossible to find a man who knew him at Knight's Ferry in Forty-nine. Before the General arrived here the bar-rooms were full of men who knew him at the Ferry in Forty-nine. There must have been a widespread martality among the Argonautic liars since the General made the explanation.—Stock Report.

UNDER the supervision of Major Chaffee, they are damming the Gila below its confluence with the San Carlos with a view of extensive planting next season. The water thus collected will enable the Agency Indians to irrigate a large body of land, some say four thousand acres, as rich as ever crow flew over.—Colton Semi-Tropic.

MAJOR THORNBURG, who was killed by the Ute Indians, was one of the best rifle-shots and horsemen in the United States army. It is said by his friends that with practice he could have equalled Carver in rifle-shooting. He was a man of splendid physique, with a noble, manly appearance which impressed every one.

THE stage that brought Gen. Grant and party from the Big Tree Station to Merced recently was driven by W. B. Doust, the pioneer stage man, who drove the first stage from Sacramento to Coloma in 1851.

JAMES F. BAYARD, of Delaware, for President, and William Irwin, of California, for Vice President, would not be a very bad team.—Fresno Expositor.

Our Free Schools.

One of the strongest securities of the permanence of our free institutions, as well as one of the most striking testimonies to their inherent excellence, is to be found in that system of popular education which has dotted the whole length and breadth of the land with school houses. Our common schools are an eminently democratic institution. They provide the means of preparing the youth of the nation for the intelligent discharge of the duties pertaining to American citizenship; and they preserve the American idea of the intrinsic equality of all conditions of men by gathering within their walls, on terms of intimate association and fellowship, the children of all classes of the people without regard to distinction of birth or fortune or social condition.

The annual report of the United States Commissioner of Education, recently published, is, from more than one point of view, a most instructive as well as an intensely interesting document. It shows that during the last school year an aggregate of nearly seventy-three and a half million of dollars has been expended in the support of the free common schools of this republic. It tells us that in every Northern State the number of children attending these schools is steadily increasing, and the expenditure for educational purposes is becoming more liberal. Of all the sections of country the West exhibits, as a whole, the most marked progress in this respect. Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Kansas show an enormous increase of pupils and of school accommodation. Iowa, which has just given an overwhelming majority to the Republican ticket in her State election, is a banner State so far as the educational question is concerned. Nothwithstanding her comparatively sparse population, this young State pays a larger annual sum for the education of her youth than Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia combined.

New York stands first on the list of States in point of expenditure for educational purposes. Pennsylvania comes next, Ohio is third, Illinois fourth, Massachusetts fifth, Iowa sixth, Indiana seventh, Michigan eighth, California ninth, Missouri tenth, Wisconsin eleventh. While Wisconsin, the eleventh of the Northern and Western States, expends $2,249,638 per annum on her schools, Alabama expends $392,403, Arkansas $119,403, Georgia $400,153, Louisiana $369,820, Mississippi, $481,215, North Carolina $200,700, South Carolina $256,021, and Texas $496,083.

In drawing inferences from the figures it is but just that some allowance should be made for the disturbed and impoverished condition of the South, resulting from the civil war and the hindrances which have retarded the restoration of normal and healthful social conditions.—S. F. Chronicle.

Prospect of Another Railroad.

The Semi-Tropic learns that a surveying party of the Utah Southern road is at work beyond the mountains north of Colton, and that they will run a line through the Cajon Pass and Colton to San Diego. We have always been firmly of the opinion that the Union Pacific would ultimately work its way to an outlet on this coast. The Utah Southern is principally owned by Jay Gould, who is also the preponderating shareholder in the Union Pacific. Four years ago he would have accepted overtures from the Los Angeles and Independence road to form a connection, and if that road had been pushed forward as an independent enterprise, our city would now be the objective point of the Utah Southern. But as our ports are now in possession of the Southern Pacific the Utah Southern is barred out, and is compelled to strike for some other outlet to the ocean. Next to our own place as a terminus, San Diego will secure to us the greatest benefits, and we therefore hope that the surmises of the Semi-Tropic are correct. The Union Pacific is forced by the railroad development of late years to force its way to the Pacific ocean. The Central Pacific will soon be possessed of a choice of three through lines to the East, exclusively of the one it now posseses. With such a prospect in the near future the Union Pacific would be at the mercy of the Central road without a Pacific outlet. It would be compelled to pro-rate with that road on just such terms as it would see fit to dictate. But with an independent outlet on the Pacific it would be competitive master of the situation so far as through freight is concerned. The logic of its position points emphatically to the extension of its branch, the Utah Southern, to this Coast.—Los Angeles Express.

AN alloy of peculiar beauty and adaption as a substitute for silver, is now employed in one of the most celebrated jewelry manufacturies in France. It consists of sixty parts of iron, twenty-three of nickel, four of tungsten, five alumsnum and five of copper. The iron and tungsten are melted together and then granulated, the water into which this mixture is run for this purpose containing one kilogram of slacked lime and one of carbonate of potash per cubic metre. The nickel, copper, and aluminum are also melted together and granulated by running into water containing the same proportions of lime and potash—care being taken during the melting to cover the metals contained in the two crucibles with a flux composed of one part of boric acid to one of nitrate of potash or nitre. In the crucible containing the aluminum and copper is placed a lump of sodium or about two grains in weight when treating five kilograms of the three metals—nickel, copper and aluminum—together, to prevent oxidation of the aluminum, and charcoal is also added to prevent the oxidation of the copper. The granulated metals are dried, then melted together in the same crucible in the proportions above indicated, and well stirred, after which the alloy is run into ingots. It has the same appearance as pure silver.

BLAINE is described as a distinguished looking man with broad shoulders, snowy beard and iron gray hair.

Wool is selling in Ukiah, Mendocino county, at from 20 to 20½ cents. One or two lots brought 21 cents.

Commodore Nutt, the diminutive individual, who a few years since was traveling around the country with Tom Thumb, giving exhibitions, was arrested a few days ago in San Francisco on a charge of misdemeanor in keeping a disorderly house.

A peculiar disease has recently resulted in the death of several small children in Kittitass Valley Oregon. Ten babies were buried in one day from the small town of Yakima City.

Tom Buford, of Kentucky, who brutally murdered Judge Elliott, stands a fair chance to be released from the Penitentiary. Yellow fever Blackburn, the Governor of that State, is inclined to favor the petition for pardon.

A New Jersey farmer put a mop on the end of a long pole, saturated it with coal oil, set it on fire, and then undertook to dislodge some aggressive hornets that had erected a nest under the eaves of his barn. He dislodged them. He also dislodged a horse, two cows and all his Summer crops. No insurance.

Let the next spelling reform convention be held in Maine, and adopt measures to reform the spelling of the lakes of that State. Some of the lakes there only a quarter of mile in length have names half a mile long. The reformers might wrestle with Lake Magoguekunkittohogneimusquitamackinogue to begin with.—Norristown Herald.

Mrs. Jessie Fremont gives her Friday evenings to a class of grown boys and girls in Arizona, who spend a part of each week studying history. She says to a friend: "I cannot, of course, begin to tell you all I said to them, but the thirty-two history talks I gave my Arizona flock of scholars each Friday of the term after I joined them were a panorama of history as my father had taught me to know it; as I had realized it in many a spot of classic ground in Europe; as reading had enriched it with personal belonging and lights, and as I had seen it both in France and in our own great trial-time."

Prof. Nordenskjold is a man of few words. When he got to Yokohama the other day he telegraphed his congratulations to the patron of his exhibition, the King of Sweden; then he sent this pithy little message to his proud wife: "Anna Nordenskjold, Stockholm—All well. Adolph." Curiously enough both telegrams arrived at Stockholm at exactly the same hour they were handed in at Yokohama, the seven hours which the transmission occupied representing exactly the difference of time at the respective places.

MEXICANS prospect mines on American territory without hindrance, on an equality with native Americans, and it therefore comes with poor grace from Mexico to attempt to prevent Americans from prospecting the Mojada mines. Millions of dollars have been taken out of California and Nevada by Mexicans. Mexico may rail about an American invasion, but under international laws and existing treaties Americans have as much right to emigrate to Mexico as Mexicans have to emigrate to the United States, and no doubt our Government will protect its citizens in that right. It will be a cowardly dereliction if it does not. The prospectors who may go to Mojada will not go as fillibusters; they will have no political ends in view, but will go as peaceful emigrants, just as Mexicans come to this country. Mexico is the last nation in the world that should practice the Chinese policy of exclusiveness. American enterprise, capital and grit can do more for Mexico in ten years than she has done for herself in the past century.—Stock Report.

OF the European nations Germany stands first as to fighting trim. She can put in the field at twenty-four hours' notice twelve hundred thousand men of the line, the reserve and the Landwehr. The grand total of the German army is two million two hundred thousand not reckoned on the field strength, but deducted as garrisons. The strength of the second Landwehr and the Landsturm is generally exaggerated, but they are thoroughly efficient soldiers, the best in the army. France has a nominal strength of three millions and a half men, but practically it must be decreased to two millions, and even of this total a very large population is still in process of organization. It is not believed that France could place in the first line more than eight hundred thousand men.

GOV. THROCKMORTON, of Texas, in defending a murderer the other day, wished to show the jury that the man whom his client killed might have been armed in spite of the fact that he was in his shirt sleeves. Taking off his coat, and standing before the jurors, he said: "Can you see any sign of arms about me?" They shook their heads. Then he drew a pistol from under each arm, one from each boot leg, and a long knife from the back of his neck.

J. H. Taylor has located the Green Bay, which shows well in sulphurets, and the Big Blue, yielding rich chlorides. Both these mines are in Indian District.

We learn from Supt. Geo. M. Bowers that a force of men has been but on the Silver Wave mine, one of the oldest locations on Blind Spring Hill. The mine is owned jointly by Supt. Bowers and Dan. Ashley, and is located at the foot of the grade.

In the Calliope mine the men are now crosscutting from the bottom of the 100-foot incline. This crosscut is already in 60 or 70 feet, and they are getting into the casing of the main vein. Supt. Prescott informs us that the prospects of the Calliope are good.

The Illinois Mining Company are now running a tunnel from their whim shaft in the ravine. This ledge is 82 feet below the surface croppings, and has developed a ledge eight feet wide, showing a remarkably good prospect. The vein promises to develop into a large ore body.

The Diana mill commenced running last Monday on ore from the Diana mine. Although the mill had not been in operation for a long time, a couple of days sufficed to burnish up the machinery, recaulk the tanks, etc., and the little mill is now running as smoothly and silently as a spring clock.

The shaft on the Minnie mine has been entirely retimbered to a depth of 45 feet, and the work is being prosecuted most vigorously. As soon as the shaft is cleaned out and retimbered to the bottom the work of sinking will be commenced in earnest. The Minnie is situated on the famous Tower lead.—Semi-Weekly Bentonian.

INDIGNANT.—It is said that the State Capitol officers and attachés held a meeting last night for the purpose of expressing their indignation at Deputy Controller Daugherty's orguinette. There is not an attaché of the building who hasn't "Baby Mine" and the "Sweet Bye and Bye" ringing in his ears all day and night. Fearing the gathering storm may get him into serious trouble, Mr. Daugherty offers his melodious musical instrument for sale at a great discount from the original cost. In connection with this, we are also authorized to state that in consequence of the bitter prejudice which now exists in the State House against all classes of musical instruments, no propositions will be entertained from monkey dealers.—Carson Appeal.

WALKING DIVIDENDS.—A division of the net receipts of both the men's and women's walking matches was made the past week. The men's share was as follows: Peter McIntyre, $1,854 45; J. A. Carmichael, $1,112 50; W. H. Scott, $463 55; J. Murdock, $272 78. For the ladies the award was as follows: Bella Sherman, $1,284 71; Sadie Donley, $680 82; Mrs. Harry Maynard, $358 67; Alice Donley, $234 20. The total receipts of the men's match was about $18,000.—Pacific Life.

THIS is the way Apostle Erastus Snow talked to the Mormons at Nephi, Utah, on the 13th instant: "In spite of the President of the United States and the Government of the United States and its officials, we will do as we please. We will not submit to the President, nor the Government, nor to any Judge, Marshal, Sheriff, Constable or any other Government official. We will see them in the infernal regions first." To this there was a hearty amen all over the house.

HUGGING socials are to be inaugurated in Silver City next month, and if successful will be continued through the Winter. It is proposed to charge ten cents to hug any young lady between fifteen and twenty; five cents for young ladies between twenty and thirty; one dollar to hug another man's wife; old maids two for a cent; while all females of the woman's rights persuasion are free, with a drink thrown in.—Virginia Enterprise.

OUR office was out of wood last night, but we will have a fresh supply to-morrow. We have also a first-class double-barreled Parker shotgun with which to interview the party down in the hollow who has raided our woodpile every night sine the cold weather commenced. Come on, old tarpy; you need wood and we need target practice, and we can be mutually beneficial to each other.—Times-Review.

WHY doesn't Denis go on to Ireland and help his ancestors' descendents in their anti-rent fight? It would be a glorious occasion to immortalize himself and enlarge the capacity of some English jail.—Stock Exchange.

A Great Work.

The Central Pacific Railroad about three months ago began a very important improvement at the Oakland terminus of its line, being no less than the substitution of a solid embankment for the long line of piling, stretching from Oakland Point to deep water. This work is being pushed forward as rapidly as its nature will permit. When completed the embankment will be wide enough for four lines of rails and a carriage road. There will be two lines of track for both the local and overland trains. To the north of the tracks will be the wagon road. When the filling is completed, the Railroad Company proposes to erect at the ferry slips a large and handsome depot, similar in plan and structure to noted Eastern passenger depots. The bay on each side of the embankment is to be dredged to a depth sufficient for the anchorage of ships of the greatest draft. Although the work of filling in was begun so short a time ago, several hundred yards have been completed already. The rock used in this work is taken from a quarry at Niles, twenty-five miles distant. At the quarry about three hundred Chinese are employed. Two trains of forty-five cars each, carrying ten yards of rock per car, are constantly employed in transporting the material to the place required. Nine hundred yards of rock are daily dumped into the bay. Five or six trains of sixty cars each are used in the transportation of earth from Fruitvale, about five miles from Oakland Point. About 1,000 yards of earth are daily dumped at the Point. At Fruitvale the Railroad Company has purchased one hundred and four acres of land, and a piece of high land, half a mile long and thirty feet high, in the vicinity. Some two hundred Chinese, with eight white men, are employed in the work of loading the trains with the dirt obtained here. A huge steam shovel is in constant operation, and loads twenty cars while the laborers load the rest. It is estimated that it will require not less than two years to complete the great work, and four years may be consumed in the construction of the embankment.—S. F. Bulletin.

AN ESSAY ON MINING.—A San Francisco paper says: "Old Mother Nature fools the best of them. The place for silver and gold is where you find it." A mining sharp on the Comstock was heard making a dissertation on the same theme. "Prof. So-and-So be durned," said he. "I would not give a pick and shovel for all the science that ever yet pointed out the place of gold. Giant intellects cannot compare with giant powder when bonanzas are wanted. A diamond drill is worth all the drilling of all the mining schools in the world. There are just three things needed to prosecute mining on the Comstock. They are pluck, money and endurance. It takes sand to go after a bonanza and to stick until it is uncovered. Here, in this broad porphyry belt, the ore bodies exist as do pumpkins on a vine. Sometimes the vines are awfully long, and the pumpkins when found are not half grown. I started in to say that when good croppings are discovered, the way to get the ore is to sink and drift for it. One giant cartridge will blow out more ore than all the science in the world ever did, and still I am not fighting science. I am only upholding pick and drill and powder, for they are brimfull of the only science that ever wins in deep mining."—Virginia Enterprise.

A RICH strike is reported in the Silver King mine of Arizona. Col. Barney writes to the editor of the Times that it was made on the 400 level, and says ranges high as $4,000 per ton. The Silver King is the most wonderful mine on the Pacific coast.—Mammoth City Times.

Sierra Mojadas Mines.

You have doubtless heard accounts of the discovery of gold in fabulous quantities in the rugged Sierra Mojadas. The accounts cannot be exaggerated, since the imagination cannot conceive of such a vast quantity of gold and silver hoarded by Nature in one rugged mountain range. The tallest stories would not be fabulous in this case. I have been there, and I know whereof I affirm. You know I have been something of a traveler; that I have seen the mines of California, Australia, and among the Ural mountains—for, during my wanderings, I corresponded with you; but nowhere on this planet have I seen the same richness in mines, the same uncounted tons of gold. The very mountains, lofty and rugged as they are, seem to be built of gold. Untold millions of the yellow ores and dust are in sight. How much there may be hidden in the heart of the mountains, only he who created all wealth can tell. If I had not been there, and one had attempted to tell me only one-half of the truth in regard to these golden mountains, though he had been my dearest kinsman or most trusted friend, I would not have accepted his story as truth. I shall not ask you to believe me when I say that there are in those wild, almost inaccessible mountains, great hills of gold, miles in length, hundreds of feet in height, and hundreds of yards in width. And yet it is the literal truth. And not far away from the golden hills there is a mountain of silver ore richer than any ores of Leadville or Virginia, or any other bonanza mines yet discovered. This silver mountain throws into the shade the far-famed hill of Santa Eulalia, in Chihuahua, from which $200,000,000 in silver has been taken. I know you will think I tell incredible stories. I have not told half the truth.

But why are not these mines worked—developed at once? The answer is not difficult. They are in Mexico, and nothing is done in a hurry except changing the Government. In the next place territorial jurisdiction is claimed by the three States of Coahulia, San Luis Potosi and Chihuahua. The mines are undoubtedly clearly in the State of San Luis Potosi; but the conflicting claims must be settled, as each has a military force in the neighborhood, and suppress all attempts to carry on mining operations. Then the title is in doubt. Up to within a week before my departure to San Felipe, the nearest pueblo to the mining region, it was supposed that the Mojadas were a part of the public domain. But interested parties made the discovery that the identical tract upon which the richest discoveries have been made was long ago granted away in the usual Mexican style of liberality to the extent of six Spanish leagues.

There was much excitement in San Luis Potosi and Saltillo over the announcement that the great mines were private property, and, the strangest part of all, the property of an American by birth, if living, and his heirs, if dead. As the story may be interesting to you, and as time in this dull place hangs heavy upon me, I may as well tell you. Briefly, then, the records show that a certain tract of land, calling in its metes and bounds for certain established lines and landmarks, was granted to one Manuel Sandoval by the Mexican Government, in consideration of some services which he had performed in behalf of the Republic. The grant was made in 1836. The property was accurately described in the survey, and there is no doubt the Mojada mines are on the land. But now comes the strangest part of the relation. It was about the year 1859-60, perhaps in 1861-62, that a young American made his appearance in San Felipe, San Luis Potosi, and made frequent excursions into the wildest and most impenetrable recesses of these rugged regions. He claimed to be a botanical student; but an old Otomi Indian, still living in San Felipe, who acted as guide for the American on several occasions, relates that he was always looking among the rocks and picking the sand and pebbles. For a time he disappeared, and it was learned that he went to San Luis Potosi, ascertained the whereabouts of Manuel Sandoval, and eventually purchased from him his mountain tract for the consideration of 900 Mexican mill dollars. There is an entry in the records found in San Luis Potosi, dated November 8, 1864, stating the fact that Don Manuel Sandoval, of Villanegras, had bargained and sold to Don José Adison Da Cus, of Memphis, all his right, title and interest in a certain grant of land from the Supreme Government, fully described in another book, in which reference is made. The tract is sufficiently designated in this record to give title under the Mexican laws. The following year, or perhaps in the Spring of 1866, as the records seem to show, this same José Adison Da Cus appears again at San Felipe, and the tract of land and record of the grant are accurately described and duly recorded. Who this José Adison Da Cus is, no one knows. He disappeared more than twelve years ago, and has not appeared there since. If he is alive, and his ownership established, he is certainly the richest man on the planet.—Corr. Chicago Tribune.

THE Salt Lake Tribune says that the rise in lead is having a wonderful effect on the mining camps of Utah, and mines which were hardly worth looking at one month ago are putting on an immense amount of style.

THE case of Charles De Young for an attempt to murder I. S. Kalloch, Mayor-elect of San Francisco, was presented to the Grand Jury on the 20th ultimo.

LEADVILLE ORES.

The Process by which They are Reduced.

The Leadville process of reducing ores differs somewhat from the methods adopted in other camps; and if the description given in an exchange be correct, it seems to be a succession of metallic marriages and divorces, produced by a careful study of the like and dislike of minerals, their affinities and antagonisms. "Audubon," says the writer, "did more than thoroughly and patiently search out the habits of birds than the smelters have studied the habits of miners, especially as to what company they shun. For instance, here is a piece of silver ore which represents the polygamous marriage of Mr. Rock to six brides—Lead, Iron and Sulphur, all plebeian maids, and Gold, Silver and Copper, all high-born dames. Mr. Rock is divorced from these six wives by putting them together in the furnace. But still the rest of the family, the six wives, remain united in one metallic mass. In order to separate these the smelters take advantage of their likes and dislikes. Mrs. Lead is banished by fire, and shortly after her affections for Mrs. Gold is the means of getting the latter out of the family and by herself. The fire used to drive Mrs. Sulphur up the chimney and into another home, to be wedded to Mr. Steam, and form the sour couple called sulphuric acid or toppish or faded Mr. Tin, is introduced to win affections and marriage from Mrs. Sulphur, who is willing to wed even faded gentility in order to have 'plenty of tin;' Mrs. Iron is disposed of in some way, and then Mrs. Silver is drawn from the family by Mr. Lead or Mr. Copper, and Mrs. Copper is herself drawn away by old Mrs. Iron. After further fiery ordeals and crushing oppression and tossing billows, each one of the united housenold is led into independence and usefulness. As the ancient Roman conquered three foes who pursued him by running from them, and thus separating them, that he might destroy them one by one, so in smelting, the great aim is to conquer by separating the united metals. A great man once said that statesmanship consisted in combining individual selfishness for the public good. So smelting consists in using the likes and dislikes of minerals in such a way as to separate them from each other.

About Women.

A new town in Idaho has been named "Onegirlia," because there is only one girl there.

Last year Kate Claxton paid a dollar a night for a borrowed baby to use in her play of "Double Marriage." During her Summer vacation she has provided herself with a real little Claxton and is now independent.—New Orleans Picayune.

Says the Paris Figaro: A woman passes by on horseback: the Frenchman stops and looks at the woman; the Englishman stops and looks at the horse.

Women somehow get over childish notions that men never outgrow. Some men celebrate the anniversary of every birthday as long as they live, while women quit doing so almost as soon as they grow up.

A lady sends her laundress a washing list, among which is the following: "One frilled petticote (no starch)." One Saturday the washing comes home, and with it the bill, among the items in which are the following: "One frilled petticote, 20 cents; no starch, 10 cents."

Dr. George M. Morgan says; A hundred women of to-day weigh more than the same number in the same class did half a century ago. They are less angular, more rotund, more cheerful and hopeful in expression. It is clear that they eat better food and digest it easier. Their dress, with all its errors, is in closer relation to hygienic law and is yearly improving.

Louise, Victoria and Maud, the young daughters of the Prince of Wales, rarely appear in public in any but the simplest dress. They are sometimes seen with their mother at the theatre in white linen or cotton sailor dress, with a little red trimming, and they are often met riding or driving in neat sailor dresses of dark blue woollen. They went with their father and mother to the recent French Fair in gowns of plain pink cambric, with sashes of crimson harmonizing with the pink.

AN INDIAN ROMANCE.—Little Bird, daughter of a great Chief of the Sioux, had many white lovers, one of whom—John Provost, by name—sent her a pony, which she accepted, which ceremony is all that is necessary to constitute a marriage according to Indian law. Just at the happiest moment of his life, the gay bridegroom was interrupted, as he was starting on a wedding tour, by a rival, named Barnard, who explained to the newly-made bride that her gay bridegroom had married her with a stolen pony, and that the pledge of faith belonged to him (Barnard), and, consequently the bride also. The dusky maiden saw it at once, and declared that as she had accepted the pony, the owner, whoever he might be, was of course her husband. Provost, the first husband, at once committed suicide, and two days afterwards Barnard was shot from the bushes; after which the dusky widow mounted the pony, caught the murderer, shot him dead, and found that it was Provost's brother. N. B.—This is an Indian romance right out of real life.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1.....1879

A CORRESPONDENT of the Chicago Mining Review denounces an attempt that was being made to foist Panamint mines on Chicago people. There are mines in Panamint, but they are valueless. A man who was anxious to own a mine just for the glory of being known as a mine owner. could serve that end by investing in Panamint, but if he worked his mine he would find that instead of a mine, he owned a white elephant. There has been some rich ore found in the Panamint mines; there is probably some rich ore in them yet; but the mass of the ore is so base and the expense of working it so great, on account of the remoteness of the district, that the mines are practically valueless. Senator Jones and Trenor W. Park put capital enough into Panamint to develop any mining district, but it was a disastrous investment. Silver has got to be more valuable and silver mines less plentiful before Panamint district will be worth reviving.—Bodie Free Press.

It is very true that the parties named sunk a large amount of money in their efforts to develop Panamint. Assuming this to have amounted to about $1,000,000, as it did approximately, something near $500,000 was expended in the construction of a mill and supplies for the same, about half as much more in the construction of roads, trails, water works, storehouses, etc., leaving certainly less than $250,000 for actual exploration in the mines, and securing title to the same; and the most of this was expended on two mines alone, out of an even dozen belonging to the company, and say four dozen others in the immediate vicinity belonging to other parties, many of which have since yielded excellent prospects. The company took from their mines, and mostly from the two referred to, in all over $400,000. The greatest depth attained in either of them was about 700 feet. In both the ledges were quite as large at the lowest workings as at any point above; it is true, however, that they yielded nothing at the bottom nor for some distance above. It is not true that the ores were so base as to render them unusually difficult to work. At least, they were worked up to upwards of 90 per cent. right along even without roasting. While Panamint was certainly a failure, this Chicago correspondent does its manifestly great chances a great injustice in such untruthful statements as above quoted or referred to. Panamint may never amount to anything; but we deny emphatically that it deserves such sweeping condemnation on what has been done to prove or disprove the value of its hundreds of ledges.

AT the Oakland course on the 25th ultimo a very remarkable race against time was trotted by Bob Morrow's bay gelding, St. Julian, whose previous mile trots at Stockton and San José had excited great expectations of his future in the minds of many turfmen, though it is probable that the most sanguine of them were not prepared for his extraordinary performance, which event was nothing less than the achievement of the fastest trotting mile in the annals of the turf, the time being 2:12¾. The best previous record is that of Rarus—heretofore the king of the turf by undisputed title—whose fastest mile was trotted in 2:13¼. Gen. Grant is said to have witnessed this feat with great interest and pleasure.

THE last Scientific American contains an illustration and description of the hydrometer steam vessel, the Pellworm. This vessel is propelled without engine, paddle-wheels, or propeller, and is steered without a rudder. The propulsion is secured by ejecting a stream of water from huge nozzles beneath the hull, and the nozzles are swiveled so that they may turn the vessel in any direction and thus control its course.

KING ALFONSO is to be married this month. The young lady is now learning to walk and talk Spanish.

A WOODLAND gentleman from Bodie was asked what he thought of the country. He replied: "There are but three things in Bodie—big mines, little mines and whisky shops; in other words, ophir holes, gopher holes and loafer holes."—S. F. Bulletin.

THE total value of the taxable property of Esmeralda county, as shown by the roll just placed in the hands of the County Treasurer, amounts to $942,549 40. The amount nets in taxes $22,621 17.—Esmeralda Herald.

NEW POSTAL REGULATIONS.

Postmasters, newspaper publishers, and others concerned throughout the country, are informed by a Department circular of some important changes about to be introduced into the postal service. The most important of the proposed changes is embodied in this clause of the new regulations: "All mail matter not addressed to a Postoffice is unmailable, and must be forwarded to the Dead Letter Office at Washington, unless the envelope shall bear the name of the sender, or other indication whereby it may be returned to the sender for better direction." The meaning and effect of this will be understood from the following: In this State alone there are no less than 2,064 places, technically called "locals," to which mail matter is addressed, and has heretofore been delivered, but which are not Postoffices. These are the places cut off by the new order; in other words, letters, packages, newspapers, or other mail matter addressed to such places, or "locals," will not be sent forward or, as we understand it, even delivered to the persons to whom such matter is addressed, even though they should find it in a regular Postoffice nearest the "local" to which it is addressed. In short, Postmasters must not knowingly receive mail matter not addressed to a regular Postoffice, even though the "local" to which it may be addressed may be in the immediate vicinity. For example, Postmaster Hardy, at the Independence Postoffice, has no right to forward a letter directed, say to "Jim or James Shepherd, George's Creek, Inyo county, Cal." although he, the P. M., knows that such a person and place exists quite near at hand; neither could Jeemes, under a strict rendering of the new regulation, get his letter though he were to apply direct at the Indepenence office for it—it wouldn't better his chances a particle even though the said superscription was in a lady's hand, as it would be very apt to be if so addressed. The only recourse in such a case would be for the writer to come and identify and obtain her billy dux and re-address it to a regular Postoffice (Independence, in this instance), else deliver it personally or by messenger, for, otherwise Jeems could never get a sight of it, as it would surely have to be sent to Washington for the edification of the clerks in the Dead Letter Office. The possible importance of a proper understanding of the new rule may be better appreciated by pursuing this supposed illustration a little further: As stated, the billy dux so addressed would, barring the several conditions above noted, have to be sent direct to the Dead Letter Office for the reason given; in that case Jeemes, of course, would not get his letter; might not find out any such had ever been written, notwithstanding the possible fact he had been hoping and rather expecting something of the kind for a long time. Not receiving it, he, naturally enough, would feel a little touched up and keep mum and more mum in proportion, without hope of consolation except in that self-evident proposition that "the sea contains as good sardines as were ever caught out of it"—the same adage which has given solid comfort to untold numbers of the disappointed of both sexes for a thousand years, and will continue to do so for a thousand years or so to come. In the meantime, the writer, getting no reply to her missive, which she knows could not miscarry over such a plain, short and sandy road, first suspects, becomes convinced, gets mad, and finally "hoppin' mad,"—believing herself neglected, perhaps scorned, by a person who is as innocent of any such intent or sentiment as a sheep, or even two sheep. Now, as "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned,"

This illustration, in combination with Postmaster General Key's circular, is to teach people who write letters not to do it—unless they know enough to address their effusions, no matter what their nature, to some established Postoffice, not to some "local," no matter how well known the latter may be, or how near it may be to some Postoffice. But t is no harm to put both on; that is, to add the name of the "local," the real destination of the mail matter, to that of the nearest Postoffice. When so doubly addressed the Postmaster last receiving it will be at liberty to deliver or forward it by any mode convenient, the same as heretofore. Many persons may save themselves trouble in various ways by heeding these new requirements, which all Postmasters are bound to carry out.

IN the half-column of flaming headings to the article describing the Sharon-Grant reception, the Spirit of the Times has the following: "Vistas of Swallow Tails, Bare Arms and Bosoms, and Indescribable Toilets. Magnificent Maids and Matrons Munificently and Matchlessly Manipulated by the Modiste."

NEWS from the Indian country is that a few days ago 56 lodges of Minnecanjou Sioux, under Chief Burnt Face, left the Cheyenne Agency and started out on the warpath. The only depredation thus far reported is a profitless raid on a Black Hills wagon train.

IRELAND.

Mr. Parnell, M. P., and the Home Rule leader, seems to be playing the Denis Kearney rolé in Ireland—that is to say, while nominally laboring to relieve the Irish laboring classes from their only too great and too obvious distresses, arising chiefly from failure of crops and exorbitant rents, he is really doing all he can to make bad infinitely worse, so that he himself may attain high political power and a name as a great leader whose dictum shall make the English Parliament tremble. The rantings and agitations of a "great reformer" in this country can never produce anything more serious than a ripple of ludicrousness until the time arrives when his complaints have a tangible foundation, a condition not likely to occur in our Mr. Kearney's life time. But in Ireland, as in other European countries, a great agitation is a vastly more serious affair, because the need of reform, if not the best manner by which to bring it about, is ever manifest to suffering thousands. When a reform is demanded on a "bread and butter basis"—for material reasons in contradistinction to those of mere sentiment touching some so-called religious rite or right—it becomes at once a cause to gain the sympathy and support of working people everywhere. As this present wide spread trouble in Ireland is one of "a bread and butter" nature purely, the cause of the starved agitators is the worthiest of the worthy, and it is warmly to be hoped the fat land sharks of that country, by whose extortions the poor have been brought to such real distress, may be brought squarely to their knees. The issue may be thus stated: The land owners, most of whom are non-residents, have always exacted land rents so high it was not possible for the renters to pay them and themselves and families have enough to eat and wear except in seasons of very bountiful harvests. In bad seasons these renters would literally have to half starve themselves to pay these exorbitant rents and no less exorbitant Government taxes. A failure to pay these rents involved their certain eviction from homes erected in many instances by their forefathers generations ago. Eviction is more dreadful to many of these people than the semi-starvation of the occasional years of poor crops. The past season being unusually bad, these people have not only the fears of eviction but of starvation to contend with. To make bad worse Mr. Parnell, for his own political aggrandizement, is going about the country inciting the people to open rebellion.

A late dispatch says: "Four monster county meetings have been held, numbering from 15,000 to 25,000 people, to whom Parnell, Colhurst and a priest named Magee made inflammatory speeches, advising the farmers to stand together and refuse to pay the rent; to adopt a policy of passive resistance, 'though,' Mr. Parnell significantly suggested, 'you have the physical strength to back your right if necessary.'" The responses were: "Shoot th landlords," "Cold lead's the only cure," etc., etc.

It is an admitted fact that there is suffering in Ireland from the shortness of crops and high rents, yet it is noless certain that this distress is greatly exaggerated by this Parnell and other Kearneyites, in order to bring the "chronic hatred of the Irish of England to a white heat" that they may use it to their own purposes—also, as we estimate the chances, to enhance future crops in Ireland by enriching its soil with the blood of legions of Irishmen sent, not led, to certain death by these self-same shysters. Liverpool now bristles with English bayonets, and the Parnell crew still labor diligently in preparing work for them to do.

THE Mammoth mill is as usual running steadily, but there are yet no returns. People say that both the managers below and Col. Hardy are afraid to have a clean up for fear of resuls, but of course that is nonsense. Still if the powers that be should take it into their heads to test the thing just once it would relieve a great many anxious minds. As it is now, no news is beginning to be looked upon as bad news. There is no use trying to disguise the fact that the ore being run through the mill is of the very poorest quality—Mr. Luckhart says he saw some going into the batteries that wouldn't assay $15 a ton—but for all that we are not discouraged. We know there is better ore in the mine, and we have only to wait for the day when it will be taken out.—Mammoth City Times.

THE Vulcan mill started up again last Tuesday morning. Robert Burnham, the superintendent of the mill, informs us that a large body of good milling ore now lies on the dump at the Tower mine and that the mine itself never looked better. An additional force of men is now being put on this mine, and the indications are that the Tower alone will keep the Vulcan mill at work for an indefinite period. Besides there is a large quantity of custom ore in the district awaiting reduction. Taken altogether the outlook is that the mills can run as long as they please on the various ores on the dumps.—Bentonian.

THE Ontario mine, which is described as being the great mine of Utah, on last Tuesday paid its forty-eighth dividend of $2,400,000. The gross product of the mine since it was first opened foots up $5,010,504.

The Grave of Body.

The mystery as to the death and burial of W. S. Body, has been at last cleared up. For many years stories have been afloat as to his fate and disposition of the remains. Some who claim to have known him and was in this locality in the memorable year in which he prospected on the hills hereabouts, have stated that he was buried near Mono Lake, while others said his remains rested somewhere in the hills west of town, but could give no definite details as to the exact locality.

In order to give a definite idea as to how the grave was discovered it will be necessary to go back a few years and recite a few points in history that have recently been brought to light. It is well known that a party of prospectors, consisting of Teddy Brodigan, Body and several others, came over here in 1859 and prospected the hills around the present site of Bodie. They first went to Aurora and prospected in that vicinity; but as the Indians were constantly making threats they left there and came back here. After prospecting these hills a short time, and making a few locations, they concluded to return to Monoville, which was then a flourishing camp. Brodigan, who was the leader of the party, resolved to go back to Sonora for the Winter and return in the Spring. It was agreed between Body and himself that what they had discovered should be kept a secret until that time. But Body broke his promise, and after reaching Monoville concluded to come back here. He did so, and built a small cabin at the head of Green street, near the spring. A portion of this cabin—built of stone and covered with sagebrush and earth—is still standing. After remaining here for a time he returned to Monoville. In the meantime Brodigan had started for Sonora, but meeting a party from that place he returned here. On his return back again he met Body and a man named "Black" Taylor, coming over here, leading a pack mule. Brodigan upbraided Body for his falseness, and went on.

Body and Taylor started for their cabin at the head of Green street, taking a cut across in a northeast direction. When they reached a point two miles from town Body became exhausted and concluded to remain there for a time. He did so, and sought the shelter of a bluff of rocks. This was in November and a heavy snow storm was raging. Taylor came on to the cabin, and after resting a time started in search of Body. Owing to the snow he could not find him, but the following February, after the snow had melted away, his body was found by Taylor where he had left him, under the shelter of the rocks. It is supposed that the snow had drifted in on him and covered him up, he being too weak to help himself. Taylor removed the remains about 200 feet from where he found them, and, digging a grave, buried the body in the blankets that were about it. He placed over the grave as a monument several large rocks.

Judge McClinton, in 1871, came to Bodie to look after his mining locations. One day his horse wandered in the hills west of town, and the Judge went in search of him. On this trip he came across the pile of rocks, and supposed at the time it was the grave of some white man. Body's death and burial never entered his mind.

Mr. Wasson has, for the past few months, been making strenuous efforts to get at the true history of the early days of Mono county, and the fate of Body. In a conversation with Judge McClinton one day he touched on the subject of Body, and a recollection of the grave came back to the Judge, and he made mention of it.

On Saturday they started out in search of the monument of stone. They took a southwesterly course, and after going about two miles came upon it. After taking in the situation, they returned to town. Yesterday they again started for the grave with pick and shovel, accompanied by an Indian. They commenced to remove the earth, and after going down about three feet their labors were rewarded. The first thing found was a silk neck-tie, tied in a bow knot. It was well preserved. The next thing found was a shoe, well preserved, and on the left foot. Nothing was found of the right, and evidently it had been lost by Body and in stead he had wrapped his foot in a gunny sack. The shoe found was wrinkled and run down at the heel. No further excavations were made that day and everything was left as they quit work. This morning Mr. Wasson invited a company of gentlemen to accompany him to the place, that witnesses might be present at any further excavation. At about 11 o'clock the party started on horseback, in buggies and afoot. The company present consisted of Dr. Davison, Supt. Irwin, Messrs. Showers, Bechtel, Loose, Gilson and Martin, H. Z. Osborne, of the Standard, Mr. Baker, of the News, and a representative of the Free Press. The work of removing the earth was immediately commenced, and soon all the bones were uncovered. The skull was well preserved and the teeth as sound and white as though the man had just died. Portion of the arms could not be found. A large knife in a sheathe attached to a belt was also found. This was recognized by Mr. Loose as the identical knife that Body was wont to carry, as he had often heard Mr. Brodigan speak of it. The bones were car fully placed in a blanket and brought to town, and are at present in the office of Dr. Davison. It was moved and seconded at the grave that the knife be presented to the Pioneer Society. It has not yet been decided what will be done with what remains of the old prospector.—Bodie Free Press.

A STRIKE was reported in the Cornish mine, near Nevada City, a few days ago. A 12-inch body of quartz was developed through which runs a streak an inch thick, which is described as being solid gold.

IT is reported that several men have struck diggings that pay on American river, some five or six miles above Sacramento.

ALL the Arizona papers are urging the establishment of a mint in that Territory.

LETTER FROM CERRO GORDO.

CERRO GORDO, Inyo Co., Cal., Oct. 30.

MESSRS EDITORS: Perhaps a few lines from this isolated region may not prove uninteresting to your readers, premising that they are acquainted with the history of this vigorous little camp. We may mention that for the beauty of its views, its glorious sunsets and gorgeous sunrises mirrored in Owens Lake, its inexhaustible mineral wealth and salubrious climate, besides other gifts and blessings, too numerous to mention, it cannot be surpassed.

This camp was discovered by an obscure prospector. Baudry and Belshaw became its self-constituted guardians and patrons. Lacking in its infancy the support of capital, its wonderful vitality was thoroughly tested; yet it thrived, developed and rewarded these two pioneer miners by creating them millionaires. It contributed largely to the wealth of the State, the nation and the world generally; made homes and gave bread to thousands, and has been for the last ten years the backbone of Inyo county. It has always been a camp solvent, solid and self-sustaining.

This mountain range is seamed with rich mineral deposits. There are scores of locations within a few miles of here with as good surface prospects as that of the Union mine, but owing to a variety of circumstances these mines remain undeveloped. The men who own them are poor, and after long and weary waiting for something to turn up, have passed into that state which precedes despair. The sequestration of these claims is a detriment to the camp; most of the ground is taken up by parties who are unable to develop a mine and are unwilling that others should do so. They cannot be blamed; at present there is no practical remedy for the evil. The enterprising though small minority of prospectors who continue in the face of many obstacles the work of developing their claims deserve the highest commendation. The rich discoveries made within the last few years in this vicinity have created quite an excitement among prospectors; their numbers have increased, their ardor stimulated, and new discoveries are daily recorded. We prophecy a bright future for Inyo county. Heretofore this camp has been afflicted with periodical visits from impecunious creatures claiming to represent capital. They exami e innumerable prospect holes, collect several hundred pounds of specimens, and if they possess the funds ship them to the city, and that is the last we hear of them. These gentlemen are undoubtedly penniless adventurers, know nothing about quartz, and probably never possessed sufficient capital to have one-tenth of their valuable collection assayed. They have seriously and grievously injured the reputation of the camp.

The furnace has been running steadily for the past three weeks, turning out lots of bullion, which for obvious reasons is shipped in its base state. No doubt the metal will be refined when necessity demands it.

The Union mine shut down to-day. there are conflicting stories afloat as to the reason. It surely is not owing to the scarcity of ore.

Blatherskite is an expressive word, and our diction were not complete without it. Its wonderful adaptability and fitness will be appreciated when applied to the author of the Chicago-Mexican letter published in the Call. The writer, an American, residing in Mexico, writes to his friend in Chicago, privately as it were, yet informing the civilized world that there are solid mountains of gold and silver in that country. Truly, this is a desperate attempt at sensational writing. Such a whale story could only emanate from the brain of an idiot.

To the philosopher this little camp of only a few hundred inhabitants would form an interesting study. Here the human passions become thoroughly developed. Pride, love, hate and jealousy wage fierce war. Whether t is owing to the isolated state of society, high altitude, cosmical changes, or bad whisky, we are unable to determine.

Our school teacher is a gifted young lady of rare merit. She is a general favorite, and there is a good natured rivalry between the eligible young men of the town. Since her arrival our morals have assumed a higher tone.

Yours, &c.,

THE Eureka Sentinel proposes a new style of leg competition. It holds that all the misery attendant upon a prize fight or a walking match can be obtained from a standing match, if it is only practiced sufficiently. Surely, a dozen men can be found willing to stand in a row till they fall from exhaustion, for gate money. "We have some talented standers here in Eureka—gentlemen who have been pacing on the street corners for years without apparent fatigue—who would be extremely formidable in a contest of this kind. They can at least find backers among those who have observed their industry in this regard during the years gone by."

LONGEST RAILWAY BRIDGE IN EUROPE.—According to the Weizer Zeitung the bridge over the Rhine at Wesel is the longest railway bridge on the continent. It comprises a hundred and seven arches or openings. Of these there are four in the center of the stream 313 feet wide, the less considerable including 35 or 60 feet each, 6 of 61 feet, 14 of 40 feet, 18 of 12 feet, 10 of 20 feet, and 20 of 30 feet. The total length of the bridge or viaduct, including the part on piles is, therefore, 6,220 feet, or 1,952 metres.

THE Memphis Avalanche proposes that the old town be entirely destroyed, and that a new Memphis be built at a place known as Bartlett, eleven miles distant. It suggests that "half a dozen railroad tracks" could do all the transporting between the new city and the river.

A SHORT time ago a Leadville jury got mad at the Judge, and ordered the Sheriff to lock the Judge up for a couple of weeks, "just to take some of the style out of him." And to his Honor's great exasperation he was incontinently lugged off to jail, and is now in durance vile, while the case is going quietly on with the most popular barkeeper in town occupying the judicial chair.

Lone Pine—General Mention.

For the first time in many months an INDEPENDENT representative the other day managed to get so far away from home as to reach Lone Pine, distant some sixteen miles, and our neighboring town to the southward. It is right here proper to acknowledge the courtesy of Supt. Taylor and the agents of the Southern Stage Line, through which the trip was accomplished. In a general way, Lone Pine is pretty much the same as it has been since the lively times of '67. Its business interests, however, have fallen off proportionately with the decrease of Swansea, Cerro Gordo and Cottonwood. There are many unoccupied buildings, but their owners have such faith in the town's prosperous future that property is still held at strong figures. Though in itself a very garden spot and surrounded with productive and valuable ranches, Lone Pine is the natural and central supply point of a vast number of mines. To-day there seems but one explanation of the fact that there is not twenty companies at work in and about Cerro Gordo instead of the one—and that is, plainly speaking, that M. W. Belshaw has discouraged other capital in order to perpetuate his own monopoly. We shall again refer to this subject, it being mentioned here only so far as affecting Lone Pine.

The business men of Lone Pine, almost without exception, are entitled to the credit of fighting hard for their own salvation and that of the county. Among them are experienced miners, who, realizing the vast opportunities comprised in the mineral wealth which surrounds them, have put every spare dollar into their mines—into the work of really developing the country. More particularly in the new Swansea belt of mines, at present best represented by the Indiana claim of Boley & Tuttle, have they been successful in developing good ledges. New and important discoveries are of almost daily occurrence. The present difficulty is a total lack of convenient and fair-dealing reduction works. In this, however, there is a very probable relief in the starting up of the old Swansea works. Mr. M. A. Wheeler has been about settling up all outstanding financial matters; Capt. J. M. Keeler has arrived, and it is rumored that Mr. S. D. Woodhull, of this place, will be tendered the superintency of the furnace after its reconstruction.

Several residents of the place, with congenial tastes for the pursuit, have succeeded in getting some splendid orchards, vineyards and gardens. The most notable is that of Dr. Colleau, who has fruit in infinite variety and very considerable quanity, raised more for pleasure than profit. S. Zaun has a pleasure resort in his orchard and vineyard, the yield of the latter being, by his own hands, converted into some excellent wine. In the grounds adjoining his brewery, John Lubken has a beautiful Summer house densely shaded by grape vines and fruit trees. In his orchard may be seen a tree bearing large, full grown apples of a second crop for this year. These facts will tend to show some of the advantages of the region as a place for making beautiful homes, as well as indicating its future importance horticulturally.

THE KEARSARGE.—During the week, up to Thursday, 24 feet additional hight has been made in the new up raise, making 30 in all, and all up to the last in the same fine body and character of ore as mentioned last week. Good progress is being made in the Cliff mine crosscut, which is now in a little over 50 feet. No extensive body of ore has yet been developed, although a considerable amount altogether is being found scattered through a clay stratum on the foot-wall, and which of itself is considered a most promising indication. As Supt. Gray has been disabled by sickness since he went to the city, no meeting of the Trustees has yet been held at which to mark out an expected change in the line of operations at the mine, looking to reconstructing the mill, etc.

MONTANA.—In a letter to Sheriff Moore, ex-Sheriff Mulkey, formerly of this county, now in Montana, speaks in high terms of the capabilities and established general prosperity of that Territory. Its mineral and agricultural resources both, he thinks, are superior to anything west of the Rocky Mountains, and there is a good opening there for a great many additional people. Mr. Mulkey's old friends in this section will be pleased to know that he and his are prospering fairly in every way.

RELIGIOUS.—Rev. Mr. Willis delivered his introductory sermon here last Sunday, the tenor of which together with his pleasing address, yet earnest manner, augurs well for a good and permanent standing with people generally, and a career of decided usefulness. Sunday next he preaches at Bishop, and again, on the Sunday following, in this place. By that time he will, we presume, be enabled to extend services to other points in reach.

DISTRICT COURT.—His Honor Judge Reed is announced to open Court in this place on Monday next, his arrival being expected to-morrow. We are also informed that the distinguished lawyers, Messrs. Reddy, Bennett, Gen. Kittrell and Mr. Greathouse will be in attendance to look after the interests of their clients in important cases.

THE VENIRE.—A venire for fifty trial jurors in the District Court has been issued, returnable at 10 o'clock, A. M., next Wednesday, the 5th. Court will, however, likely convene and commence business on Monday, the regular day.

HELD FOR POSTAGE.—A letter addressed to "Terray McGowan, Mason Valley, Esmeralda county, Nevada," is held at the Independence Postoffice for unpaid postage.

"Black Harry" Beaten.

The Carson Appeal, October 26, has the following regular report of the late race:

A large attendance was at the track yesterday to see the long talked of race between "Dusty Bob" and "Black Harry," a 500-yards dash for $500 a side. The pools were selling about two to one on "Dusty Bob," a fact which seemingly surprised all old horsemen, as "Black Harry" boasts of a splendid record, and in this particular race he was supposed to be at his best. After the usual time that is invariably consumed in getting a start, the horses came home like breaking sticks, "Dusty Bob" winning the race and money. For obvious reasons the dash was not timed.

SUMMARY.

N. A. M. & M. Society's track, Carson City, Nevada. Match race, 500 yard dash, for $500 a side.

H. Lufkins names br. g. Dusty Bob.....1
J. Williams names bl. g. Black Harry....2

In another item the same paper refers to the matter thusly:

The rich camp, Bodie, gets it all around. The citizens of that death-dealing burg who were here yesterday, fell very heavy on the race between between "Dusty Bob" and "Black Harry." The latter horse is owned in Bodie, and as he has made pretty good time in that high altitude, the Bodie sports naturally thought he would do great wonders on a track 4,000 feet lower, so they bet all their money, jewelry, coats, pants and shirts on "Harry." Poor fellows! they lost heavily and the most of them are broke.

The horse "Black Harry" is a well-known Inyoite, and we presume many of the "Bodie sports" referred to hail from this region also. Among our best informed turfmen there is a difference of opinion—some claim that the race was a "chuck" or throw-off, while others opine that Harry has met his match in Dusty Bob. In the account quoted, the sentence "For obvious reasons the dash was not timed," may mean that it was not worth placing upon record or was so fast as to spoil profitable handling of the horses in match races hereafter. Dusty Bob is said in reality to be the noted "Red Oaks," the "dark horse" which failed to start in the last races at the Taboose track. In any event, Johnny Williams struck a terrible tough crowd when he tackled Hank Luffkin and kindred sports. To win in that country it would be necessary to take along his own feed, stream of water, shoers, attendants and guards generally, together with honest starters, timers and judges.

ARRIVALS.—Among the arrivals of the past week were Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Briggs, of Bishop; Mrs. Nathan Rhine and two children, J. S. Rothschild and A. W. Eibeshutz. Welcome home.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.—An effort will be made at the school house to-morrow afternoon, to organize a regular Sunday school, or rather reorganize the old one.

Final Proof.

The Land Office at this place has received from the department of the Interior instructions to the effect that it is there desired that the testimony offered by pre-emption and homestead claimants at the time of making final proof of their personal qualifications, and compliance with the requirements of the law under which they claim, shall be that of disinterested witnesses, as nearly free from objection as possible; and with this end in view the Register and Receiver have been instructed by Acting Commissioner Armstrong to reject the testimony of all persons who are members of, or immediately connected with, the family of a claimant, except in such cases where it is impossible or impracticable for the claimant to furnish other testimony. In such excepted cases the claimant is to furnish an affidavit of the facts, showing to the satisfaction of the Register and Receiver the impossibility or impracticability of otherwise substantiating his claims, and then such testimony may be received as the claimant is able to procure, the Land Office being cautioned to elicit from the witnesses the true state of facts relative to the claimant's right to make the desired entry.

In contested cases, the circular says, the testimony of relatives should be received, but will be considered only in so far as it corroborates or is in accordance with the general tenor of the evidence of disinterested persons.

Another circular calls attention to a circular dated the 24th ultimo, directed to the United States Surveyor General, which precludes United States Deputy Mineral Surveyors from acting either directly or indirectly as attorneys in mineral claims. The Register and Receiver are directed to report to the General Land Office any violation of such order coming to their knowledge.—Bodie Standard.

THERE is absolutely no excuse for Bodie. The citizens of that burg have been importuned time and again to subscribe funds for the erection of a church—but nary a subscribe. Yet these same ungodly Bodieites, between their regular suicides and accidents, to say nothing of the usual death rate, are patronizing the other world in greater proportion to the extent of their population than any other mining camp in the State. They worship only Mammon, over there in Bodie, and some of these days God Almighty will come along and give that wicked town a fearful shaking up—a taste of Sodom and Gomorrah, so to speak. True, we have no church in Mammoth yet, but then we have subscribed $500 to help the unfortunate Gospel Swampers of Bishop Creek out of the mire, as they need a church right away, and we can wait till Spring.—Mammoth Herald.

AT Bodie last Wednesday, G. W. Garribee saw Larry Flynn, who owned a lot of teams, on the street in good health, and five hours after went to call on him. He got to his room just in time to see his dead body being nailed up in a coffin.—Carson Appeal, Oct. 25.

OF INTEREST TO EMPLOYES.

INDEPENDENCE, Inyo Co., Cal., Oct. 27.

MESSRS. EDITORS: As a very important decision has just been rendered by your Justice, Mr. T. A. Gardner, which very materially affects the interest of both the County Assessor and all employés and agents of all and every corporation or company in the county, I deem it but due to both that they should be informed of the particulars of the case in question, and of the judgment rendered therein.

On the 29th of April last Mr. J. F. Dillon, the County Assessor, called at the Emigrant mine, in Lee District, Inyo county, for the purpose of collecting poll, road and hospital taxes from the employés of the company, and for his own convenience tendered the signed receipts of such men as were then in the employ of the company, and to whom the company were indebted for labor performed, to Mr. Peter Taylor, the then Superintendent of the Emigrant Company, for distribution and collection when the men should be next paid off. Mr. Taylor agreed to assist the Assessor in the matter, and said that if he (the Assessor) would turn over the receipts to Mr. Huger, the company's bookkeeper, in the office, that Mr. H. would enter the amounts on the company's books against the men, and would give him (the Assessor) credit for the same, and that he (Mr. Taylor) would forward him (the Assessor) the money as soon after the next pay day as possible. Mr. Dillon then went to the office and delivered the receipts, with the above instructions, to Mr. Huger. Shortly after this Mr. Huger received an appointment and was duly qualified as Deputy Assessor for Lee District for the purpose only, as was distinctly stated in his letter of instructions accompanying the appointment, of registering voters in that district. There was some correspondence after this between both Messrs. Taylor and Huger, and Mr. Dillon, from the latter urging payment, and from the former assuring Mr. Dillon that they were doing and would continue to do all in their power to have the matter satisfactorily settled as soon as possible.

Four months later the company were thrown into bankruptcy without having paid off a single man to whom the aforesaid tax receipts had been issued by Mr. Huger, under instructions from the Superintendent of the E. S. M. Co., through Mr. Dillon, the Assessor, himself, as sworn to by him in court.

Nearly a month after the company had been declared insolvent, the Assessor, Mr. Dillon, learning that Mr. Huger, the company's late bookkeeper, had some private funds of his own deposited in the hands of Mr. Harmon, of Darwin, served a garnishee upon the same, not only for the full amount of all the tax receipts issued by him, under instructions from said Assessor, but for three other sets of tax receipts, amounting to $6 each, one of which, when duly sworn, he (Mr. Dillon) acknowledged to have been made out and handed by himself to Dr. N. R. Carson, then staying at the Emigrant mine, in charge of the Hartford mine in the neighborhood. The other two were for men at that time employed by Dr. Carson, who subsequently swore out an affidavit that they had never received a tax receipt of this year from Mr. Huger, or any one else, nor had they paid any money to any one for the same. And upon investigation of the stubs of the Assessor's receipt book, no such receipts could be found as having been issued.

The case was called before Justice Gardner, of this place, on the 20th instant, and nearly a whole day was spent in most eloquent pleadings and exhaustive argument by counsel of both plaintiff and defendant, the former, Judge A. R. Conklin, and the latter, Attorney S. P. Moffat, both of Independence. And, strange to say, the Justice actually insulted the uncommon intelligence of all present, past and to come, by deciding that the defendant could no more be held personally responsible for the tax receipts given to him to issue and collect for the convenience of the Assessor, than he could be held personally responsible for the thousands of dollars' worth of goods which he, the defendant, had received from Messrs. Waterman & O'Brion, of Darwin, from time to time, for the company's employés and which were charged, like the said tax receipts, as per instructions, to the employés and credited to Messrs. W. O'B. on the company's books; and the Justice actually asserted, or at least thought (i. e., if I am any reader of physiognomy?) that any clerk, or employé of any company or incorporation who should receive goods or valuables of any description for his employers, whether he receipted for the same or not, could be as justly held personally liable for the same. In other words, that should Messrs. Harris & Rhine's clerk or bookkeeper make so bold, at any unguarded moment, as to receive or receipt for in any shape or manner (for their employers) goods, receipted bills or valuables of any description, that Messrs. H. & R. could, with equal legality, refuse to account for the same, and that the said bookkeeper or clerk could, with equal justice, be held personally responsible for the same. And that if such a custom were proved legal, God help the bookkeepers, clerks, agents, and superintendents of Inyo county, when the Assessor comes round next year, and God help the Assessor to collect his own taxes; for I fear others would even be discourteous enough to refuse to assume so much of the Assessor responsibilities and to do so much of his (the Assessor's) work gratis.

Deeming this important decision might be of some value to many of your readers, I have taken the liberty of giving this brief statement of the facts of the case, hoping that you will kindly make it known to them through the medium of your valuable paper.

S. S.—I have just been informed that the above case has been appealed by Judge Conklin to the County Court.

L. P. HUGER.

A QUERY.

MESSRS. EDITORS: In reference to an article in another column of this paper upon the case of J. F. Dillon, County Assessor, vs. L. P. Huger, late bookkeeper of the E. S. M. Co., we would beg to have you answer, in your next issue, a very pertinent legal question in which every agent, clerk or employé of every corporation or company in the county must feel personally interested, namely: If the County Assessor chooses to leave, for his own convenience, any number of blank poll, road or hospital tax receipts, signed by himself, in the hands of any superintendent, agent, bookkeeper, clerk or employé of any corporation or company, to be issued and amount due on the same to be collected by them from parties at the time employed by said corporation or company, and if said corporation or company should fail or refuse to pay the amount of said receipts issued by request of the Assessor himself, can the Assessor legally hold said superintendent, agent, bookkeeper, clerk or employé personally responsible for the amount of the tax receipts so issued? And if so, cannot any party so receiving such receipts demand from the Assessor a written statement, releasing said party from any and every personal responsibility in the matter? And if such a statement were given, would it not legally release said party from any and every personal responsibility in the matter? And if said statement was refused, could said party be legally compelled to assume such personal responsibility for which he was to receive no remuneration whatsoever. In fine, can a County Assessor legally compel any one not his legalized assistant and deputy to perform any of his official duties, or assume any of his official responsibilities, free gratis or otherwise? By authoritatively answering the above queries you will greatly oblige many of your

SUBSCRIBERS.

[As the matter is yet to be heard on appeal in the County Court, we think it best to await the decision of that tribunal before attempting to comply with the above request.—EDS.]

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1.....1879

A YOUNG gentleman happened to sit at church in a pew adjoining one which a young lady occupied for whom he conceived a sudden and violent passion, was desirous of entering into a courtship on the spot, and the exigency of the case suggested the following plan: He politely handed his fair neighbor a Bible open with a pin stuck in the following text—second epistle of John, verse fifth: "And now I beseech thee, lady, not as though I wrote a new commandment unto thee, but that which we had from the beginning, that we love one another." She returned it pointing to the second chapter of Ruth, verse tenth: "Then she fell on her face and bowed herself to the ground and said unto him, why have I found grace in thine eyes, seeing that I am a stranger?" He returned the book pointing to the thirteenth verse of the third epistle of John: "Having many things to write unto you, I would not write with paper and ink, but I trust to come unto you and speak face to face," From the above interview a marriage took place.

A NEW WEAPON.—The Remington Bros.' arms manufactory is turning out a new gun, the Remington-Keene gun—a weapon that has never been described in print. The inventor is Mr. John W. Keene. Years ago he was Superintendent of the Utica Pistol Works. He has been practically interested in firearms for thirty-two years, and is today a master of his profession. It is predicted by those competent to speak that the magazine-gun in question will work a complete revolution in military and naval arms. The principle of construction is entirely new, and in perfecting the weapon Mr. Keene has expended some five years of thought and experimental study. How to make a gun that could be fired effectively ten times in succession—a gun light enough for the private to carry on the march—was the problem which the inventor has finally solved.—S. F. Call.

A VALUABLE SERVANT.—Paddy said that the toad was a "beautiful bird;" and really there is nothing very objectionable about the little fellow, who is certainly very useful in his way. Toads live upon beetles, bugs, grubs, flies and such small game. They are easily tamed, and will learn to accompany a weeder about the garden and pick up such morsels as squash-bugs, cut-worms and potato-beetles as are thrown them. A toad has been known to put away within him over a hundred different kinds of bugs and wink for more. Such servants as this surely ought to be recognized, and all such accommodated with board and lodging in the garden. No animal is more inoffensive or minds his own business more closely. He is a valuable assistant, and should by all means be encouraged.

RELATIONS BETWEEN MORALS AND FOOD.—Dr. Book, of Leipsic, is responsible for the following note on the relations between morals and what people eat and drink: The nervousness and peevishness of our times are chiefly attributable to tea and coffee; the digestive organs of confirmed coffee drinkers are in a state of chronic derangement, which reacts upon the brain, producing fretful and lachrymose moods. Fine ladies addicted to strong coffee have a characteristic temper, which I might describe as a mania for acting the persecuted saint. Chocolate is neutral in its physical effects, and is really the most harmless of our fashionable drinks. The snappish, petulant humor of the Chinese is certainly to be ascribed to their immoderate fondness for tea.

The New York Tribune thinks one of the most interesting features in the development of the Western mining country is the rapid progress of mushroom towns in the appliances of civilization. The spectacle of the quick growth of schools, libraries, churches and newspapers in mining camps that have sprung up almost in a day, is striking and encouraging. Either common report has done injustice to the gold and silver hunters of past generations or these things have not been characteristic of the former settlements of adventurers in the far West.

JAMES SHOWERS, who was elected Sheriff of Mono county at the last general election, has probably got himself into a scrape. The law commands the filing of bonds and oath of office within ten days. This it appears he neglected to do. The present incumbent, Pete Taylor, will contest his right to qualify. As it now stands, and what the agitation will result in, cannot yet be determined.—Bodie News.

ACCORDING to figures compiled by the Alta the population of the Pacific Slope has increased from 1870 to date from 831,038 to 1,266,000.

Gen. Grant on the Comstock.

The Virginia Enterprise of the 1st instant contains a full account of the reception of Gen. Grant and party on the Comstock, from which we extract a few of the most interesting items concerning them while visiting the City of Bonanzas. It is represented as being a grand affair. The Comstockers wined and dined their distinguished visitor; also toasted and roasted him—in the lower levels. It says:

The party first inspected the assay office at the Consolidated Virginia works, where the bullion taken from the several mines of the bonanza firm is melted, formed into bars and assayed. About twenty tons of bullion in assayed bars were piled up in the hall of the assay office, constituting rather a novel sight to unaccustomed eyes, yet being much less impressive than would be the same amount of silver and gold stacked up in the shape of coin. In the huge unparted bars our bullion looks like something much cheaper than gold and silver coin.

Leaving the assay office the party went to the C. and C. shaft, through which they were to descend to the lower levels of the Consolidated Virginia and California mines. Some of our people had expressed the opinion that the General would prefer going into a pretty hot battle to descending one of our deep shafts, but he showed not the slightest sign of hesitation or trepidation. Col. Fair said: "He was just as cool as an old stager." Mrs. Grant was also perfectly self-possessed, though a sight of the mouth of the great shaft with a dense volume of steam rushing up from it to the hight of 30 feet was a thing not calculated to reassure.

As all were required to discard their usual attire and assume the gray woolen hirt and pantaloons of the miner, with heavy shoes and coarse felt hat to match, there was not a little joking; when thus rigged out the party assembled about the shaft preparatory to descending.

The party descended on a three-decker cage and made the first halt at the 1750 level. The drifts, galleries and stations had been well lighted up for the occasion, and Mrs. Grant expressed herself as being agreeably disappointed at finding all so dry, light and comfortable. Her idea was that the lower levels would be found dark, wet and muddy, whereas she found all dry and light, with a floor beneath her feet and walls of plank and timbers on all sides.

After inspecting the 1750 level the ladies returned to the surface in charge of Col. Fair, while Mr. Mackay conducted the gentlemen of the party down to the 2150 level. This level inspected they went to the 2350 level, the lowest point.

While on the 2150 level they went out into the drift running to the Best and Belcher mine, where was found a temperature of 120 degrees. This is is hot for old and well-seasoned miners, yet Gen. Grant did not complain, though he must have found it exceedingly uncomfortable. He asked many questions about the timbering, running of drifts and other work in progress in the lower levels.

GRANT'S TRIP THROUGH THE SUTRO TUNNEL.

After breakfast the General and party, in miner's rig, got aboard the cars prepared for their use, and started on their underground journey of nearly three and three-quarters miles (20,170 feet) up under Virginia City.

Determined to be with the General as long as possible, the people of Sutro, to the number of 200—men women and children—boarded and filled some ten cars and joined the party.

As this novel procession advanced along the tunnel (which was finely lighted up) those forming it sang the "Star Spangled Banner," "Marching Through Georgia," and the "Sweet By-and-By," etc., awakening wild and cavernous echoes.

The north lateral drift was first inspected, then that running southward. At all the points visited where groups of workmen were encountered, three rousing cheers were given for Gen. Grant. Thus the General has been honored on the earth, beneath the earth (1,600 feet below the surface), and he has now only to get into a balloon to be honored above the earth.

After viewing the lateral drifts, the party entered the main tunnel and moved westward to the Savage shaft. At this point a delay of over half an hour occurred before the ascent to the surface could be made. This was owing to a misunderstanding of some kind. It had at first been arranged to come up through the Savage shaft, but afterward it was thought it would be better to ascend through the Hale and Norcross, it being much cooler that way. Accordingly the main drift leading to the Norcross shaft was splendidly lighted up, and flowers and evergreens placed at various points, as an agreeable surprise, but by some oversight the party below were not notified o the change of route, therefore came up through the Savage, when they were not expected.

Gen. Grant was much interested in what he saw in the tunnel, and asked many questions in order to get at the true inwardness of everything.

When the General left for Sutro, Mrs. Grant, in company with Mrs. J. G. Fair, Mrs. M. G. Gillette and Mrs. Mayor Young, drove out to the large reservoir of the Water Company, on the Ophir grade. The drive is a very pleasant one, and affords many fine views of rugged and picturesque scenery on the way, with magnificent snow-clad peaks in sight in various directions along the main range of the Sierra Nevada mountains. At the reservoir Mrs. Grant was treated to a novel sight in the schools of beautiful trout that are to be seen disporting in its beautiful waters. Not only did she see the trout, but also caught them, much to her delight. She is now doubtless of the opinion that almost any one can catch trout, and so almost any one may in that fishing place, where the trout are tame enough to come to the edge of the water and nibble one's fingers. Quite a basket of trout was caught in order that Mrs. Grant might take a supply on board the train for use on the way.

The Union shaft was visited by Gen. Grant after his trip through the Sutro tunnel. He was accompanied to the shaft by Col. Fair, John W. Mackay, Gov. Kinkead and Mayor Young, and was greatly interested in the huge machinery now to be seen at that point—the finest and heaviest on the lode.

MEMOIRS.—THE INYO INDEPENDENT of the 25th again puts in an appearance so bright, cheerful and newsy, that pleasant reminiscences of that part of the country are too frequently brought forth by exiled Taboose-eaters who always greet the paper as an old friend. But the little paper has had its trials, and among some of them which are too funny to suppress, is the raid of the "Happy Family." This family is legion, and the male head of which—a fine old gentleman and the progenitor of some twenty sons—got entangled one day in a family row. The result was the tearing up of Uncle Abe's blacksmith shop and the pitching of sledge hammers, etc., at each other till the officers put in an appearance and established peace. The affair struck THE INDEPENDENT man as somewhat ludicrous, and in writing it up, mentioned the old gentleman as the "venerable sire." The issue was struck off, and "ye lokle" was scratching new ideas out of his head, when in filed, in succession, about sixteen of the aforesaid stalwart sons—the lightest in weight pulling down 220 pounds. "Ye lokle" gasped and demanded, "Lord, is there any more of you?" The spokesman then struck an attitude, and his red hair standing on end, and his finger—the size of a sapling—pointing to the clause in the paper mentioning "ye venerable sire", demanded, "who wrote that article?" "Ye lokle" didn't remember exactly, and when the young giant, overcome with tears trickling down his red cheeks, blurted out: "We shan't allow no son-of-a-gun what treads the earth to call our father an old stud horse!" At this point the senior emerged from among the cases and blandly explained that "sire" had more definitions than that of a male horse.—Bodie Standard.

HANK MONK drove Gen. Grant from Lake Tahoe to Carson. This famous stage driver has had the greatest men of the country on the box beside him. It is reported that he once told Horace Greeley, "keep your seat, Horace, I'll git you thar' on time." This, however, is more or less traditional. Hank is a character, of course. He has "drove stage" ever since there was any stages on the Pacific Coast, and has never killed a passenger. This is partly owing to the excessive care always exercised by Mr. Monk in driving, but principally to his strict temperance principles.—Stock Report.

FROM Cerro Gordo to Bridgeport very few men could have been found who didn't think the half-mile horse "Black Harry" was a world-beater. At Carson recently he was matched against "Dusty Bob" and his backers are straggling homeward with purses in a very shrunken condition. A horse "fit to run for a man's life" sometimes gets left.—Esmeralda Herald.

THE philosopher who advised young men to take the "bull by the horns" in all emergencies of life, is himself the first one to jump a fence when danger threatens.

The Iron Boom.

Although we are not producers on this coast of such articles as iron pipe, sheet iron, nails and other articles of the same class, and the prices in this market not controlled by those at the Eastern manufactories, yet we may regard the late advance in the price as an evidence of prosperity, which is returning to the country in general, and is making itself felt on this coast. Messrs. W. W. Montague & Co., of San Francisco, in a letter, speaking of the matter, say: In the early part of July the first signs of an advance in the iron market were visible. No great advance took place until the latter part of August. The first week of July pig iron was selling in New York at $18 50 and $19 per ton for foundry, and today it is difficult to obtain the same grade of iron at $30, an advance of 55 per cent., with a prospect of its reaching $35. Never before in the history of the iron trade in the United States has the advance been so sudden, so rapid and so great in such a short time. The question asked: What has caused this enhancement of values? Demand, which is far in excess of supply. What has created such a demand? General prosperity in business. After six years of the most extreme commercial depression throughout the country, the United States may be said to have fairly entered upon a new era of prosperity.

There are deposits of iron in this State, Nevada and Utah, but owing to their remoteness from fuel they are valueless. There is scarcely a gold or silver mine on the coast in which the metal iron is not present in some form, but usually the percentage is too small or the cost of extraction too great to make it available. And yet California, Nevada and Utah are great consumers of iron. Leaving the consumption of iron for railroad purposes entirely out of the question, the Pacific Coast uses millions of tons of iron in its mining industries. For the wear and tear of battery, shoes, dies and amalgamating pans, an enormous amount of iron is used. It is used for pump-column in the mines, for pipe for conducting water to mining towns, for machinery in quartz mills and in hoisting works. All the raw material and a large quantity of manufactured iron in the shape of machinery and pipe we import, and yet the iron manufacturing industry of California is a large one, and disburses millions of dollars to the workmen in foundries and machine shops.

The iron boom is not a benefit to this coast, because we must import the bulk of the raw material; but with the advance in price it might be possible that our iron deposits could be worked to a profit could capital be induced to take hold of the matter.—Stock Report.

AT no time since this camp was started has there been so many tough, hard characters in town as at present. They have gradually drifted in from outside camps; from unprosperous sections of Nevada, and the cow-counties of this State. Elaborate accounts of Bodie's prosperity and rapid growth have gone broadcast throughout the coast, and these vampires—bunions on honest industry and thrift—have been induced to come here. Four-time losers from Pioche; opium smokers from Virginia; black legs from Eureka; demoralized short-card players from along the line of the C. P. road; bilks and toughs from Reno; ten-cent gamblers from the cow counties, and old battle-axes from all over. They are all here in grand array. Each one a sewer of iniquity and demoralization. They are dependent on the four-dollar-a-day men for subsistence; they are ever on the alert to fleece some one or to "borrow a half," and are the most accomplished restaurant and boarding-house wreckers.—Bodie Free Press.

A WASHINGTON dispatch, dated October 31, to the N. Y. Times, says: It has been ascertained by the Auditor of the Pacific Railroad accounts that the Central Pacific Railroad Company, under the Thurman Act, is required to pay into the Sinking Fund for the year ending December 31, 1878, about $1,000,000. The same officer estimates the Central Company, for the current calendar year, will have to pay into the Sinking Fund about $900,000. These amounts are exclusive of the sum due the company for services rendered. No dividend can be declared by the company until the requirements of the law are complied with. The Union Pacific Company, in consequence of the large amount of business transacted for the Government during the current year, will not be called upon to pay any cash into the Sinking Fund, as the services rendered the Government will, it is believed, exceed the amount required from it for that fund.

BEST ANTISEPTIC.—Prof. Klebs, of Sprague, announces that the benzoate of soda is the best antiseptic in all infectious diseases. It acts, as the experiments of the author show, very powerfully. It is claimed that a daily dose of from 30 to 50 grammes to a full grown man will render the poison of diphtheria inoperative. The benzoate is prepared by dissolving crystallized benzoic acid in water, neutralizing at a slight heat with a solution to caustic soda, drying and then allowing the solution to crystallize over sulphuric acid under a bell-glass. Large doses do not appear to be absolutely necessary. Good results may be obtained by the daily administration of about 12 grammes.

AN exchange has an article on "How to run a newspaper." This should be read only by editors, as every other person in the world knows just how a newspaper ought to be run.

THE bullion from the late Mammoth clean-up has been melted into bars, and it is understood, will be shipped in a day or two. We have not yet learned the exact amount of it, but it is not likely to vary much from the figures last published. The mill has resumed operations, and is again hammering industriously away. LATER.—Four bars of bullion were shipped this morning. There were 3,872 ounces, which at $6 an ounce, which is about the rate, we understand, would amount to something like $23,000. We do not give this as the correct figure, but it approximates it.—Mammoth City Times, Nov. 1.

"HAVE you enjoyed our strawberry festival, boys?" "Oh! yes, sir." "Then," asked the teacher, seeking to append a moral, "if you had slipped into my garden and picked those strawberries without my leave, would they have tasted as good as now?" Every little boy in that stained and sticky company shrieked: "No, sir!" "Why not?" "Cause," said little Thomas, with the cheerfulness of conscious virture, "then we shouldn't have had sugar and cream with 'em."

ETIQUETTE requires that a call should not be more than fifteen minutes. This rule does not apply to newspaper offices. Editors don't have anything to do except receive visitors.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8.....1879

THE Senators of the Democratic side whose terms expire with the present Congress are Eaton, of Connecticut; Bayard, of Delaware; Jones, of Florida; McDonald, of Indiana; Whyte, of Maryland; Cockrell, of Missouri; Randolph of New Jersey; Kernan, of New York; Thurman, of Ohio; Wallace, of Pennsylvania; Bailey, of Tennessee; Maxey, of Texas; Withers of Virginia, and Hereford, of West Virginia. The retiring Repblicans are Booth, of California; Hamlin, of Maine; Dawes, of Massachusetts; Chandler, of Michigan; McMillan, of Minnesota; Bruce, of Mississippi; Paddock, of Nebraska; Sharon, of Nevada: Burnside, of Rhode Island; Edmunds of Vermont, and Cameron of Wisconsin. The Senate now stand Democrats 41, Republicans 34; Independent 1. It will be possible, therefore, after 1881 to change the political complexion of the majority. Of the States from which the choice will be made the Republicans are reasonably certain of 12, the Democrats of 9. Of the doubtful States, if the Republicans should carry Connecticut, Indiana, New Jersey and New York, they would have a majority of 1 in the Senate.

GOV. IRWIN and Governor-elect Perkins have jointly appointed Hon. Thos. P. Stoney, present County Judge of Napa county, Hon. I. S. Belcher, of Marysville, and Hon. A. C. Freeman, of Sacramento, as a Commission to draft such laws and amendments to the Codes as in their judgment is necessary to make the system of Codes and Statutes conform to the requirements of the new Constitution. They will meet at once in Sacramento city and enter upon their duties. These appointments are not made in pursuance of any law, but the pr esent and elected Governors, in view of the fact that the time allowed for the session of the coming Legislature will be too limited whithin which to originate and consider the proper amendments to be made, deem it wise to create the Commission above named, leaving it to the Legislature to compensate the members for their labors.

THE INDEPENDENT is presumed to have "got a rap," when on Monday last His Honor discharged the jury until the following Wednesday, and in doing so expressed his surprise at the small amount of work before the Court notwithstanding the "talk" which had been raised about his long absence. His first business on hand was the trial of Welch for the murder of Sheriff Moore, and the delay and consequent cost to the jurymen and the county was due simply to the absence of the principal counsel. Our people are not to be blamed for that. In civil cases, the Court has disposed of many matters, as shown by the report. The people pay officers for their services and it is not very unreasonable that such should be expected from them.

THE mining stock mania must be taking a deep hold on the Eastern public. The New York Mail publishes this note of warning: "How long will it be before a drop in the market will cover the land with financial wrecks? How long will stocks that do not pay dividends keep on rising in value? The wisest and largest of our operators are studying this problem with undisguised anxiety. The more the fools rush in and the greater their 'fool luck,' the more serious are the men who understand the situation. Let prudent men, with moderate means, beware of yielding to the mania that is upsetting so many men and unfitting them for the exercise of a sober judgment."

SENATOR ZACHARIAH CHANDLER, of Michigan, was found dead in his bed at the Grand Pacific Hotel, in Chicago, on the morning of the 1st instant. The Senator filled many positions of public trust in Michigan, besides having served many terms in the United States Senate from that State. He was a man of marked ability, and very pronounced on anything which he undertook. Mr. Chandler was looked upon and regarded a "stalwart" Republican, and in his death that party has lost one of its ablest defenders.

LAST Monday, in San Francisco, two men named O'Brien and McDuff, made affidavits that they were employed by Henry Schwartz to swear falsely in the case of Dudley Haskell for the killing of George Schwartz, and that they did so to convict Haskell. They were arrested for subornation. From this showing it would appear that Haskell's chances of acquittal were daily brightening.

THE Supreme Court has decided that Frank McCoppin is entitled to the position of Harbor Commissioner, vice Capt. Aaron M. Burns. This decision carries with it eight months back pay.

THE BURNING OF THE STEAMER "JAPAN."

It will be pertinent to the subject in hand to remark right here at the start that "a small spark [sometimes] kindleth a terrible conflagration," or words to that effect: here, a short time ago, we, after the usual but somewhat disagreeable fashion of newspapers, made local mention of a visit to this locality of an ex-sea captain, and by way of further introduction, alluded to an unfortunate incident in his maritime career which, to many, would possess considerable interest. This referred to Capt. E. R. Warsaw and the burning of the P. M. S. S. Japan while under his command. Many circumstances, not necessary to recapitulate here, invested the loss of that costly vessel with more than usual interest at the time, which interest became all the more lively, even so long after the event, because of the presence of the commander here among us hundreds of leagues from the "great salt sea" itself, and almost thousands from the scene of an accident but for which no such visit would likely ever have been made. As the Captain came among us with the view of identifying his future fortunes with those of our own people, nothing was more natural than to wish to know whether we were to rank that possibly important circumstance as a sequence to the Captain's own mismanagement or otherwise in the great accident which caused him to quit the seas and look to the mountains instead. It became a pertinent inquiry, even here, whether this choice was a free one or enforced, whether he was refused further trust because of a failure in his most responsible duty, or had been credited with the fulfillment of perfect duty, but had became so impressed by the extent of a clearly unavoidable misfortune that he never afterwards sought or desired another such terribly trying and responsible position. That the latter assumption is substantially if not literally true admits of no question whatever. But as the contrary has been asserted—as our well-intended allusion to the matter was what led to this unjust misrepresentation, and has brought an unassuming gentleman before the public altogether against his inclinations—and as his personal appearance and address is such as to insure him the respect and liking of all with whom he comes in contact, we shall now with pleasure devote considerable space to an authoritative account of the events which give rise to this little controversy. We are enabled to do this through the voluntary efforts of a friend in the city who, becoming interested, sought out the Captain, and induced him to set out the facts and to forward us the original documents from which the subjoined extracts are copied. These are too explicit to require comment. Capt. Warsaw writes:

No. 300 PINE ST., ROOM 3,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Nov. 2, 1879.

EDITORS INDEPENDENT— Gentlemen: In your issue of the 20th ultimo I notice an article copied from the Lake District Times (nee Review), wherein Mr. Bogart states that

She [the Japan] was not burned at sea, but in the harbor of Yokohama; the fire did not originate from spontaneous combustion of Japan coal, but from other causes; the Captain was not exonerated, but on the contrary, was roundly censured for not having saved more of his Chinese passengers with the facilities at his command.

While I do not desire to create any nawspaper controversy upon a subject, the occurrence of which has left a lasting impression upon my mind, still I think it due to you to state a few facts and to correct Mr. Bogart of the Lake District Times, as he is laboring under false impressions. As the enclosed documents will show, "the Japan was burnt at midnight of the 17th of December, 1874, about 25 miles SE of Breaker Point on the coast of China, and 21 miles off the land. During the night it was blowing a moderate gale from the NE, with a cross, choppy sea, so that when the boats were lowered into the water they were totally unmanageable." I happened to present and in command of the Japan on that memorable night, and feel confident that neither Mr. Bogart or any other living being could have done more to save life than did my officers and myself. People on shore can hardly realize what a fire at sea is until they have passed through it; once they have, they will not be so ready to censure others, and when a man condemns his fellowman without having full particulars and facts to warrant he shows a low grovelling spirit. The Japan was burnt 1,380 miles from Yokohama. Mr. Bogart had best consult his charts. And the fire was caused by the "spontaneous combustion of Japan ruby coal." The Court of Inquiry was held in Hong Kong immediately after the steamer was burnt and the arrival of my officers and crew in that port. The Court consisted of two naval officers, two merchant ship masters and the U. S. Consul, and their decision was the reverse from a "round censure." The enclosed copy of letter [which we find in a time-tinted number of the Hong Kong Press, dated January 13, 1875.—EDS. INDEPENDENT.] was signed by every merchant of standing in Hong Kong, which speaks for itself and will years hence when the existence of Mr. Bogart will be forgotten.

I am personally acquainted with Mr. Bogart, editor of the Lake District Times, and fail to understand why he should make such mistakes unless he did it intentionally.

The America was destroyed by fire in Yokohama harbor, August 24, 1872, at midnight. It is supposed that she was fired by an incendiary. She was commanded by Capt. Seth Doane, now deceased. Yours, respectfully,

EDWARD R. WARSAW.

Following is a copy of the address above referred to:

TO CAPTAIN E. R. WARSAW, Commander of late P. M. S. S. Japan:

DEAR SIR:—The loss of the Pacific Mail S. S. Japan under your command, news of which first reached Hong Kong on the 19th ultimo, caused great consternation here, and the loss of life as at first reported, was regarded as another fearful visitation; subsequently, your safe arrival here, bringing the good news that you had been able to save so large a proportion of your passengers and crew was hailed with the greatest satisfaction.

We have watched the proceedings of the Naval Court of Inquiry, and have carefully read the details of that searching investigation, and we, your fellow citizens and other residents of this Colony, desire now to express our entire concurrence with the decision rendered by that Court, so far as it relates to yourself, and to convey to you in the fullest sense our appreciation and admiration of your conduct under circumstances, the terrible nature of which it is impossible could be exceeded. With a list of Chinese passengers numbering 420 and a crew of 130 souls, and the terrible element of fire threatening the destruction of your splendid vessel in the middle of a dark and stormy night, we have learned with admiration of the energy and intrepidity displayed, first to control the fire, and, when that proved unavailing, of the judgment and coolness which you exercised in the lowering of your boats and in making every preparation for saving the lives of those on board; the discipline shown as existing during the trying time reflects the highest credit upon yourself, your profession, and the service in which you were engaged.

We are confident that the fire was in no way caused by the laxity of duty of any one on board, and also that no human being could have done more than you did, with the means at your command, to resist the progress of the fire, and, while we sympathize most deeply with you in this terrible disaster, we think it may be some consolation to you to be assured that in the opinion of your fellow citizens and friends that you did your duty faithfully and well, that you have increased their confidence in you as an able and efficient commander, and as a brave and courageous man, and that your conduct throughout from the outbreak of the fire to the time when you, the last man, left your ship, and then devoted yourself to saving the drowning passengers, compels their admiratton.

We would also ask you to convey to your officers and crew our appreciation of their conduct, as they, almost without exception, stood nobly at their posts, and did all that brave men could do, until all further effort to save the ship was useless.

We hope soon to meet you here again with another command, and bidding you God speed on your homeward journey, we remain your friends and well wishers.

The foregoing was signed by eighty-two American and European firms doing business in Hong Kong—a list too long to give here. Of a number of personal letters showing the estimate in which Captain Warsaw's conduct was held, we shall give extracts from two only as fair specimens of all, and also of a lengthy editorial to the same effect in the Hong Kong Press. The writer of the first of the two following was the Port Harbor Master and a Commander in the English royal navy; the other was from one of the Captain's ex-passengers and an attaché of a foreign legation at Tokio, while the others, not here copied, were from other ex-passengers and officials of various nationalities.

HONG KONG, Jan. 13, 1875.

MY DEAR WARSAW:—My official position prevented my signing the address which has been presented to you, but you will perhaps permit me to express privately my sense of admiration of your conduct at one of the most trying times that can happen to the commander of a ship. I am satisfied that no one placed in similar circumstances could have shown greater coolness and self-possession than you did; and I hope to hear of you again being placed in command of one of the Company's steamers. * *

Yours very sincerely, W. J. THOMSETT.

TOKIO, Jan. 21, 1875.

MY DEAR CAPTAIN:—Ten thousand congratulaiions to you on your noble, manly and splendid conduct during the unfortunate burning of the Japan. You did your duty well, and nothing but praises must be showered upon you wherever you go.

Providence saved your life, which will contribute to save many more lives, besides the hundreds you have saved. All honor to you! * * J. F. ELMORE.

If the foregoing is not satisfactory to our well posted contemporary up the country, we will try and give him a full dose next time.

IT seems that a couple of Bashi-Bazouks studied medicine and have settled down to regular practice in Virginia, Nevada. They are known as Drs. Robinson and Gillingham. They graduated in a school of hyenas, and at the head of their classes. The other day a little boy, ten years old, had his leg crushed to bits by a car wheel in Virginia; the two hyena graduates were sent for to do what might be done to relieve the unbearable agonies of the dying child; said they couldn't think of touching him short of $600, as the railroad had agreed to pay the bill; for two mortal hours the poor child lay there while the Bashi M. Ds. telegraphed their terms to Superintendent Yerington at Carson; finally the latter ordered other surgeons summoned, by whom the child's leg was properly amputated, though he died a few hours later; the hyenas had to go snarling to their dens.

THE London Mining Journal says that a considerable rise in the price of lead is considered to be imminent, and miners having parcels of ore for sale are advised to hold them over for a week or so. Large orders have come in from abroad, and stocks in hand with the melters are undoubtedly low, so that, however reluctant they may be to do so, buyers will be compelled ere long to concede a substantial advance. English pig is likely to see £16 per ton before the month is out, and a much greater rise may be expected in the Spring, when building operations commence, if not earlier. In anticipation of this an advance in the shares of productive mines has already taken place.

An Important Mining Location.

The mammoth enterprise of the Real del Monte Mining Company has just about reached what promises to be its most interesting stage. The company are operating in historic ground. The great three compartment shaft is sunk half a mile east of the town of Aurora (Nev.) and within a stone's throw of Mark Twain's famous blind lode. The company claims on the Last Chance Hill lode consist of 1,000 linear feet by 200 feet, with four parallel locations 1,000 by 200 feet, lying easterly from the lode, making a grand total of 1,000 by 1,000 feet, covered by a United States patent. The claims embrace all the once largely productive portion of Last Chance Hill, including the following old locations: Wide West, Pride of Utah, Poorman, Johnson, Chihuahua, Western Summit, Last Chance, Ural, Bamboo, Lexington, Broderick, Honest John, Sunbeam, Midnight, Congress, Pond, Aurora, Real del Monte, Yellow Jacket, and many other parallel locations, Twain's blind lode among the rest. The locations upon what is now the Real del Monte Company's property numbered 143 in 1863. Work upon the shaft was begun December 5, 1877. The underground work comprehends the shaft, about 500 feet deep, and two drifts—one on the 300-foot level and the other on the 500-foot level—both started in a northwesterly direction for the ledge. Over three months ago drifting operations were interrupted by a heavy flow of water. This water came in from the face of the 500-foot drift just as a favorable formation had been reached. So freely did the water pour in that the miners were waist deep in water by the time they reached the station. The company immediately ordered new pumps of the largest size and most approved pattern. These pumps have been placed in position and will be started up in a few days. The pumps are of enormous capacity and cannot fail to raise the water in short order. When the water is out the mine will be prospected from the 300 and 500-foot levels with the diamond drill. The Real del Monte Mining Company have a capital of $5,000,000, divided into 50,000 shares. The Directors are as follows: A. J. Ralston, (President), N. K. Masten, (Vice President), R. N. Graves, Daniel Cook, H. M. Yerrington, Secretary, C. Van Dyck Hubbard; Treasurer, Bank of California. The details we have given may be found of special interest in the near future. A strike in the Real del Monte would create an excitement the like of which has not been known on Pine street since Con. Virginia sold beyond $700 per share.—Stock Report.

FROM our San Francisco exchanges we gain the following summary of the result of the elections held in the different States on the 4th instant: The returns from New York indicate the election of Cornell by a plurality of about 13,000 votes. His plurality in the interior is estimated at 35,000. Robinson has a plurality in New York city of 12,000 and in Brooklyn of 10,000. The Democratic State ticket, except the candidate for Governor, is probably elected by 15,000 majority. The Legislature is conceded to the Republicans. The Robinson Democrats have secured the city, a result which leaves the Kelly faction without patronage. In Massachusetts Butler is defeated, but has increased his vote on last year. The entire vote is smaller, and the loss falls most heavily on the Republicans. In Pennsylvania the Republicans have made large gains. The same is true of Wisconsin and Nebraska. The Republican majority in the former State is estimated at 22,000. In Connecticut, where the election was for members of the Legislature, the Republicans have gained several members. Returns from Maryland and Mississippi are meager, but no doubt is entertained of the success of the Democratic tickets.

GEN JOE HOOKER died suddenly at Garden city, Long Island, on the 1st instant. Gen. Hooker was a resident of the Pacific Coast when the war of the rebellion broke out. It is said of him at that time he was dissipated and impecunious. By the aid of some of his friends he got East, and during the war became distinguished as one of the best fighting Generals on either side, and was entitled "Fighting Joe Hooker" in consequence. His assault at Lookout Mountain above the clouds has become historic as one of the most noted incidents of the war. He had command of the army of the Potomac for a brief period, but this promotion only served to show that while he was a brave, dashing soldier, he was unable to command a large army of men. He was such another spirit as the late Gen. Custer. He was a member of the Pacific Coast Pioneers.

PEOPLE were beginning to conclude that President Hayes had everlooked the usual custom of issuing his proclamation for a day of Thanksgiving. But it turns out that it is not be; and on Thursday, the 27th instant, all are invited to join in prayer and praise to Him, the giver of all good, with an earnestness that is felt from the heart; for, truly, in many years there has not been a time when the people of this country had more cause to be grateful.

THE demand for coal is unprecedented in the history of the trade. It is estimated that the market will take 6,000,000 tons in excess of the production of 1878.

IN a fight between two men named Dowd and White, near Tacoma, Idaho, Dowd nearly severed White's head with two blows from a brush-hook.

A Rich Field For the Prospector and Farmer.

THE INYO INDEPENDENT, in its issue of the 18th, in speaking of the gold belts of Inyo, says that the "water courses debouching into Blind Spring Valley are rich in float gold ore." While we acknowledge that there has been one or two dry washes wherein float quartz has been found, we cannot agree as to its richness. There has never been any found in that section that would warrant the expenditure of much time or money, and the writer hereof has spent considerable time in prospecting in that part of the country. While in the White Mountain Range, after coming south from and leaving Montgomery Cañon, no gold is found until the slate belt is reached near Piute District, and the silver-bearing quartz between Piute and Montgomery Districts is so nominal in value and so base in character that it will not pay the expense of working. Another great drawback is the inaccessibility of the cañons and the abruptness of the western slope of the range. There can be no doubt but what there exists some extensive ledges near the heads of some of these water courses; and we have been told by prospectors that there is an immense ledge of gold and silver-bearing quartz on the extreme summit of the White Mountains, commencing at a point nearly opposite Whisky Flat and running southerly, assaying from $12 to $20 in gold and silver, that can be traced a long distance, and which has never been thoroughly prospected, and may be the main lode of the mountains. Further south on the range and a few miles south of the head of Silver Cañon, Messrs. Russell & Givens have done a great amount of work, and found some ore which assays up in the hundreds; and there were several tunnels run and considerable prospecting done in Silver and other cañons during the excitement in the days of old Owensville. Since then little or nothing has been done by any one who can lay claim to the name of a thorough prospector. Further south, as THE INDEPENDENT truly says, there has been rich discoveries of gold-bearing quartz made. And then comes the almost inexhaustible base metal deposits of the Cerro Gordo mountains, where immense quantities of rich ore have been reduced. And then the Darwin mines and those of Lookout, Panamint and Wild Rose Districts, which as yet have not proved a success, although these ledges have been very rich on the surface they have with one or two exceptions either become barren or else the ore was found to be of too low grade to be worked with profit. This same base metal range can be traced into the Armagosa range on the eastern side of Death Valley, some good ledges having been found in the low range of red hills directly east of Wild Rose. The ore in the New Armagosa District, which was known as the old Franklin District, carries about equal quantities of gold and silver, with a large percentage of lead. Many deposits of lead ores of various grades have been found on this range, some rich and some assaying nothing in precious metals, until Resting Springs is reached, where the silver bearing rock is much richer but found in smaller quantities. Crossing back to the westward we find a few good small deposits of gold bearing quartz in the vicinity of Snow's Cañon; and still further westward there could undoubtedly be found by careful and proper prospecting, some good gold fields in the old Coso District in what is known as the Slate Range. Taken all in all, Inyo county presents one of the most fertile fields for men of pluck and energy to prospect in of any portion of the country. And not only is it a good field for the miner, but here the farmer will find tens of thousands of acres of rich agricultural land that can be homesteaded, and on which by running ditches, plenty of water can be obtained for irrigation. The one thing needed now to make this one of the most prosperous farming and mining portions of California, is cheap transportation. One great step toward this splendid result is already about to be accomplished, mainly through the efforts of our neighbors across the Sierras, in the construction of the Mammoth City and Fresno Flats wagon road. By means of this opening a new impetus will be given to traffic through this region; and in the near future, when men of capital see the immense advantages of the project, why may we not hope for a narrow-gauge railroad to connect the C. P. R. R. with the S. P. R. R. near Mojave, thus opening up a country almost unknown, but of unbounded wealth and fertility.—Mammoth Herald.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8.....1879

DISTRICT COURT.

HON. THERON REED, JUDGE.

Court met on Monday, November 3, 1879. Present—His Honor, Theron Reed, Judge, the Sheriff and Clerk.

On motion of A. R. Conklin, Henry M. Isaacs was appointed Court Commissioner, vice Geo. M. Gill, absent.

The People vs. J. F. Dillon—On motion of District Attorney Snelling, action for recovery on bond was dismissed. [This disposes of the suit brought to recover $900 from the Assessor, upon the Defiance orders received by him for poll taxes, and which were exchanged for a check of that company in said amount, and which was proved worthless. Both Houses of the last Legislature passed a relief bill in the matter, but it did not become a law, owing to the Governor having "pocketed" it.—EDS INDEPENDENT.]

L. G. Hanson vs. Lulu Wapelhorst—Cause dismissed on motion of S. P. Moffat, attorney for plaintiff.

J. S. Rothschild vs. J. G. Hitchcock—Judgment for plaintiff in the sum of $1,172 78.

J. H. Bunty vs. Jas. Rowan, et al—Judgment for plaintiff in the sum of $475.

J. C. Irwin vs. H. C. Wright—Settled.

Thos. Ellers vs. Geo. L. Drake—Demurrer withdrawn, default entered and answer ordered filed Nov. 7th, 1879.

Jos. Franck et al. vs. A. Montgomery — Default entered and cause dismissed.

Macarter & Edwards vs. A. P. Hitchcock—Passed for the term.

A. R. Conklin vs. Henry Hopper—Judgment for plaintiff in the sum of $1,047 90, with interest at 1 per cent., and proceedings stayed for twelve months.

Albert Mairs admitted to citizenship.

Mary Eudey vs. Thos. May—Complaint ordered amended by entering amount of taxes paid upon property.

The following persons answered to names as trial jurors:

D. B. Curtis, C. D. Begole, J. T. Furbee, A. Cashbough, W. W. Truman, Barna McGill, M. C. Brockman, J. D. Harger, Chas. Wonnacott, R. H. Blake, J. B. Stewart, W. O. Meroney, J. D. Demitt, J. P. Brown, Jas. McNally, H. Fekrman, A. McKellips, D. Stubblefield, J. W. Martin, Geo. Bartshe, Peter McChann, A. Stecker, W. N. Rose, H. C. Wright, Jas. Shepherd, John Kispert, D. H. Williams, John Meyer.

Upon motion of A. R. Conklin, John W. P. Laird was admitted to practice before the District Court of the 16th District.

S. W. Martin vs. Sarah E. Martin—Referred to Court Commissioner. Report of testimony approved and decree of divorce granted.

H. T. Walker vs. Independence Tunnel Co.—Decree of foreclosure and sale.

Same vs. Rex Montis Mining Co.—Decree of foreclosure and sale.

Same vs. Shawmut Mining Co.—Decree of foreclosure and sale.

J. S. Turner vs. M. C. Brockman et al.—Decree of foreclosure and sale.

Thos. Irwin vs. John Clark—Decree of foreclosure and sale.

A. Parker vs. P. W. Bennett—Decree of foreclosure and sale.

Thos. Williams vs. —— ——Decree of foreclosure and sale.

A jury of 12, consisting of the following named gentlemen, was impaneled to try the question as to the sanity or insanity of Michael Welch, on trial under an indictment for the murder of W. L. Moore: J. N. Rose, E. Robinson, Walter James, Thos. Kehoe, John Willett, A. Parker, Jos. Schalten, Wm. F. Matlack, Frank Lawrence, Thos. Ellers, S. A. Densmore, L. Munsinger. After the selection of the jury and their being sworn, the case was continued until 1 o'clock P. M.

RESTING SPRINGS.—Mr. H. R. Gregory arrived here two or three days ago from Resting Springs, and from him we have the following items of interest relating to that most distant of Inyo mining camps: The new ten-stamp mill belonging to the Los Angeles Co. has been running steadily since its completion some time in August last, and making money right along. Its bullion shipments are made weekly, or as nearly so as the opportunities for conveyance admit. The ore is from the Gunsight, in which there is enough now in sight to fully supply the mill for at least a year to come. The average value of the ore worked is between $70 and $80, though considerable is found running as high as $4,000 a ton. The marked success of this company has given a decided impetus to mining operations generally, not only immediately at the Springs, but throughout the whole of that section. A number of capitalists, or their representatives, are now or have recently been there investigating the chances, and already there is good reason to expect the early construction of other mills, and by new companies. Among others there is a Mr. Whitney, prominently connected with the New York Mining Stock Board, who is doing a good deal to stir up the prospectors. Whenever enough is shown in a mine to make it an inducement he will bond it at sixty days, expecting, by his standing in New York, to be able to "place" such as may be worth placing, in that market within the limited time, and at reasonable figures. He hopes also to soon get some of these sufficiently developed to get them listed on the New York Stock Board.

LOCATED.—Dr. W. H. George, with his family, has arrived and is getting settled down to regular residence and professional duties. His office and drug store is established in the building next south of the Pioneer livery stable. He comes highly endorsed as an experienced and successful practitioner.

SERVICES.—Sunday school at 1 P. M., and preaching by Rev. Mr. Willis, in the evening, to-morrow at the school house.

Petition from the citizens of Big Pine for the abandonment as a highway of so much of the road leading to and through the town of Big Pine and through the lands owned by J. W. McMurry and on the line of the lands owned by said McMurry and H. F. Uhlmeyer, described as follows to wit:

Commencihg 20 chains W. from the E. line of the northeast quarter of section 18, in Township 9, Range 34 E.; thence N., 45° W., to the west line of said quarter section; thence N. 20 chains, to its intersection with the present traveled highway. The owners of the lands effected hereby consenting thereto. Petition granted. Board adjourned until 9 o'clock A. M., Nov. 6.

NOVEMBER 6,

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Report of County Auditor for the quarter ending Oct. 31, 1879, accepted and approved.

Report of County Treasurer accepted and approved.

Report of Auditor as to the financial condition of the county, accepted and approved.

Bill of R. M. Woolard reconsidered and allowed in the amount of $105 28.

Ordered, That Mr. Seeley take charge of the repairs needed upon the roof of the Court-house, in compliance with instructions to be given to him by the Board.

On motion of Mr. Meysan, it was ordered that the District Attorney be instructed to bring suit against Jas. W. Rose, contractor for furnishing timbers for the Lone Pine bridge, and his bondsmen—in case said timbers shall not be delivered on or before the 20th day of November—to recover the amount of said bonds—$500.

His Honor, Judge Hanneh, was authorized to procure a copy each of California Report, No. 34; California Digest of Reports (3 volumes); Harston's Practice, and Estee's Pleadings, by a favorable vote of Messrs. Westerville and Olds; negative, Mr. Meysan.

Ordered, That C. Meysan shall order and receive sawed lumber for Lone Pine bridge, and that the Auditor draw a warrant for the same upon the special bridge fund. Said lumber to be delivered for $65 per M.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 7.

Petition of citizens of Resting Springs for the appointment of H. R. Gregory as Justice of the Peace for the 7th township. Petition granted and appointment made.

Ordered, That Supervisor Meysan be delegated to supervise the construction of the Lone Pine bridge; receive or reject suitable or unsuitable timbers, etc., etc.

Adjourned.

MINERS' ELECTION.—At the annual election for Mining Recorder, held at Cerro Gordo on the 4th instant, D. H. Williams was elected, receiving 26 votes to 4 for Dr. Gould. There is said to have been another meeting and election held by the balance of voters of Cerro Gordo—on account of a general "kick" amongst the denizens of the hill in regard to the affair. We shall endeavor to keep readers posted as to the final outcome of the struggle for office.

BROWN MONSTER.—The parties having under bond the Brown Monster property have now en route a Frue concentrator, with which they propose to test that method of reducing the ore before finally paying for the mine and mill. The cost is considerable and it looks as though they mean business.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS.—Letters addressed to the following named persons remain in the Independence Postoffice: Willie Bledsoe, David Findley, David Finley, David Hamilton, Steve Hoalt, Thomas Kelly. Mrs. Lizzie McCann, Cyrus Powell Jeffrey.

NEW ADS.—Under the proper heading will be found several new or renewed advertisements—if there were four times as many you'd hear us talk.

The New Church.

BISHOP CREEK, Inyo Co., Cal., Nov. 3.

MESSRS EDITORS: Members and friends of the Methodist Episcopal Church met at the residence of Mr. Joseph Rowan, to take into consideration the feasibility of building a church in the village of Bishop Creek. The persons present were Rev. L. Case, Rev. F. M. Willis, Joseph Rowan, Mrs. Rowan, Samuel Hall and Albert Wayland. Rev. F. M. Willis being ex-officio chairman, called the meeting to order. After canvassing the amount of subscription already obtained, as well as that considered as prospective, on motion the meeting unanimously voted to build.

On motion, Rev. L. Case was chosen chairman of a building committee to act with John Clark and Albert Wayland.

There being no further business the meeting was adjourned.

The chairman voluntarily acted as

F. M. WILLIS, Sec'y.

NEEDS A MAIL ROUTE. — Resting Springs, Ivanpah and other camps in the southeastern portions of this county and adjacent parts of San Barnardino, together containing several hundred people and a number of established enterprises, have no U. S. mail service whatever. The first named place is about 140 miles eastward from Mojave on the railroad, and nearly as far from Mohave City on the Colorado. A mail route should at once be established from the former through Resting Springs to Ivanpah. At present all mail matter for the Springs goes to San Barnardino, whence it is taken by chance conveyances 200 miles to its destination. It is well to state, however, that Tecopa, within five miles of Resting Springs, is an established Postoffice, but without mail service.

NEW GOODS.—See announcement of Messrs. J. S. Rothschild & Co., in the usual columns. It would thus appear that our leading business men have lost none of their old-time confidence in the present business and future prospects of our region.

Belleville.

A Belleville correspondent of the Bentonian, writing under date of October 26, has this to say concerning affairs in that camp, about which we have heard but little for some time past:

I find myself back in Belleville again, with things right side up and looking well generally. One mill is kept constantly running on ores from the Northern Belle, and aside from all drawbacks, the camp will be a lively one this Winter. And speaking of drawbacks, Belleville has encountered one in the business complications of A. J. Rhodes—a man of more energy and enterprise and who has given miners and prospectors more outfits than any man in this section. Mr. Rhodes is at present below, and his property was attached to-day, including his store and teams, and in fact everything Clem Ogg could find. However, the leading men here think his business is only muddled, and that A. J. will come out all right. He has been doing so much business and getting in such small returns that his creditors became clamorous and closed down. Mr. Rhodes is too useful a citizen to be thus crippled. The Howard mine (or rather, the Chief of the Hill) was incorporated a few days ago. This is one of the best mines on Northern Belle Hill, and many are inclined to the opinion that about half the ore reputed to come out of the Belle is really rock taken from the ground of the Chief, the two claims lying adjacent. The Victor mine, one mile this side of Candelaria, is another leading mine of this district. About one hundred tons of ore is now on the dump awaiting reduction. The Victor is the exclusive property of A. J. Rhodes. Miners pronounce it a number one mine.

A SQUARE FUNERAL.—The genuine remains of old man Body were given a very respectable funeral yesterday. The afternoon was delightful, and the good people of Bodie turned out and gave what was left of the old pioneer, a good, square shake-down—his last little bed being quite an improvement upon the old horse blanket affair accorded him in the loose trachyte rocks and sagebrush soil of twenty years ago. Mr. Ferguson's pithy and pointed address at the new-made grave was a fitting tribute, worthy of the living and the dead. It was not the less impressive because of the presence of a score of gray beards numbered among the pall-bearers and spectators, who entered into the spirit of the scene, as it deserved. It is now in order to provide a suitable monument over the consecrated spot in the new cemetery, and also some mark of respect at the spot where the body was found. However much we are all now given to money getting and bread-wining, the occasion is one that should not be lost sight of with the burial of this well known pioneer's remains. Let us have no half way measures, but "stand in." and complete the work at once.—Bodie Standard.

THE BRANCH PRISON.—A rumor has been in circulation for a day or two that Governor Irwin had appointed a certain gentleman of Sacramento Warden of the Branch Prison at Folsom. The rumor does not appear to have had any foundation in fact. The present administration will do well if they make the funds available suffice for the completion of the buildings, and have the latter ready for occupancy at the close of the year, and it is therefore scarcely probable that prisoners will be removed to the Branch Prison before January. As regards the officers of the institution, the new Constitution provides for the appointment by the Governor of a State Board of Prison Directors, who will elect a Warden and clerk for each of the prisons, and the Wardens will appoint the subordinate officers, etc.—Sac. Record-Union.

THE number of troops in Austro-Hungary is 1,094,000, in France, 1,815,000, and in Russia, 2,389,000.

IT is now a settled fact that the railroad is to be extended south 60 miles toward Bodie. This will bring it into Mason Valley. Should it stop there it will have no material effect upon any branch of business within the limits of this county. Should it be extended clear into Bodie and Mammoth, and then stop, it would in some respects be rather injurious than otherwise to our farming interest. Should it be extended still further in this direction or clear through to Mojave, it woutd be a vast benefit to our every interest. Then farm produce from this valley destined to those northern camps would have an equal show for the cheaper railroad transportation, when otherwise we would have it "wagons vs. steam," which is not just what we feel like throwing up our hats for. Nevertheless, we say, "hurrah for the railroad"—if it is made long enough to reach where it ought to reach.

THE Daily Free Press, published at Bodie, comes to us enlarged and improved. Heretofore it has been distributed free, but now as it has assumed the dignity of a first-class evening journal; the price per week is twenty-five cents. It publishes the telegraphic news, stock sales and all the local and mining intelligence. It is published every evening, except Sunday, by H. Z. Osborne & Co.

DIVORCED AND REUNITED.—W. B. Daugherty, Deputy Controller, was married in Reno on Sunday to his former wife, from whom he was divorced some two years ago. It appears that there was some misunderstanding at the time, which resulted in a separation. Since then various misty circumstances have been satisfactorily cleared up, and for the past year both parties felt that they could not live happily without each other. The longer Daugherty was without his estimable wife the more he missed her, and finally—well they were married as above described. He has fitted up a neat little cottage on the corner of Musser and Thompson streets and the reunited and happy pair moved into it yesterday. Cupid now waves his triumphal torch and remarks, "I told you so all the while."—Carson Appeal.

TWENTY Mollie Maguire murderers have been hung in Pennsylvania, and there are other culprits yet to suffer. The Mollie Maguire business was a bit of imported cussedness that American regard for personal liberty has squelched out of existence. It was a labor organization in Pennsylvania, that, like the Bodie Miners' Union, wanted all the spare American liberty for itself (its members) and not even the protection of the law for anybody else. It is the American sense of right and justice that hung these twenty Mollie Magures, not the detectives.—Stock Report.

A RULE of the Illinois Central railroad provides that dogs shall not ride in a passenger car, but a big and ferocious bull-dog walked into a car at Chicago, occupied a whole seat and rode 300 miles unmolested. "He had such a meaning smile," was the conductor's apology for not ejecting him.

"I WISH it would rain, if it's going to," said a Vallejo wife to her husband. "And why, dear?" he affectionately replied. "Oh," said she, gazing vacantly at a pin on the floor, "I don't see any use wearing monogram stockings this kind of weather.—Vallejo Chronicle.

THE earth weighs 6,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons. When Alexander Stephens goes up in a balloon it will weigh fifty pounds less.—Norristown Herald. But won't it be a little lop-sided when David Davis is translated to another and a better sphere?

IT may be real nice sport to attach tin cans to a dog's tail, but the world has never produced a small boy with boldness enough to try the experiment on a mule.

THE "Hood fund," in aid of the General's little children, now amounts to nearly $6,000.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8.....1879

FROM a classification of the members of the next Legislature, it appears that the Republicans will have a majority in both Houses, and with all the other parties combined against them, there will be a tie in the Assembly and a Republican majority of four in the Senate. In the latter body there will be 21 straight Republicans and 2 New Constitution Republicans, 10 Democrats of various kinds, and 9 Workingmen, giving the Republicans a plurality of 13 and a majority of 4. In the Assembly there will be 37 straight Republicans, and 3 who received nominations from the other parties, 10 Workingmen and 4 Independent and Union members. This will give the Republicans 40 members and a majority of four over the W. P. C. and Democrats, and with the four Independents voting against the Republicans there will be a tie. On strict party lines being drawn the Republicans will have a plurality of 21. As none of the parties in the majority can accomplish much work alone, it is probable that the Workingmen and Democrats will vote together, even if they do not work in the same relation. The complexion of the two Houses will give the Republicans both organizations, with possibly a compromise Speaker for the Assembly, in case the other parties combine to beat the Republicans put forward.—S. F. Call.

VALUE OF "ESQUIRE."—A young man whose money didn't hold out as long as the State Fair, dropped into the telegraph office yesterday and sent a dispatch to his father in the interior to forward him cash to reach home with. When the receiving clerk saw the dispatch read "To John Blank, Esq.," he suggested that a saving could be effected by erasing the "Esq."

"Well, mebbe you think so, but I don't," replied the sender. "When I am at home I can call him 'dad' all day long, but when it comes down to black and white, you've got to 'esquire' him right up to the nines or walk home by the dirty road. Don't you dare to leave that off—not with the roads as muddy as they are now."

In about an hour the following answer was received:

To———:

John Blank, Esq., forward you $10, and you can have more if you want it.

JOHN BLANK, Esq.

"Didn't I tell ye?" chuckled the young man as he read it. "Dad's common enough when we're all home and rushed to get the Fall wheat in; but the minute he gets his back rested and a stranger comes along, he weighs more to the ton than any 'Esq.' on legs. I tell ye, you don't know a man till ye have hoed corn with him."—Grass Valley Union.

IT is related by a Chester, Penn., lady that when Gen. Wm. Harrison was running for the Presidency he stopped at the Washington House for dinner. After dinner, wine was served. It was noticed that the General pledged his toast in water, and one of the gentlemen from New York in offering another said: "General, will you not favor me by drinking a glass of wine?" The General declined in a very gentlemanly manner. Again he was urged to join them in a glass of wine. This was too much. He rose from the table, his tall form erect, and in the most dignified manner replied: "Gentlemen, I have refused twice to partake of the wine cup—that should have been sufficient; though you press the cup to my lips, not a drop shall pass the portals. I made a resolve when I started in life that I would avoid strong drink, and I have never broken it. I am one of a class of seventeen young men who graduated, and the other sixteen fill drunkards' graves—all through the pernicious habit of wine drinking. I owe my health, prosperity and happiness to that resolution. Will you urge me now?"

IT appears that the German Government has seriously taken in hand the "smoking evil among youth." The youth of that country indulge in the habit of smoking to such excess as to have greatly damaged their constitutions, and incapacitated them for the defence of their country. In certain towns in Germany the police have orders to forbid all lads under sixteen years of age to smoke in the streets, and to punish the offense by fine and imprisonment. Moreover, a Belgian physician has found, during a journey of observation and inquiry, made at the request of the Belgian Government, that the too general and excessive use of tobacco is the main cause of color blindness, an affection which is occasioning increasing anxiety, both in Belgium and Germany, from its influence upon railway and other accidents, and also upon military inefficiency.

THE Carson Appeal reports an elopement of an Irishman with an Indian squaw of the Washoe tribe. The story may only be one of those little sensations such as the Nevada journals occasionally regale their readers with, but it reads like the truth. The Washoes, next to the California Diggers, are the homeliest, filthiest and most degraded Indians on the continent, but there never was an Indian so low that white men could not fall to his level.—Stock Exchange.

A PRISONER, named Uhlman, recently barricaded himself in his cell at Vevey, Switzerland, and defied the gendarmes to take him before the judges. It was not thought advisable to shoot him, and the court would not wait till he was starved into surrender, so ether was thrown into the cell until he became sufficiently stupefied to be harmless.

AT the assay office of the Consolidated Virginia Company, General and Mrs. Grant, and Ulysses, Jr., were weighed on the fine scales used in weighing bullion. They weighed as follows: Gen. Grant, 170½ pounds; Mrs. Grant, 160 pounds, and Ulysses, Jr., 176 pounds.—Virginia Enterprise.

THE PARTING PROMISE.

Oh! loveliest picture of romance,
With saddened heart o'er thee I glance.
We promise, though we oft reget
Those vows we break, though can't forget
The parting promise.

We part from friends, perhaps forever;
Those ties we make for fate to sever;
Though fate it favors but the few,
But fond memory retains the past adieu—
The parting promise.

Though fortune smooths the paths of life,
And frees us from all care and strife;
Remorse from happiness will spring,
And to our memory will bring
The parting promise.

At last, when Death it hovers near,
Though none may care or drop a tear,
Those friends of youth our minds retain,
Then hov'rs through the death-chilled brain
The parting promise.

—TRAMP.

A Short Sermon from Burdette.

Remember, my son, you have to work. Whether you handle a pick or a pen, a wheelbarrow or a set of books, digging ditches or editing a paper, ringing an auction bell or writing funny things, you must work. If you will look around you, you will see that the men who are most able to live the rest of their days without work, are the men who work the hardest. Don't be afraid of killing yourself with overwork. It is beyond your power to do that. Men cannot work so hard as that on the sunny side of thirty. They die sometimes, but it's because they quit work at 6 P. M. and don't get home till 2 A. M. It's the interval that kills, my son. The work gives you an appetite for your meals, it lends solidity to your slumber, and it gives you a perfect and grateful appreciation of a holiday. There are young men who do not work, my son; young men who make a living by sucking the end of a cane; whose entire mental development is insufficient to tell them which side of a postage stamp to lick; young men who can tie a necktie in eleven different knots and never lay a wrinkle in it, and then would go to a West Hill street car to go to Chicago; who can spend more money in a day than you can earn in a month, and who will go to the Sheriff to buy a postal card, and apply at the office of the Street Commissioner for a marriage license. But the world is not proud of them, son. It does not know their names, even; it merely speaks of them as old Soanso's boys. Nobody likes them; nobody hates them; the great busy world doesn't even know they are there, and at the great day of resurrection, if they do not appear at the sound of the trumpet, and they certainly will not unless somebody tells them what it is for and what to do, I don't think Gabriel will miss them or notice their absence, and they will not be sent for, or disturbed. Things will go on just as well without them. So find out what you want to be and to do, and take off you coat and make a dust in the world. The busier you are the less deviltry you will be apt to get into, the sweeter will be your sleep, the brighter and happier your holidays, and the better satisfied will the world be with you.—Hawkeye.

GEN. CLARK'S Bullion mine at Paradise is undoubtedly one of the richest ever discovered in this State. In the General's office can be seen a large lot of specimens indiscriminately taken out of an ore cart, of a character to make an old prospector's mouth water. Throughout all of the samples can be seen native and ruby silver, in quantities very rarely found in ore. The rock is really marvelous. If there is much of that class of ore in the mine, and the General assures us that there is, he has a wonderfully rich bonanza. —Carson Appeal.

BUCKWHEAT cakes, oysters and Republican victories come in with the months containing an R.—Hawkeye.

More New "Processes."

The periodical excitement in the metallurgical "process" line is again under way. This time the particular localities attacked are Grass Valley and Meadow Lake, both well known and prominent "bone yards" of processes, where many a one has come to an untimely end when brought to the test of experience on a large scale.

It is stated that a process is being worked by the well known Murchie Mining Company, of Grass Valley, by which they have succeeded in reducing the base and rebellious sulphureted ore of one of their mines, by a simple method of amalgamation. The expense of the new way of treating the sulphurets is said to be $6 to $8 per ton, where the chlorination process, the best previously used, cost from $16 to $18 and higher. The Murchie is a large company, owning the Big Blue, Independent, Lady Alice, Red, White and Blue, etc., and having an 18-stamp mill, with 10 Frue concentrators, etc. The fact of a company of this character taking hold of the new process has given it a sudden prominence which it would not otherwise have had so soon. It is stated that they get 88 per cent. of both gold and silver. The inventor is James H. Smith, sometimes known among mining men as "Secor Smith," from a former connection with the Secor process. The new Smith process is kept a secret at present, and we know no more of it than the Murchie Company are supposed to be sending down bars resulting from a mode of working sulphureted ore by amalgamation instead of chlorination. It is not claimed to be the subject of any patent, so far as we can learn.

The principal excitement in this line, however, is at Meadow Lake, the rebellious ores of which district have resisted every attempt yet tried to work them. The district is a famous one; the ledges numerous and ores rich, but rebellious. A large town was built up there, mills erected, but the whole thing had finally to be abandoned through failure to treat the ores. Every now and again, however, when a new process comes to the front, it is expected that Meadow Lake will be started up again.

This time the local papers consider that the enigma is solved, and that there will be dividends, at least, from Meadow Lake ores. Numbers of people have gone to the district, and some expensive purchases of mines are said to have been made.

The process which has brought this about is one devised by Mr. James Gould, who was formerly at the Black Bear mine, in Shasta county. It is claimed that this method treats the ores which have defied all other processes. The Gould process as described in the Truckee Republican, which is quite jubilant over it, consists simply in partially roasting the ore before crushing, then crushing it in a stamp mill, heating the pulverized mass to a cherry red in an ordinary furnace, and then amalgamating it by a simple pan process. In this way, it is stated, 13 tons of ore yielded $1,281 80, or nearly $100 per ton. Assays of tailings showed that $5 56 per ton of the gold escaped. If these figures be correct it shows a saving of 95 per cent.

We can see nothing especially new in the process as described above, the same treatment of ore having been tried before. Whether roasting the ore previous to crushing will make any difference we are not informed, but this has been done in several of the processes which have recently come to the front, but which have only appeared to disappear. We refer to those where ore was roasted and dropped into solutions supposed to put them into condition for amalgamation. This system was tried very many years ago, so that if practically successful on a large scale it would be recognized now.

However, we have not heard that Gould wants anybody to buy rights for his process, or in fact that he has or claims to have any patent, and he is entitled to a respectful hearing. If the gentleman has succeeded in doing what the local papers say that he has—and they ought to know, being so close at hand—he will be doing a great benefit to the mining community, since a success at Meadow Lake will make a success at other places.

We should like, however, to see more explanations of the rationale of the process, and see wherein it differs from others which have gone before. No doubt the work already accomplished will stimulate the owners of the mines at Meadow Lake to test the matter thoroughly in a way which will be satisfactory to those directly interested, and to the public at large.—Scientific Press.

GORDON'S Gulch, Kern county, is becoming quite famous for its gold deposits. About forty miners have claims on the banks for six miles from its head in the mountains. The great lack of water the past year has obliged the few miners at work on it to pack their dirt from three-quarters of a mile to two miles. There is no water in the gulch except during a rain storm, when the wash of the surrounding hills falls into it. The miners expect a good Winter and plenty of work.—Stock Report.

CHRISTOPHER SHUCK, a resident of Washington county, Oregon, died on the 3d instant, aged ninety-six years and six months. Deceased served as a drummer boy in Gen. Jackson's last campaign; served through the Mexican war, and at one time was under Joe Lane's command. He saw the final winding up of Taylor's victory over Santa Anna, and moved to Oregon in 1848.

Jeff. Davis' Capture—A Conductor Tells the Part He Acted in It.

T. Lane, an old United States soldier, is the conductor of car No. 17, Pittsburg and Alleghany Railway. He served his country four years and ten mouths, and has three honorable discharges. In fact, he has more. He will carry with him to the last day the remembrances of numerous incidents of that terrible strife, chief among which is the meeting and capture in petticoats, under the most trying circumstances, of Jefferson Davis, President of the Southern Confederacy. Mr. Lane is about forty years of age, married, and has a family residing on Pennsylvania avenue, Alleghany. He has been in the employ of the railway company nearly two years.

This morning the writer introduced himself to Mr. Lane, and mentioning the subject of Davis' capture, the following facts were related by the gentleman: He was a member of Company M, Seventh Pennsylvania Cavalry, commanded by Col. Pritchard, which, with the Fourth Michigan Cavalry, was ordered to proceed after and capture Jeff Davis and his party. The Michigan Cavalry went on the trail directly, while the Seventh Pennsylvania Cavalry went round about. A report came to Col. Pritchard while on the march that Davis would cross the river at the forks of the road early on the morning of a certain day. The Seventh set out to head him off, and arrived near the road about 4 o'clock, when the morning light was just appearing. Back of the road they noticed a camp fire, and almost instantly a volley of guns rang out on the still air from the camp. Thinking that they had surprised Davis and his men, the Seventh returned the fire, a brisk skirmish followed, and the scene was intensely exciting.

Suddenly the soldier noticed a rather youngish woman leading an apparently old woman, while several children and one or two other persons followed. The woman asked the guard of the Fourth Michigan camp if she could take the old woman to the spring-house for a drink, and was answered in the affirmative. The supposed old woman wore an old sun-bonnet and a dressing-gown, the latter looped together in front. Day was dawning, the light was clearer, and on the way to the spring-house the old lady slipped, the front of the dress, which was not looped all the way down, was blown open, disclosing a pair of long cavalry boots. The guard saw the boots, leveled his gun and cried, "Davis, halt!" He did so, and tearing open his dress, Davis said, "Shoot me, kill me." In the meantime the firing had been going on without interruption, and full thirty saddles had been emptied of brave soldiers by the unfortunate mistake of the commanders in their hasty firing.

Davis, turning to the guard and Lane, said: "You men are killing each other, stop the firing; I have no soldiers with me—only the person you see here." Lane placed his hand on the shoulder of Davis and said: "You shall not be harmed. There is none here who will hurt you." In a little while the firing ceased, and there was great sorrow over the loss of the brave companions of the two Union regiments, by the unfortunate meeting in the dark, but considerable joy at the unexpected capture. Mr. Lane was assigned to accompany Davis to Murfreesboro, and sat beside and chatted with him all the way there. He is positive as to the dress of the Confederate chief. As the writer was about to leave Mr. Lane, he said: "We made one mistake that morning. When Davis bared his breast we should have shot him."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Work on the Great East River Bridge.

Work on the Great East River Bridge at New York is continued vigorously, about nine hundred men being employed at the present time. The work upon the superstructure will be continued through the Winter, except in the most severe weather. One thousand tons of steel are to be delivered this Winter. The first suspenders for the support of the roadway were placed in position last week. All those for the Brooklyn side will be in position within a week, and after that those on the New York side will be placed. There will be thirteen suspenders on each of the four cables on each side of both towers, making 204, all of which will be put up during the Winter. The longest measures 128 feet. These suspenders are of steel wire rope, 1¾ inches in diameter, with a socket at each end. The upper socket is fastened by means of a bolt 1⅞ inches in diamter to a band of wrought iron five inches wide and five-eighths of an inch thick, which is bolted to the cable. At the lower end of the suspenders are two bolts 1½ inches in diameter, through cast iron sockets, by which to attach the beams to the suspenders. After the beams are in place, the trusses will be erected. The thirteen suspenders to be placed this Winter will extend nearly 100 feet from the piers. The cables are to be swayed thirteen feet nearer together than they are now, the outer ones being brought six and a half feet nearer the center. A strain of twenty-two tons will be required to draw them together. They will then be connected at intervals with wire rope stays. This will secure strong lateral bracing for the whole structure, and add immensely to its ability to resist the winds. Sixty or seventy men will be employed during Winter. If all the work that is now laid out is accomplished, about 100 feet of the superstructure on each side of both piers will be completed by Spring, except the flooring plank. Four thousand tons of steel will be used next Summer in addition the thousand tons that will be used this Winter.

PROF. LOOMIS continues his experiments in the mountains of West Virginia to demonstrate the theory that at certain elevations there is a natural electric current, by taking advantage of which, telegraphic signals may be sent without the use of wires. It is said that he has telegraphed eleven miles by means of kites flown with copper wires. When the kites reached the same altitude, or got into the same current, communication by means of an instrument similar to that of Morse was easy, but ceased as soon as one of the kites was lowered. He has built towers on two hills about twenty miles apart, and from the tops of them has run up steel rods into the region of the electric current.—Journal of the Telegraph.

A LOS ANGELES paper says it learns from very reliable authority that a party of capitalists, who are very heavily interested in the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad, in company with the chief engineer of the road, left Boston two weeks since for San Diego, where they contemplate making a location for a western terminus of their road. A contract has already been entered into with some of the leading citizens of San Diego whereby a fine plat of ground has been tendered to them for a depot and wharf site. It seems now beyond a doubt that that city is about to realize its fondest hopes of becoming a terminal point of a trans-continental railroad.

WE started in to tell the truth with reference to mining affairs in Mammoth, and we mean to maintain that position and make the Times win the good opinion of its subscribers abroad as well as at home. When the time comes that we can't make a living in journalism by such a course, we shall shut down the institution and both editors will turn their attention to sawing wood.—Mammoth City Times.

Nothing like a correct idea of the eternal fitness of things. Now, indeed, may it be made plain that "Truth is [a great deal] stranger than fiction."

THE range of advertising is very broad in this country. A New York paper contains a notice that the "Lieut. Thackera, who is engaged to Miss Sherman, is not a relative of William M. Thackary, an English author of some note, but son of the Mr. Thackera, of Philadelphia, whose exhibit of chandeliers at the Centennial was so generally admired."

SPEAKING of the fortune left by the late lamented Brigham Young, the New York Tribune says: "The sum total of the old reprobate's wealth was $3,000,000, but the chief reprobates of the Church pocketed the lion's share, and let the contending heirs out with $75,000."

A LARGE portion of the emigration from England to this country goes to Texas, the emigrants being induced to go to that State by promises of chromos and self-cocking pistols, made to them by agents who are visiting England in the interests of emigration to Texas.

IN one of his Massachusetts speeches, Gen. Butler said: "The cry about a 'solid South' is a delusion and a snare. The great West will dominate this Government despite the South, North or East, because almost all the power and population have drifted there."

THE total imports of specie at New York from January 1st to October 15th were $49,516,954. Of this amount less than $3,000,000 was in silver coin and bullion.

AN old mining town, heretofore unknown to the whites, has just been found in Papago District, Arizona. It is thought rich mines will be discovered there.

THE statement that Chinese merchants were about to establish a line of steamers between San Francisco and China proves to be entirely unfounded.

EXPORTS of wheat from San Francisco during October were the largest in a long time, consisting of 1,972,302 centels, valued at $3,834,096.

IN the course of the next five years a vast amount of British capital will find its way to this country, where branches of English business houses will be established, while in many cases the main business will be transferred here. We may see this to-day in New York, where shops are constantly being established by Englishmen. The great dry goods houses are largely represented by them. The English capitalist, feeling an absolute security in our public finances, will more and more pour those hoards which he is at his wit's end to know how to invest into associations conducted by his own countrymen here, and the benefit will accrue to both countries. The present troubles in England will thus tend to bind even closer the commercial interests of the two countries. Englishmen already own large possessions in the West, and every year will see the number of such proprietors increase. Within a very few years there will be a daily mail steamer to England.—N. Y. Sun.

"WE wish," says a Texan newspaper, "that a few of our citizens could be permitted to live until they died a natural death, so as to show the world what a magnificently healthy country Texas really is."

A MR. ANDERSON, of Dutch Flat, picked up a rock the other day to throw at a cow. The weight of it attracted his attention, and on examination it was found to contain over a hundred dollars in gold.

THE bale of cotton donated for the orphans of Gen. Hood was sold and resold several times at Houston, realiz- $1,000. Then it was shipped to Waco.

LEARNING SOMETHING.

The business men and monied men of the city of Los Angeles are all the time learning something about how to manage affairs so as to enhance the values of their possessions, but somehow, the knowledge attained always comes too late to be of any use. Here, some years ago, they thought it would be a good thing to have the great overland railroad south come that way, a hundred miles or so off its direct line. They got the road by voting their county $750,000 in debt. But neither themselves nor the railroad company were very well pleased with results. The latter expended over $2,000,000 extra in order to get to run their cars a hundred miles or so further around so as to give the sick people in Los Angeles a chance to hear the locomotive screech $750,000 worth, while the city found itself reduced from a general entrepot for quite a "back country," to the rank of a simple "way station" with all the humiliations and aggravations that name implies in case of a real city that has a real sea port of its own. About that time Jones came along and told these unhappy people that he would show them an easy way out of the woods if they would bear half the first cost and own half the property, which was of course to be an independent railroad by which that city could forever command its legitimate share of the trade of its own extensive "back country," and thereby become itself more of a great entrepot and independent city than it ever had been, or, otherwise, could be; besides that, the city's own sea port could be made of vast utility, whereas, if this plan was not adopted nothing was more certain than that that sea port would go to almost utter waste. Jones believed all this firmly, and went to work vigorously expending his own money in building this road, thinking all the time those people must see the point and in due time turn to and help him. But several things transpired at this epoch to prevent. In the daily papers regularly appeared brief locals in words and figures to this effect: "Yesterday 2 more of Nadeau's teams arrived with bullion, and a like number departed with cargoes of feed." There was a boom in real estate in consequence, and lots buyers of the same who mostly paid with money secured by mortgage; all the poor people were busy in buying themselves rich in this way, while all the rich were making themselves millionairies and kept in constant employment by loaning their cash on mortgages. So nobody would help Jones, except with cheap words of encouragement. These didn't answer all of Jones' needs; he wanted them to take stock with him, say to the amount of about five per cent. of the aggregate property values of the city and county —not as a subsidy but as a subscription to the stock of his road, in which they thereby would attain a proportionate right in its control. But they had all they wanted to attend to in working their mortgage bonanza, and, except a few of the more sensible ones, none of them would take any of Jones' stock. Jones and the more sensible ones talked to the others like Dutch uncles, but it was no use, and Jones had to quit.

In due course the time came to realize on the mortgages and the $750,000 given to the wrong railroad. Then it was noticed that the latter had reduced their city to a way station, that their sea port was going to waste every day, that Nadeau's teams did not come any more; worst of all, that all this and much more might have been saved by investing the five per cent. with Jones, for, by not doing so, it was now observed that property values generally had depreciated so much more than the five per cent. that the mortgages as a rule called for more than the property was worth. Everybody had learned something of importance by this time, but too late to utilize it to their own advantage. However, very few languished through lack of occupation, for pretty much all, on one side or the other, had all they wanted to do in trying to save themselves from the effects of the late mortgage epidemic.

The wisest of them thought they saw a remedy for the inconveniences arising from these mistakes (if we may be permitted to so call them) by a clause in the new Constitution designed expressly to cinch the railroad. Accordingly a clause to equalize things was incorporated in that wonderful cure-all, which so pleased the learned Los Angelesites that they arose up almost as one man to vote the adoption of the entire mess of incongruities. "Anything to cinch the railroad," was the battle-cry which came nearer making those people unanimous than anything that had aroused them to action for a long time previously. The machine or particular clause which was to do the cinching provides, in effect, that no transportation company shall charge a higher rate for freights or fares to intermediate stations than between terminii, longer distances apart, of course. For instance, the railroad charged nearly as much again for freight from San Francisco to Bakersfield than for the same when carried from the former place clear through, and about twice as far, to Los Angeles. This difference in favor of the latter was in deference to her advantages for water competition, and to which railroad rates had to be made to correspond, for obvious reasons. But from Los Angeles to Arizona the conditions were quite different: it costs more to ship a car load of freight from Los Angeles to Arizona than from San Francisco via Los Angeles to Arizona. This was the point to which the cinching process was to be especially applied.

It now appears that it is not going to work very well. That is to say, while Los Angeles gets a little lower rates on all her Arizona freights, she will by virtue of the same rule, have to pay about double present rates on all she receives from whatever quarter. It would require too much space for us now to explain just why this is so; but it is so, a fact those people have learned, as in the other cases, when too late to be of any use.

But they have just lit on another expedient which is to do the business. As business men, they have joined in a formal request to the Railroad Commissioners to so fix things that the railroad will have to carry Eastern freights, six or seven hundred miles further, to Los Angeles at the same figures as to San Francisco. This would be going back on the supposed equalizing provisions ot that cinching clause, unless it (this request) means to reduce freights to absolutely nothing to all places alike in this State—otherwise it would be "discrimination," for the express prevention of which the new Constitution was expressly slung together. We are apprehensive the Los Angeles "business men" have learned so much in these few lessons about railroads that their minds are getting a little out of balance.

PROPOSED NEW MINING LAW.

Judge Belford, the United States Representative from Colorado, has prepared and will submit to Congress at the next session the following draft for a new mining law, which in all probability will be passed by Congress. Its design is to cover the "flat" or "blanket" veins, of which the mines at Leadville are the best representatives. With present knowledge of the mineral deposits of this country, its provisions will not affect our local mining interests:

Be it enacted, etc., That hereafter any person desirous of prospecting and exploring the public domain of the United States, for the discovery of gold and silver bearing ores, which do not outcrop or appear on the surface, may locate a claim 1,500 feet in length and 600 feet in width, which locations shall be made by marking the boundaries of the same on the surface of the ground by at least six substantial stakes, one at each corner of the claim and one at the center of each side line.

After the making of said location, the party making the same shall have ninety days within which to expose and define the mineral deposit, which may be done by the sinking of a discovery shaft, or by an open cut, crosscut or tunnel. If within said period of ninety days he shall fail to expose said mineral deposit, his location shall be void, and the claim so located shall be open to relocation in the same manner as if no location of the same had ever been made.

No person discovering a mineral deposit under this Act shall have the right to follow it beyond the point where it is intersected by the exterior lines of the claim; nor shall any person under this Act be allowed to locate a second claim in the same mining district until he has perfected his title to the first located claim by an exposure of the mineral deposit therein, in the manner above set forth, and by recording the same as required by law.

Provided, this Act shall not apply to mining claims or veins or lodes of quartz found between well-defined walls of rock in place.

JUDGING from a letter to the Galveston News the Mojada mines of Mexico are pleasanter to stay away from than to settle in. The writer intimates that if all the reports of richness are true, yes, even if the whole range of mountains were composed of pure silver, it would be no inducement to go to a place where the nearest saloon or bakery is 125 miles distant. Besides all who go there must expect to leave their wives widows. When an American arrives at the Sierras Mojadas the Indians and Mexicans administer upon his estate without the preliminary inquest held in other countries upon the corpse of a rash adventurer. Then, too, if death is escaped, and the American has begun to dig out the ore, he will have to pay the Government 25 cents on the dollar to start on. The coinage, porterage, and finally stealage, will bring the cost on the dollar up to about 115 cents. The returned Texan appears to be prejudiced against the new mining region, and argues that the United States will not protect American citizens who are endeavoring to civilize Mexico by squatting upon her silver mines.

EVEN the Democratic newspapers which were before inclined to accord some considerations to Justice Field's pretensions to the Presidency declare that his States rights utterances in the Thurman Act decision have nailed down the lid of his political coffin. Here in California, where Justice Field is so well known, his Presidential aspirations have been a subject of laughter to all, Democrats included. It is not deemed in this State that he has the first qualification or the least record to entitle him to consideration as a Presidential candidate.—Stock Report.

OUR BENTON LETTER.

The Comanche and Diana—Mining News.

BENTON, Nov. 10.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Our little town is as quiet as usual, although in a business point of view there is more life than there has been for some time past.

The two mills are now, for the first time for more than a year, hammering away on the rich ores of the district. By this I mean for the first time running both at the same time.

The Vulcan, with Mr. Jas. Hickey, formerly of Darwin, as Superintendent, and Mr. Rob't Burnham, Superintendent of the mill, is shipping bullion by every stage, and that of high grade. I notice bars 700 and over fine, which is an unusual thing for this camp. I thing Burnham must be putting in his best licks, for the bars all have a very fine appearance and do credit to our camp. The mine is looking very well, and Mr. Hickey hopes to keep the stamps busy for some time.

The Diana mill is being very ably managed by Mr. G. W. Stewart, well known in this vicinity as a practical mill man. The bullion shipped by the Diana Company is very fine, as the process used is very well adapted for the production of fine bars, although not as suitable in reducing base and rebellious ores. I believe some of Mr. Stewart's bars have reached as high as 995, which is as fine as it is possible to make them with the means at hand for working and refining.

The old Comanche mine is being worked by Mr. W. J. Hoskin on lease. Mr. Hoskin is very well acquainted with the mine as well as being an expert and practical miner, and it is very confidently expected that he will make a success of his undertaking, and it is not impossible that he will show this, the mother mine of the district, to be as good now as it was in earlier and more prosperous days. Mr. Hoskin has a mill in Montgomery Cañon, where he will work the ore from the Comanche. He has been running this mill for a number of years on ore taken from his mines on Blind Spring Hill and others at Montgomery. Nearly all the mines on Blind Spring Hill are now being worked, and there are many tons of ore at the Vulcan waiting for the mill to get far enough ahead to work them.

Capt. S. D. Prescott, Superintendent of the Sultan Hill Mining Company has some very fine prospects, and not only fine prospects but good mines. He has been working the Illinois under a bond from Tregembo and Kremkow, and is so well pleased with it that he will at once put on hoisting works, the old whim being to slow for his impulsive nature to endure.

There has been talk of mines being discovered about ten miles from here near Creaser's ranch, which give fair promise of richness and permanence. Col. Farrington, the owner, is taking out some good ore, which he contemplates shipping to Belleville for reduction.

ANTONIO.

WHO is Charles Stuart Parnell, the anti-rent agitator, the most popular man in Ireland? An Irishman? No. His father was an Englishman and his mother an American, and his lineage is unexceptional. His family settled in Ireland several generations ago, and he is a considerable landowner, and has followed out his recommendation that rents be reduced 25 per cent. by reducing his own, so far, 20 per cent. He is a slender and light young man, 29 years old, who came out of Cambridge a few years ago, knowing nothing of politics except home rule was his hobby, and in 1875 he went into Parliament from Meath and sat through the session without parting his lips. With all his effeminate appearance and water drinking, he has an iron will, and when he began to ask inopportune questions about the Government finances, and was, of course, talked and coughed down, he kept at it all the more calmly and persistently, fell, without intending it, into a policy of obstruction, and slowly took to using his acquired ability in this direction to advance his home rule ideas. In fact, he declares that with twenty men (he has only four or five in his party) he could stop legislation until he is attended to.

This is the man who has aroused all Ireland in opposition to the landlords, and who, if he had the power, would carry his purpose to a dangerous extreme. For he is a man of one idea, and such men are always narrow and dangerous.

DEATH has thrown wide open the portals of the grave this week and gathered a precious harvest. About a week ago that dreadful scourge, the diphtheria, that in so many cases defies medical skill and releases not its grasp but with the life of the victim, suddenly made its appearance in our midst and almost simultaneously several children in Summer and one in Bakersfield were stricken down with it. At the time we write, five precious ones have died and others are hovering on the brink of the dark and silent river. Our death record in another column tells the sorrowful tale. With the exception of Mr. Smith's little girl we have not heard of any case in Bakersfield, bat in Sumner they are numerous. Mr. Gregg has a little daughter very sick, Mrs. McGraw has three sick, Mr. Murphy one, Mr. Walter Chittenden one and Mr. Miller two. What is a little remarkable is that that the disease has confined itself entirely to that portion of town north of the railroad, except in the case of Mr. Sampson's children, and they were at the depot. —Bakersfield Gazette.

JURIES sometimes give very curious verdicts. One of the most remarkable was found by a Washoe jury in 1867 in a case of milk stealing. The prisoner was tried on a charge of stealing milk from another man's cow. It was proved that he had frequently milked the animal at night, thereby causing his neighbor great vexation and annoyance. The jury, of whom Tule Frank was foreman, desired to express in their verdict their sense of the aggravated nature of the offense. They therefore found the prisoner "Guilty of milking the cow in the first degree."—Reno Gazette.

Convict Lake.

This beautiful lake, situated about 10 miles southeast of this place, is so called from being the scene of the battle between a party of citizens of Mono county and the convicts who escaped from the Nevada State Prison in the Winter of 1872-3. An Indian having found their whereabouts, informed some citizens of Benton. They formed a posse, headed by Mr. Morrison, a merchant of that place, and, piloted by the Indian, came upon the party of convicts about one-half mile below the outlet of the lake, and a fight ensued. The escaped convicts were well armed with Henry and Winchester rifles, and had chosen a good retreat where they could not easily be surprised or surrounded. A desperate fight ensued, in which Morrison and the Indian guide were killed. Only a portion of the convicts were engaged, the others being up at the lake gathering rose buds—about the only food they had on which to subsist, there being no cattle in Long Valley at that season. They were in a starving condition. There had been ill-feeling between Charley Jones and one of his companions, and while the party below were fighting, or about that time, a dispute arose between Jones and the other man. Jones lay face downward to take a drink of water, when this other fellow struck him in the back of the head or neck with a large stone, killing him instantly. After the killing of Morrison and his horse, and the Indian, the Benton party retreated. This story, as told by the convicts, has been disputed and doubted. Jones was well acquainted in Owens River Valley, and many thought that through assistance he escaped. Their next attempt, after finding they could not cross the mountains at the head of Convict Lake, was to cross at the head of McGee's creek. Not being successful in crossing there, they went down into Round Valley and gave themselves up to the citizens. Two of the party were hung, and the remainder sent back to Nevada. Charley Jones was missing. About two and a half years ago, shortly after the discovery of this district, a party of prospectors left Lake to explore that portion of the country, and on the northern shore found a portion of a man's arm bone with a piece of the collar bone attached, which they brought in with them from Casa Diablo and there gave it to Mr. Gill. The skull now in the cabinet at Wisdom & Hamilton's saloon, and the finding of other portions of a human skeleton shows conclusively that some one was killed or died in that lonely region; but whether it was Jones or not of course no one knows. The lake is one of the most romantic and beautiful sheets of water in the Sierras, and the only one in this part of the county in which there are any fish.—Mammoth Herald.

The foregoing is interesting, as a reminder of old incidents and connecting theories. However, Charley Jones was not killed, and a recent letter from Deadwood reports him as now in that country, having been well recognized.

Dakota to be the Thirty-Ninth State.

Congress is liable to be petitioned at the next session to admit Dakota as a State into the Union. It will found its claim on statistics, which are as follows: In 1870 its population was about 14,000. It had a serious drawback in 1873, because of the temporary suspension of work on the Northern Pacific Railroad, but since that brief depression its growth has been very rapid. Its present population is estimated at 120,000, and those who are well posted believe that the Census Marshal will return at least a population of 180,000 in 1880. That number will certainly entitle it to admission, and will give it four electoral votes at least in 1884. There is, however, a good deal of talk of dividing the State where the Missouri makes a natural bounday between the east and west portions of the Territory. Dakota is just three times the size of the State of New York. Something of its future possibilities may be estimated from the fact that three-quarters of the soil of the whole Territory is unsurpassed for wheat-growing. Already six lines of railway are being pushed across the Territory from East to West, and the annual immigration to the Territory amounts to nearly half as many people as inhabit Nevada. In ten years hence it will contain more real homes than both California and Nevada, and will possess a patient, industrious and intelligent people. The boys will have to split firewood and fodder the stock, and such boys are certain to make men who can be relied upon.—Virginia Enterprise.

BODIE'S PROSPECTS.—It is kept very quiet, but there are six months' dividends in sight in the Bodie mine today. The Standard is the biggest mine in the world and will continue to pay dividends for years to come. Developments in Jupiter show that it contains a large body of ore, and the Mono only needs to have the water pumped out and a little drifting done to open up a bonanza. The Noonday will become bullion producing in something like a month, and there is ore enough in sight to run the mill for an indefinite period. The Syndicate mill is soon to cease crushing Standard ore, and will commence turning out bullion from the company's rock, with a prospect of dividends for stockholders in the near future. In five or six weeks you can look out for a deal in Bodie stocks that will make you open your eyes; it is going to be a mighty lively one. The remarkable stillness about the new and rich discoveries of late gives strong color to the prediction.—Bodie News.

THE Diana mill is pounding away steadily, and with both mills running to their full capacity, and nearly all of the many mines in the district working, our little town is beginning to look more lively than it has for many months. —Bentonian.

THE Vulcan Mill and Mining Company last Monday shipped two bars of bullion, the assay value of which was $2,535 72; and one base bar, we suppose from tailings, worth $660.—Bentonian.

George Daly.

The Carson Appeal takes a common-sense view of that George Daly-Molly Maguire matter in its remarks as follows:

The following communication has been sent to George Daly:

HALL OF BODIE MINERS' UNION,
October 27.

GEORGE DALY, ESQ.—Dear Sir: At a regular meeting of the Union, held this 27th instant, a communication from Bernard and Joseph McDonald, asking permission for them and others to return to Bodie, was read and unanimously rejected.

J. P. SHAUGHNESSY, President.
M. CULLINAN, Recording Sec'y.

Daly very properly replied that he considered such a proposition a gratuitous insult, and informed the miners that he would go to and from Bodie as he saw fit. It has been urged that Daly is a breeder of contentions in mining camps and that the miners had a right to eject him from the place. This is all humbug. Daly may be, and for aught we know is, all that his enemies claim of him, but no body of men have a right to dictate to him where he shall or shall not live. Such an outrage deserves to be rebuked by every American citizen in the camp, and if the authorities and the peaceable citizens of the town had a spark of manhood in their bodies, they would not allow such high-handed proceedings to disgrace a town in which they lived. The laws in this country are amply sufficient to punish offenders against its peace, and if Daly committed any unlawful act, there was law enough in Bodie to punish him without the interference of a self-established body of men known as the Miners' Union. Daly has been known among the typographical fraternity as a "rat," and there is no doubt but he richly deserves the epithet. We have no sympathy for men of Daly's stamp, but until convicted of crime any man who treads American soil has the right of legal protection, and as much right in Bodie as he would have while standing under the dome of the Capitol at Washington.

Piah and Grant.

Piah, one of the chiefs supposed to be engaged in the present outbreak, has been to Washington. One day Governor McCook came into his office and found Piah hugging a stove. Thinking it a good chance to deliver a lesson to the Indian, he said: "Piah, why don't you Indians plow and raise crops and build houses? You ought to work. If you did you would not have to come here to borrow my fire, but could buy fire of your own. Why don't you work like white men?" Piah straghtened up at once and proceeded to make a speech. "Me great warrior," said he. "Warrior no plow. Me go to Washington and see John Grant." (The Indians all call Grant "John.") "John Grant great warrior. He no plow. Me see John Grant's squaw. She no work, either, too. Great warriors never work. Tell you what do. You say to John Grant he come here and go with me. We go out and fight 'Rapahoes and Cheyennes and kill' plenty braves and get plenty squaws. Then squaws work and me and John Grant have bully good time. No work, no plow, no nothing."

Whether this proposition was ever forwarded to Grant we do not know. —Denver Tribune.

THE Rabbit Hole sulphur mines which are now owned by one company are being worked again. The furnaces are in full blast, and the company intends to refine a thousand tons of brimstone this Fall.

BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED.

35th YEAR.

The Scientific American.

THE "SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN" IS A large, First-Class Weekly Newspaper of Sixteen Pages, printed in the most beautiful style, profusely illustrated with splendid engravings, representing the newest Inventions and the most recent Advances in the Arts and Sciences; including New and Interesting Facts in Agriculture, Horticulture, the Home, Health, Medical Progress, Social Science, Natural History, Geology, Astronomy. The most valuable practical papers, by eminent writers in all departments of Science, will be found in the Scientific American.

Terms, $3.20 per year; $1.60 half year, which includes postage. Discount to Agents. Single copies, ten cents. Sold by all Newsdealers. Remit by postal order to MUNN & CO., Publishers, 47 Park Row, New York.

PATENTS. In connection with the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, Messrs. MUNN & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents; have had 35 years experience, and now have the largest establishment in the world. Patents are obtained on the best terms. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all inventions patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. By the immense circulation thus given, public attention is directed to the merits of the new patent, and sales or introduction often easily effected.

Any person who has made a new discovery or invention, can ascertain, free of charge, whether a patent can probably be obtained, by writing to MUNN & Co. We also send free our Hand Book about the Patent Laws, Patents, Caveats, Trade-Marks, their costs, and how procured, with hints for procuring advances on inventions. INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 15.....1879

FISH.—On the 2d, Mr. V. G. Thompson placed in Owens River, at a point about opposite Independence, some seventy or eighty of the little catfish brought down from Carson by J. W. McMurry. While remaining in the can the little fellows were visited by a great many, most everybody regarding them with a sentiment of friendship akin to joy, as their horny heads so forcibly recalled the sports and scenes of boyhood. They were furnished by the State Fish Commission, from Sacramento county, and are of the variety known as "bull pouts" in the East, or Schuylkill catfish. They are more delicate in flavor, but do not attain the great size of some of the Mississippi River varities. In no instance has the intelligent transplanting of these fish proved a failure; it is said here that the innumerable "chubs" and suckers may destroy their spawn; but it is vastly more probable that the catfish will in time eat up the said suckers and chubs, and that in two or three years the whole length of the river will be filled with the game fish. Catfish only could have withstood the long trip from Sacramento to Carson and from there here over 250 miles of wagon road; as it was, but a few died, and those were of the largest size. An equal number were put in at Big Pine, and we think some at Bishop Creek, though we are not apprised as to the whole number brought through. The fish were decidedly weak when turned loose, but no one familiar with the nature of a catfish doubts their well-being now. Mr. McMurry and all parties who interested themselve in the matter are entitled to the thanks of the public and future generations.

BEVERIDGE.—Peter Taylor, Esq., now inaugurating some extensive mining operations upon his gold mines in the Beveridge District, was in town yesterday. All the requisite machinery for his new reduction works is on the ground, the grading done, walls built, etc., and his principal business here was to get carpenters to frame and put up the timbers on hand. The works, for the present season, will consist of an 8-foot, iron rimmed arrastra and a pan and settler—the whole being driven by a 15-horse power engine. A 5-stamp battery is to be added in time. The rugged nature of the country rendered the packing in of the machinery an extremely difficult and costly operation, though the boiler, engine, etc., were made in sections expressly with that matter in view. Some twenty days more will see the machinery in motion. All reports received go to show an immense wealth and extent of the mines, but of these we propose to speak hereafter from personal observation. Mr. Taylor's latest work has been the construction of a trail from the mill to this valley—up to the summit of the Inyos and down on this side, to the north of Hahn's Peak and down through Union Cañon, coming out at a point about opposite George's Creek. The trail cost the work of five men for twenty days; it winds about the hills on a grade of three feet to the rod, rendering access to the property comparatively easy. The distance from Independence to Beveridge, by the new trail, is about eighteen miles.

BIG YIELD.—The sage lands at the foot of the Inyos across from Bishop Creek, reclaimed by irrigating ditches from the river and Fish Slough are proving of astonishing fertility. Two hundred and twelve pounds of potatoes, of the "Pearlo" variety, yielded at the rate of three tons per acre and ten tons in all. Some specimens weighed four and one-half pounds, the average size of the whole lot being extraordinarily large. This is from the McNally ranch, near Silver Cañon, supplied with water by a ditch bearing the same name. On the same place four and one-half tons of wheat was harvested from three acres of land.

HOMESTEAD PATENTS.—Patents have been received at the United States Land Office at Bodie for the homesteads of the following named parties, which may be obtained by a surrender to the Register or Receiver of the duplicate receipt issued at the time of making final proof: George B. Day, Moses Hall, Grant B. Cuddeback, John Marboe, Henry Premer, Thomas J. Furbee, Susan Van Ness. All the above patents were issued October 1.

MODOCK.—Old employés of the Modock Company, about twelve in number, are engaged in extracting ore from the mine on their own behalf. They are making a success it; in fact, an extensive strike is reported to have been made, though we have no definite information concerning it.

THE "PINCHOUT."—Messrs. Kelley & Miner, of the Pinchout gold property near Big Pine, started up their arrastra during the past week, for another run. From the twenty tons previously worked it is stated that they cleaned up at the rate of $80 per ton.

MINNIETTA.—The present owners of the old Minnietta mine and mill—Messrs. M. W. Belshaw & Co.—have commenced operations upon the property with a force of ten men, under the immediate charge of Mr. Center.

BEHIND.—The Leota Company at Panamint are reported to be backward in the matter of regular pay-days. Yet the company's property and chances are such as to leave little doubt of its solidity and ultimate success.

NEW COSO.—Some fourteen men are at present employed in the Lucky Jim or New Coso mine at Darwin. The furnace is to be fired up again on the 1st proximo.

ON DIT.—Something important is on the tapis concerning the Phillips & Woolsey gold mines across the river; but just what, remains to be seen.

The Water of Owens Lake.

We have heard many statements as to the true mineral constituents of the water of Owens Big Lake, analyses having been made by chemists of San Francisco and New York; but so far none of the results of such investigation have come to public knowledge—the thing seemingly being regarded as a secret. However, we have the following facts, deduced from the chemical tests and experiments made by the eminent Prof. Phillips, of London:

	GRAINS.
Chloride of sodium	2942.05
Sulphate of sodium	956.80
Carbonate of sodium	2914 43
Sulphate of potassium	35.74
Silicate of potassium	139.54
Organic matter	16.94

Specific gravity 1.76; also traces of iodine.

PERSONAL.—During the past week our town has been enlived by the presence of numerous jurymen, litigants, lawyers and mining men. Prominent among the latter class was Mr. J. Aug. Johnson, a wealthy lawyer of New York, and ex-U. S. Consul General to Algiers. He was looking after the Brown Monster property, and after a close examination of it left for San Francisco....Ex-Attorney General Kittrell, of Nevada, was here and took part in most of the principal cases before the Court. He left for Carson to-day, but proposes returning again in a few weeks; and as he purchased Mr. V. G. Thompson's fine buggy team, has the boss method of traveling over the long, dreary road....C. R. Greathouse, Esq., a distinguished San Francisco attorney, and for a long time owner in the Brown Monster, was here as attorney for plaintiff in the H. M. Isaacs vs. Harris & Rhine suits. He goes upon a short visit to New York and will then return here and fight the matter out....Capt. J. M. Keeler, now energetically pushing operations upon the important Swansea interests, was also in town....Upon his arrival home, Hon. P. Reddy found himself upon the sick list, from a severe cold and exposures of the trip. However, he returns immediately to Bodie, and will from thence go to San Francisco....Joe McDermott, now of Bodie, but one of Inyo's best miners—having seen the Welch case disposed of—struck out northward to-day....Mr. C. T. Reynolds, official short-hand reporter, objects to a personal mention and has gone to the Bay. In a ballroom his backwardness and inate modesty crop out like the Piute monument.....Mr. Jas. Cavanagh, of Lookout, is in town to-day, en route to Bodie....Mr. Peter D. Niver, an ex-teacher and soldier, has been sloshing about the place for a week or more.

GOOD PROSPECT.—Mr. Hedge, who is operating on one of his old locations, just across the river, originally made fifteen years ago, has lately developed a body of ore full four feet wide which, as shown by fifteen assays of fair average samples from across the face, has an average assay value of between $150 and $180 per ton, mostly gold. The same gentleman has two locations on the further side of the White Mountains, one of which ledges crops boldly out for a distance of over 6,000 feet in length and three feet and upwards in width; numerous assays from this vast body of quartz indicate an average assay value of about $35 per ton at a moderate estimate; about $24 of this is gold. These locations are certainly well worth the critical attention of men of means seeking good mines.

GOT A PRESENT.—Mr. Dennis Searles of Borax Lake, the other day made friend T. F. A. Connelly quite a peculiar yet none the less a valuable present. This was a fine two-year-old jack—scientifically, equus jasamarack—for breeding purposes, for which the late owner paid $300 when the animal was but a little over a year old. After the fashion of his kind, this is a real promising and handsome animal, and, what is more to his credit, allowing for his limited years and lengthy ears, differs from those Mono editors in this, to wit: he is not everlastingly braying about his own talents and capabilities and personal superiorities and altitudinous position before all the world.

A KILLING.—Ex-Sheriff Bob Stein, formerly of Nye but at present of Esmeralda county, Nevada, arrived in town about noon to-day from Marietta. At that point a general shooting affray had occurred, in which two men were killed and the third wounded—the names and particulars being unattainable by us at this time. We understand that his mission here was to get the attendance of P. Reddy, Esq.

DEAD AGAIN.—A Chinaman, whose name or designation we are unable to obtain, and which details are of small consequence anyhow, died last night at the washhouse on the old Lentell property. The Celestial friends of deceased turned out this afternoon and gave their defunct brother a respectful burial.

SNOW.—Last Sunday might have been a beautiful day but for the fact that from early morn to dewy eve it was tinctured and beclouded with a driving, almost a furious snow storm in mountain and valley alike.

AT BISHOP.—Dr. F. T. Bicknell, as will be seen by his professional card thif week, is now permanently located at Bishop Creek, where he goes with the best wishes of all this locality.

CARD.—The card of Dr. W. H. George, tendering his professional services to the people of this locality, will be noted among our new advertisements elsewhere.

ELECTION.—The annual election of officers of Inyo Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., will take place at the stated meeting on Saturday evening next.

KEARSARGE.—In the Cliff tunnel heading there is now a width of four feet of solid ore, but all of low grade.

LONE PINE.—Several Lone Pine "mentions" pass over until next week.

DISTRICT COURT.

HON. THERON REED, JUDGE.

Court met on Friday, November 7, 1879. Present—His Honor, Theron Reed, Judge, the Sheriff and Clerk.

The People vs. Michael Welch—Ordered that a jury of twelve be impaneled to inqure into the question of sanity or insanity of defendant; venire for twenty-five jurors issued, returnable at 10 o'clock on SATURDAY, Nov. 8.

Jury consisting of the following persons was sworn to try the issue: E. Robinson, John Willett, A. Parker, Thos. Ellers, Walter James, Thos. Kehoe, L. Munzinger, Wm. F. Matlack, F. Lawrence, S. A. Densmore and Jos. Schalten, foreman. The people were represented by District Attorney Snelling and A. R. Conklin; the defendant by J. R. Kittrell and S. P. Moffat. C. F. Reynolds, official reporter. Gideon Hood, Wm. F. Welch, S. P. Moffat, James Cunningham, Peter McChann, Nathan Rhine, Joseph McDermott, H. M. Isaacs and J. R. Kittrell were sworn and testified, being cross-examined by the prosecution.

After argument by counsel and charge to the jury by the Court, the case was submitted to the jury, who returned the verdict that they found "the defendant insane."

MONDAY, Nov. 10.

H. M. Isaacs vs. Nathan Rhine, and H. M. Isaacs vs. Isaac Harris. On motion of S. P. Moffat, J. R. Kittrell and C. R. Greathouse were entered of record as attorneys for plaintiff in above entitled action.

J. S. Rothschild & Co. vs. Jacob Vagt—Referred to Court Commission, and settled.

Ordered, That Michael Welch be remanded to the custody of the Sheriff and committed to the Insane Asylum, and upon his becoming sane to be redelivered to said Sheriff.

TUESDAY, Nov. 11.

Court met and took recess until

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 11.

H. M. Isaacs vs. Nathan Rhine and H. M. Isaacs vs. Isaac Harris—Continued for the term.

L. G. Hanson. vs. Lulu Wapelhorst—Dismissal set aside and cause continued for the term.

P. Reddy vs. Coso Mining Company—Damages waived and judgment entered as per complaint.

Patrick Mullen vs. Emigrant Mining Company—Judgment ordered in the sum of $7,078 86.

J. S. Rothschild & Co. vs. D. Stubblefield—Judgment for plaintiffs in the sum of $1,190 82.

FRIDAY, No. 14.

Thos. Goodale vs. Rafael Diaz—Passed for the term.

Jas. Shaw vs. Seth G. Sneden—Referee's report of sale filed.

S. J. Newland vs. Thos. May—Judgment for plaintiff in the sum of $638 97.

Thos. Ellers. vs. Geo. L. Drake—Judgment for plaintiff and stay of proceedings granted for twenty days.

J. S. Rothschild & Co. vs. Jacob Vagt—Judgment for plaintiff.

BORAX LAKE.—Mr. T. F. A. Connelly returned a few days ago from a visit to Searles & Co's famous borax works at Borax Lake, located just on the line between this and Kern county. The company is now turning out regularly fifty tons of refined borax per month, being an average of just one ton each for the men employed, all told. The works are doubtless the most perfect in plan, appointments, extent and condition of any in the world, and have at hand the most extensive and inexhaustible supply of the crude material from which the merchantable borax is manufactured. The works have an actual capacity of six hundred tons per month, but owing to the present limited demands of the world's market, are run to but one-sixth of their capacity, as above stated. The locality, its surroundings, products, modes, capabilities, geological, minerological, chemical and, last but not least, its agricultural peculiarities together constitute this the most interesting field for the merely curious as well as the scientific to be found in this whole country; and yet to most readers, the personal adventures, histories and characteristics of the hospitable and noble men who have spent half a life time in persistent efforts to make this spot artificially what it now is, would be far the most interesting if told to fact and spirit.

PANAMINT.—The mill started up, according to programme, on the 20th of last month; after running ten days it had to be shut down for lack of chemicals, an expected supply of which, however, arrived that same day, as our informant met the team in the cañon. The result of the ten days' run was not definitely known as only a partial clean up had been made; but we are assured that the turn-out gave promise of being considerably better than originally anticipated.

CITIZENS.—In the District Court Alfred R. Norris and Gilbert C. Gracey were duly admitted to citizenship.

Death of Dr. Lesesne and E. A. Friend.

In the death of Dr. Lesesne Sunday morning and E. A. Friend this morning unusual interest is taken in the dread destroyer, pneumonia, inasmuch as it seems that all classes are liable to be taken down without a moment's warning, and in spite of all that anxious friends can do gradually fail for a few short days, when the end comes, swift and sure, shocking friends and relatives only as a dreadful epidemic can.

The Doctor was not physically a strong man, and he may have been a little careless in exposing himself to the night air of this high altitude; but in Friend's case his friends were completely bewildered when the news of his fate came known. He was a young man full of youthful vigor and ambition, of temperate habits and the picture of health as he walked the streets only a few days since. He leaves an estimable and accomplished wife to mourn his loss and her great grief is heartrending to witness.

Dr. Lesesne was about thirty-five years of age, a graduate of the New Orleans Medical College, and of high standing in the profession. He served in what was known as the Washington Artillery of New Orleans in the Confederate service during the late war. He is reported as a brave soldier and a perfect gentleman. He was severely wounded in '63 at the battle of Gettysburg. At the close of the war he came to California, and in 1869 lived at Cerro Gordo, Inyo county, and later in Arizona, and previous to coming to Mammoth City he enjoyed a large practice in Darwin. The Doctor's generous and affable disposition made him many friends. During the few days of his illness he was kindly cared for by Judge Peterson and other friends in Bodie. He leaves a sister, Louisa Lesesne, living in Mobile, of whom he frequently spoke during his illness.—Bodie Standard, Nov. 10.

CERRO GORDO LETTER.

We excerpt the following from a late Cerro Gordo letter, giving several items of interest:

The Union mine has shut down for an indefinite period, and the furnace is expected to run a few weeks longer on the proceeds of a general clean-up. This phase in our history was expected—nay, prophecied, by many. It is affirmed the same policy was adopted under similar conditions on a previous occasion. The present action will fall far short of the desired effect; the value of property will not be depreciated, nor will capitalists be deterred from investing in our mines.

The large bodies of ore now uncovered in outside mines are in themselves a sufficient guaranty of the wealth and stability of the camp. This is one of the richest mineral regions in the world. We have not solid mountains of gold and silver, but we have the next best thing—very large bodies of ore that will pay $100 and upwards per ton. Mining men on the Pacific coast are already agitated over our recent strikes; capital will seek us of its own accord; its magical touch will cover these rugged mountains with prosperous mining camps; and transform the desert at their base into gardens most pleasant to dwell in. It will fructify the prospector and husbandman, now struggling for a precarious subsistence, and transform them into the wealthy real estate owners of the future.

A Mexican running an arrastra in Beveridge District hired two Indians a few days ago to cut bunch grass for his burro. After working an hour the taller, and we presume the largest of the two, Big-mouthed Sam, sat down and commenced whetting his knife on a rock. After a few passes the friction of the knife caused it to assume a bright yellow color, which at first puzzled, then interested him. Breaking a piece off, he handed it to his companion for inspection. The latter, a half-civilized Indian, gazed at it long and earnestly. This silent and uninterrupted contemplation seemed to awaken a pleasant train of thought. Gradually his features assumed an intelligent expression, a smile of pride and triumph hovered around the corners of his mouth, and the fire of ambition kindled in his eye. He beheld in that unshapely, rugged, yellow lump kaleidoscopic visions of innumerable blankets, ponies and plug hats. Controlling these newly awakened emotions by a superhuman effort, with true Indian stoicism, he observed: "Pard, we are in luck; our fortune is made. By the Great Spirit we are chiefs, and the biggest braves in the Piute nation; waugh!" And his companion, catching the spirit of his more intelligent brother, supplemented this neatly worded speech by another expressive "waugh!" It was settled; spurning the asses' fodder with their moccasins, these noble red men struck a bee-line for the cabin of the padrone. They found him knee deep in frijoles, blockading an immense tortilla, and shedding copious tears over some chili carrajo. After relating with Indian terseness their discovery, they offered to sell him their right, title and interest in the ground for the sum of one hundred dollars. The lucky Mexican accepted their offer, and he is now the owner of a fabulously rich mine.

There are over 50 locations made on gold leads in this locality. Hunter, Hughes & Co. are successfully operating their ores in a steam arrastra and Mr. P. Taylor is building another and constructing a road, commencing at a point east of Georges Creek up to the mines, preparatory to a Spring excitement. There are also some five Mexican arrastras at work in the same district. Mr. W. R. Johnson, a few days ago, collected $1,500 worth of gold bullion on little bills due to him by several of these arrastra men.

Dan. Williams is elected Recorder of the Cerro Gordo Mining District for the ensuing year. Dan. is the lucky owner of a mammoth gold lead about two and a half miles northwest of Cerro Gordo that will be worth a fortune some day.

Kelly and White, practical smelters, are going to run their furnace at Belmont, three miles south of Cerro Gordo, this Winter. They intend to smelt and refine some very rich silver ores.

We had a grand ball here a few days ago; it was a recherche affair, and the elite of Cerro Gordo were in attendance. Of course our belle was the center of attraction.

THE last development in social science has been made by a burglar in the Illinois Penitentiary. He declares that his calling is as honorable as any other. He says it is a generally admitted axiom that the strong in society control the weak. Men acquire property by means of their superior skill, strength and cunning. This is just what he does, and if people are not strong enough to defend their possesions against him they must suffer. His argument is wonderfully like those by which stock gambling and kindred pursuits are defended, and although they have not yet succeeded in convincing the Governor that the bold disputant ought to be set at liberty, they are admitted to possess the virtue of unusual frankness.

THE PRICE OF SILVER.—We trust that the representatives of the Eastern press now here, who visited the depths of the C. and C. shaft yesterday, will be able to explain on their return to the East that silver mining is not the joke which it has been described to be, that every silver dollar wrested from the earth causes, as a rule, a dollar's worth of toil to bring it to the surface and prepare it for the stamp of the ugly goddess and the sick eagle. The Inter-Ocean, which has a representative here, has always been friendly to the proposition to make and keep silver a measure of value alongside of gold and with the relative value toward gold which silver maintained for a hundred generations. We are satisfied the representative of that paper now here will be ready to testify on his return that if cost in money, in labor and in pluck is what makes a product of the earth precious, silver is a precious metal. There certainly is not so much of it in the world that it is yet in the way, and a good many people think if it were twice as plenty there would not be an oversupply. Surely the men of Nevada have toiled as hard as any men since their coming here; their eyes and hearts have been denied as many pleasures, and the majority of them have little to show for it, save the patient, earnest, uncomplaining and hearty manhood which comes of a long wrestle with the desert and its disappointments.—Virginia Enterprise.

HIRAM CHESTER, sixty years old, and for many years a resident of Cherry Creek, Nevada, where he was always regarded as a thrifty, well-doing man, one day last week conceived the idea that the wrath of God was upon him, and that he must take the life of his youngest child in order to appease that wrath. Filled with this idea, he seized a carving-knife and started for the school-house, about a half a mile away, where his daughter was a pupil. Mrs. Chester, as soon as he had started, ran for help, and was fortunate enough to find two men, who hurried after and intercepted Chester before he reached the school-house, and these were soon joined by two other men. They hardly knew how to approach him, as he held the large carving-knife in his hand; but he spoke to them and did not appear to be different from usual, except that he insisted upon slaying his little girl to appease the wrath that was consuming him. He gave up the knife, however, and remained with the men until a constable came, who took him to a place of safety, and from there he will probably be taken to Stockton. He still complains of the consuming wrath, but otherwise he is perfectly rational.—Virginia Enterprise.

THE Mount Washington railroad is a marvel of engineering. It is three miles in length, and rises 8,625 feet, or one foot in four. The principal feature of the railroad is the cog-rail in the center of the track. On each driving shaft of the engine is a cog-wheel. The teeth catch the cogs in the center rail, propelling the car up the mountain. The boilers of the engine are inclined downward, and when on a steep grade are quite horizontal. Every locomotive takes one car, and is provided with a double set of driving wheels, that any danger from breakage of machinery is prevented. The ascent requires one hour and a half, and one could step off and on at any point. The track is strongly built and daily inspected by the men continually employed to police it. In ascending, persons in the forward car have their feet on a level with the heads of those who sit aft near the engine, which, going up, is the propelling power, and going down the repelling force.

The steepest point is Jacob's ladder, a trestle 30 feet high and 300 feet long, the grade 1,604 feet to the mile, or thirteen and one-half inches to the yard.—Scientific Press.

"A LEARNED German doctor," says a Paris paper, "has discovered a means of dyeing the eyes of animals in general, and of man in particular, any color that he pleases. He is accompanied on his travels of propagation by a dog with a rose-colored eye, a cat with an orange-red eye, and a monkey with a chromo-yellow eye. But the most curious specimens of his are a negro with one eye black and the other blue, and a negress with one eye gold-colored and the other silver-white. The doctor says the process of transformation, far from injuring the sight, strengthens and improves it."

THE old Meadow Lake District, just across the Nevada line in California, is looking up. By a new process thirteen tons of ore from the U. S. Grant mine has been made to yield $1,281. There are many ledges in the district that give good assays, but heretofore no process has been found that would save the precious metals. If the new process is what is claimed, there will be a Meadow Lake boom sure.—Esmeralda Herald.

ANOTHER attempt to abolish the Jewish Sabbath, or, rather, to unite it with the Christian Sunday, so that the Hebrews will not be at the disadvantage of doing business but five instead of six days a week, will probably be made at at approaching conference in London. Nearly all the synagogues in Europe will be represented at this meeting, and the general opinion seems to be that this change is only a matter of time.

THE Northern Pacific Railroad is, either speculatively or on account of the real and very great improvement in its condition, joining enthusiastically in the "boom." Its stock has so risen that the creditors of Jay Cooke, who accepted Northern Pacific stock for their debts at a low valuation, find themselves now repaid in full, and with ten per cent. in their pockets.

SENATOR DAVID DAVIS has written to the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate at Washington requesting that a new and larger chair than the one he now occupies in the chamber be made for him.

The Old Man's Flying Machine.

An enterprising saloon keeper on Grand River avenue is always on the lookout for any novelty that may draw customers, and this fact may have been known to a bland-faced old man who entered the place and confidentially begun: "If I could draw a crowd of 100 men here, what sum would you be willing to give me?"

"What do you mean?" asked the saloonist.

"If it was known that I had in my possession a flying machine, and that it was to fly from your door on a certain day, wouldn't the novelty collect a thirsty crowd?"

"Yes, I think so. If you have a flying machine and want to show it off to-morrow night, I'll give you a dollar, and if the machine is a success perhaps I'll buy it."

"Well, sir," continued the old man in a whisper, "I've got the boss! She flies from the word go! All I've got to do is to toss her into the air, and away she sails. I'll be on hand at seven o'clock to-morrow night."

The matter became noised about, and next evening fifty or sixty persons were around the saloon to witness the experiment. The old man arrived on time, having some sort of a bundle under his arm, and he collected his dollar from the saloonist, and secured several "treats" from the crowd. When everything was finally ready he stood on the walk clear of the spectators and said:

"Gentlemen, I warrant this thing to fly; I didn't invent it myself, but I am now acting as State agent to dispose of county rights. Hundreds of men have spent years of anxious thought and thousands of dollars in seeking to invent flying machines, but this one leads them all. She will now fly. Please stand back and give her a chance to rise."

The crowd fell back and the man let fall the cover, hiding his bundle, and gave an old speckled hen a toss into the air. She uttered a dismal sqawk, sailed this way and that, and finally bumped against a telegraph pole and settled down on the roof of a low shed, cackling in an indignant manner at being turned loose in a strange neighborhood. It was full a minute before the crowd was sure that it was a hen, and during that time the old man is supposed to have run a distance of seven blocks. A few tried to overhaul him, but it was no use.—Detroit Free Press.

THE DEL MONTE.—Yesterday evening the water had been so far lowered that the drift on the 500 level could be seen, though the stream from that place was very strong and the progress of lowering the water below that point necessarily slow. By this evening, however, it is thought the volume will have so decreased that a view may be had of the entire mouth of the drift, and which has been completely submerged since the 14th of last April. The volume of water now flowing through the drain tunnel is something truly wonderful, and when the tank is run in conjunction with the pump it is so materially increased that people living down Willow Gulch say they are afraid of a freshet. The big pump and all the machinery attached is running smoothly and in good condition. Foreman McKinley is anxious to see that bugbear drift that he may know what manner of mining country he will have to attack, but judging from his thorough knowledge of mining he will pronounce it nothing difficult when he gets a glimpse of it. During the past ten days the stock has proven very sensitive, dropping from $6½ to $3½, and jumping to $6 yesterday.—Esmeralda Herald.

CARLOTTA, the widow of Maximillian, has suddenly shown great mental improvement, and her complete restoration to sanity is now considered probable.

The Marietta Tragedy.

Our correspondent at Marietta, under date of the 13th instant, furnishes the following details of a desperate fight which occurred at that place last Wednesday. The correspondent says: Our quiet camp was yesterday the scene of a terrible tragedy, in which John Brophy and R. Gillespie were killed and Henry Brophy badly injured. For some time an ill-feeling has existed against Thos. McLaughlin by the Brophys and Gillespie, but it was supposed to be settled. When on the morning of the 11th of November, McLaughlin was met by the Brophys, who were armed, and told to heel himself right off, McLaughlin was unarmed and went to his house remaining there until yesterday (November 12), when upon leaving his house Henry Brophy commenced firing upon him and a murderous assault ensued, in which all the parties were engaged. Some fifteen or twenty pistol and rifle shots were fired, resulting in the death of John Brophy and Richard Gillespie, and the wounding of Henry Brophy dangerously in the shoulder. Hon. A. G. Turner, as Coroner, is here investigating the matter, and a Coroner's jury is now examining witnesses. Such was the wild confusion and firing in the streets that it is difficult to arrive at the facts of who fired the fatal shots. McLaughlin was facing Henry Brophy, being at his own house about 100 feet in the rear of McLaughlin, while Gillespie was across the street firing at McLaughlin. It is generally believed that an accidental shot from Henry Brophy killed his brother. It is a terrible affair. Our people are in mourning over the event. All the parties were much respected. John Brophy leaves a wife and a child about four years old. The formerly lived in Aurora.—Esmeralda Herald.

TROUBLE COMING.—Though 1880 promises to be a year of prosperity, it will have its calamities, principal among which will be the Presidential election. By the way, the scientists have not had anything to say lately about the conjunction of the planets, which they had arranged to come off in 1880 or 1881, and which may perhaps burn up the world, or freeze it to death, or demolish it in some manner or another. If the conjunction has been postponed or abandoned people would like to know it. If it is to come off according to former announcement, people want to know it too. They will not care to be striving to make money in stocks if the world is going to smash in a couple of years, and real estate owners ought to have warning to dispose of their property before it is rendered valueless by the crash. If the conjunction of the planets should destroy the world and will destroy Hanlan and Courtney, and O'Leary and Rowell and half a dozen base ball clubs, the rest of the population will cheerfully accept the calamity.—Stock Report.

A BOY has recently made an extensive discovery of Roman coins near Nassenfuss, in Styria. Near the high road, about a foot and a half below the surface of the ground, he found nearly 5,000 coins, almost all copper, the greater portion in an earthenware pot, and the rest lying upon and around it. The pot was quite soft, but after a short exposure to the air it became quite hard. Owing to oxidation and infiltration of clay, most of the coins were welded together in a shapeless mass, and great pains and care were needed to separate them with as little injury as possible. They belonged to the reigns of Severus, Gallianus, Claudian, Aurelianus and Probus. The largest portion belong to these two. There were none of Diocletian, so that probably they were hidden shortly before his reign.

HON. JOS. WASSON has completed his raport upon the Bodie District for the Bullion Club of New York, and forwarded it to-day. He will go over to Aurora to-morrow morning, and leave that place for Independence and Cerro Gordo, making an inspection of the mines in the latter camp. Thence he will go to Mojave, and to San Francisco. His legislative duties will keep him in Sacramento this Winter, and we expect to hear a good report from him. Mr. Wasson has during the past year done Bodie some service, and in turn Bodie has conferred upon him the doubtful honor of sending him to the Legislature. He will be followed from the camp with the best wishes of a large circle of friends.—Bodie Free Press, Nov. 15.

As the time approaches for the holding of the National Conventions for the nominations of the Presidential candidates, the different cities east of the Rocky Mountains are beginning to put in bids to secure them. Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Philadelphia all urge their claims, and there are a dozen other cities which, if they thought they had the least show for getting one or both Conventions, would be as clamorous as their more populous rivals. The places for holding the Conventions are fixed by the various National Committees, and as neither of them will take place until next year, there will be ample time for discussing the question of place.

PROF. SCHMIDT thinks that sponges may be propagated "by cutting the live ones into small pieces, attaching them to lumps of rock and sinking them to proper depths" in the sea. We have seen a few live sponges that we would not object to seeing this experiment tried upon, even if there wasn't the shade of a shadow of hope that they would propagate worth a cent.—Boston Transcript.

A Scene with a Lion.

A scene occurred in a traveling menagerie while exhibiting at Towanda, Penn., which thrilled with horror the spectators, and showed the power of a man over a lion.

The animals in one cage, two lions and a tiger, were fed at that time, being separated by swinging doors, which are fastened during the feeding, and afterward lifted, throwing the animals together as a happy family.

These doors were lifted after it was supposed the animals had finished their meal, but a large piece of meat had been left by the lioness. This the tiger saw, and was about to spring upon it when the lion covered it with his paw.

Prof. McDonald, the trainer, spoke to the lion, but he refused to move, and he then tried to force the meat from the animal's paw with the feeding fork, but without effect as the lion held on and growled defiance.

To the horror of those standing around, the Professor opened the door of the cage and sprang almost upon the beast, which in turn sprang upon the man, striking him a powerful blow on the breast that staggered him and lacerated the flesh.

An attendant, thinking to assist the now powerless trainer, caught him by the foot and pulled him near the door. The lion again struck him, tearing the flesh in his thigh.

The situation at this time was one of terrible suspense to those who were involuntary witnesses to it. Ladies fainted, children screamed, but the trainer, who seemed suddenly to recover his senses, was on his feet in an a moment.

He looked the beast squarely in the eyes, and met him half-way, maintaining the steady gaze. He said in a firm, yet affectionate manner:

"Ned, what are you doing? Do you want to kill me, your best friend?"

The Towanda paper says it really seemed that the "king of all the forest" understood every word that was being said to him, for, dropping his eyes, he went to the piece of meat and shoved it to his keeper.

He then approached his trainer, looking very penitent for what he had done, lying calmly down at his feet.—Philadelphia Record.

THE editor can as hastily scratch out as you scratch off a few lines. To prevent the equilibrium being disturbed and the editor from imagining that you are the editor and he the correspondent, don't say "we"—use "I" instead. Two-thirds of the waste-baskets of the country are filled with letters written on both sides of the paper. You can no more induce a careful editor to publish an anonymous communication than you can cash a note at a bank without a good indorsement. The wise correspondent getteth down to business at once, while the foolish one goes beating about the bush. The wise one's letter is published in full, while that of the foolish one is butchered. Be wise in time. The proof reader is not an intimate friend of every man in your town, don't go to school with their sisters, hence don't know how to spell their names. Write names so that the compositor won't have to stand on his head or lie at full length on the floor and study the manuscript with his tongue hanging out a yard in his efforts to make United States out of goose tracks in ink. The man who abbreviates words deserves to die. Poetry—well—that is, poetry be hanged. The editor's wrath is just and his vengeance swift and sure when you try to foist personal grievances and private quarrels into print. Hire a hall for the purpose. The fact that Hezekiah Jenks has just opened a large stock of dry goods, groceries, boots and shoes, and invites his friends and patrons to call on him, is an advertisement and not a matter of news, and should always be accompanied with the cash. For terms apply to business manager. Finally, brethren, get a piece of perforated cardboard, and have your wife or sister, or some other fellow's sister, work Dave Crockett's motto on it; keep it hanging in front of your desk, and blaze away.—Calaveras Citizen.

WHILE seeking for precious metals near Rough creek some months ago, a Spaniard named Thomas Patanell, came upon a peculiar character of decomposed rock, which he described as resembling red, yellow and brown ochre. He commenced experimenting upon the stuff, and found that with manipulation it could be reduced to a good quality of fire-proof paint. At a considerable cost Patanelli has put up a rock crusher and pulverizer, and is now busily engaged manufacturing material for his new enterprise.—Bodie News.

THE cost of working ore by the Gould process is the same as by the ordinary mill process, with additional cost of pile-roasting the ore. This additional cost does not exceed one dollar per ton. The cost of working ore in ordinary stamp mills is, we believe, about eight dollars per ton, generally speaking. If this is correct, the cost of reducing ore by the Gould process will not exceed nine dollars per ton.—Truckee Republican.

THE Panama canal project seems to have fallen through. De Lesseps failed to get the moneyed support necessary to his plan, and the American project for a canal has dropped out of sight. A canal across the Isthmus of Panama will be built at some time, and it would seem that now, that this country is so prosperous and possesses so much money, is the time to inaugurate the work. Perhaps when Gen. Grant gets settled down to business, the project of an American canal may take some definite shape.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22.....1879

Miss Josephine Meeker has contributed to the New York Herald a very graphic account of her captivity with the Utes. After nearly a month of detention, forced journeys over mountains and alkali deserts, constant apprehension of outrage or murder, the little party of unfortunates was released by General Adams. The story of this captivity, as related by Miss Meeker, is a most remarkable one, and stamps her a heroine. To her quick wit, courage and knowledge of Indian manner and language can undoubtedly be attributed the fact that she is alive to-day. The first trouble, according to her statement, was caused by the plowing of land in accordance with instructions from the Government. The Utes had an idea that as soon as the land was plowed it would cease to belong to them, and consequently fired upon the plowmen. Afterwards Chief Johnson assaulted Mr. Meeker and forced him from the house. Then several councils were held, and Miss Meeker's opinion is that the Utes, expecting the advance of Thornburg's men, were secretly preparing to ambush and destroy them. After the conflict with the troops twenty armed Indians came to the Agency and began the horrid work of murder there. While this saturnalia was at its height, Miss Meeker and the other women and children attempted to escaped. They had not gone a hundred yards before they were discovered, and the bullets began to whizz around them, and Mrs. Meeker was wounded. The ladies, Mrs. Meeker, Mrs. Price and Miss Meeker and the children were compelled to submit to innumerable degrations and privations.

The Porte has asked Minister Layard to explain the approaching movement of the British channel squadron into Turkish waters. At a recent interview the Sultan told Layard that his Ministers had submitted to him a proposition for the immediate introduction of reforms in the administration of Turkish affairs, but his authority over his subjects would suffer if he appeared to act under pressure from the English Government. Layard promised to communicate the declaration of the Sultan to Lord Salisbury, and under these circumstances the order to Admiral Hornby, to sail eastward, is declared by the Port to be inexplicable. It is said that Layard has been instructed to hold no further communications with the Porte regarding Asia Minor, but to send for the British fleet so that it may anchor in Turkish waters. Subsequent proceedings will depend on whether the Turks will proceed to the fulfillment of their promise.

The New York Mining Record says there has been a slight improvement in the value of domestic lead, and the market has again assumed a very fine tone. Buyers have taken all the stock offering at 5 and 5¼ cents, sales aggregating 600 and 800 tons, mostly Selby, and there is nothing to be had under that price, with holders generally asking 5⅓. There have been sales of refined at St. Louis, at 5¼ cents, which is equal to 6¾ cents here, and the market there is now quite bare of stock. Here the nominal quotation is set at 5⅝ and 5⅞ cents. The position of the market is undoubtedly strong, and the available supplies at the West are by no means in excess of the increased requirements of consumption, and the impression is very general with the trade here that values will go still higher before the end of the year.

The New York Sun gives the following majorities to the successful candidates, the figures being adduced from the official returns of the recent election in that State: Cornell (Rep.), Governor, 40,172; Haskins (Rep.), Lieut. Governor, 1,130; Carr (Rep.), Secretary of State, 4,411; Wadsworth (Rep.), Comptroller, 7,659; Ward (Rep.), Attorney General, 7,909; Wendell (Rep.), Treasurer, 4,651; Seymour (Dem.) Engineer and Surveyor, 9,969; Kelly's vote, 75,470.

In Reno, a few nights ago, a very unfortunate accident occurred. S. M. Oakes, a respectable citizen of that place was shot and instantly killed by Mrs. Dr. T. N. Snow, formerly of Bodie. Oakes came to the house of Mrs. Snow after the doctor, who happened to be away. He rapped on the window, but being deaf he did not hear Mrs. Snow, who called "Who are you?" several times. Thinking it was a burglar she fired, hitting him in the breast.

Gov. Cresswell, of Michigan, has appointed Fernando B. Beaman United States Senator, to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Chandler.

"PLAIN SAILING."

The San Francisco Chronicle, of the 17th, publishes a long interview had by one of its reporters, with ex-Senator and ex-Constitution-maker Hager in relation to the knotty question as to whether county officers elect go into office on the first Monday after the first day of January next, or not until March following, as under the old instrument. Judge Hager thinks it is a clear case that the present officers do not go out of office till March; the Chronicle coincides, and thinks it a case of "plain sailing." It seems to base this conclusion quite as much upon the reputation of Judge Hager as an able jurist as upon the force of his arguments actually advanced. It states that the Judge, as a member of the Constitutional Convention either framed the sections bearing on the queston at issue, else revised them, therefore that he ought to know what effect they were intended to have. In an abstract sense, this is or should be true; in reality, such an opinion loses value in this: a "jurist" who, after careful "revision," would permit such perplexing ambiguities to stand in such an instrument and particular, either did not know what their effect was to be, else did not care; in either case, it is a s heer waste of words to endeavor to give weight to an opinion by adding the weight of the name of the giver of the opinion as an "able jurist" thus called upon to interpret ambiguities of his own creation. If he has the ability to now make plain that which equally able jurists say plainly means the opposite, he ought to have had the ability to have provided against any cause for such remarkable results. A single properly worded sentence in each of several different important provisions of this new Constitution would have saved a vast deal of future trouble and expense; but such were not supplied in several cases where most re-quired simply because those of the framers clear sighted enough to foresee and supply such amendments, had settled down to the belief such labor would be lost, because of the then apparent certainty that the whole instrument would be rejected anyway.

But Judge Hager's arguments have weight independent of his own merely personal opinions and standing as a jurist, which latter would not have been brought in question but for the fact that he revised these ambiguities into ambiguities still. Notwithstanding the possible force of those arguments, the question is a muddle still. We do not assume to be able to throw much light upon it, and shall refer to but one point with object in view. Judge Hagar says the new Constitution makes no provision in regard to the terms of County and Municipal officers. This is certainly a mistake in one particular: it says (Section 10 of the Schedule), "In order that future elections in this State shall conform to the requirements of this Constitution, the terms of all officers elected at the first election under the same shall be, respectively one year shorter than the terms now fixed by law or this Constitution." Now, as shown by the words we have italized, the terms of county officers, as well as all others, are affected by express provision of this Constitution. These officers were elected on the day and in the manner prescribed by this Constution, therefore, under this Constitution and not the old, notwithstanding that the time and general requirements of the latter were not changed. The new Constitution in express language does shorten the terms at one end, but not at both ends: it says in precise words that they must be shortened "one year," but does not say, even by implication, that they are to be shortened to the extent of a year and two months. It is a fair inference, in the absence of express provisions to the contrary, that two-year terms were to be reduced to one year terms, not to ten months

It would appear now that the amicacable adjustment of the affairs with the Indians, or proving the guilt of the parties implicated in the White River difficulties, is extremely discouraging, and unless there is a change of front on the part of the Indians, a speedy termination of commission labors may be looked for, so far as their dealings with the Utes direct is concerned. Ouray's power to-day is trembling in the balance, and within the next few days we shall probably witness the final act of success on his part in establishing his absolute authority over the tribe, or his virtual dethronement and the ascendancy of the war faction.

Herodotus spoke of two figures of Sesostris, the Egyptian conqueror, carved on rocks in Asia Minor, and one of them he described. The second figure, answering to the description, has been discovered by the Swedish Vice Consul at Smyrna.

Protestants in Portugal are now accorded the same civil rights and privileges that other human beings enjoy there. This is something new, and is due to the good sense and liberality of the reigning monarch.

THE MINING DEBRIS QUESTION.

In regard to the mining debris decision, the San Francisco Chronicle, says: "Though the decision of the Supreme Court in the mining debris suit turned upon a technicality, raised on demurrer to the complaint, it seems to have been regarded in the mining towns as a substantial victory over the agricultural interest, and has been widely celebrated as such with demonstrative jubilation.

Ostensibly the Court in rendering the decision passed no opinion upon the merits of the case. The only point which it assumed to decide was simply that the plaintiffs must bring separate suits against the miners running debris into streams instead of joining them as defendants in a single action. Yet the miners regard the decision as virtually and practically deciding the whole case in their favor, inasmuch as it will be next to impossible to prove the amount of damage caused by each mining company, or that the act of any one company is sufficient of itself to produce the injury complained of. Moreover, if the plaintiffs are obliged to bring separate suits against the almost innumerable parties who are engaged in hydraulic mining, the proceedings will be ruinously expensive and so slow that this generation will not live to see the end of the controversy. The decision also has the effect of putting an end, at least in their present shape, to the proceedings instituted by the city of Marysville against the hydraulic miners of Sierra, Plumas and Nevada counties to enjoin them from the further sending of debris into the Yuba and Feather rivers and their tributaries.

This question involves a most deplorable conflict between two great interests, and nearly concerns a very large element of our population. Each side makes out a strong prima facie case upon the equities, and each would sustain immense pecuniary loss by a decision unqualifiedly in favor of the other. To enjoin the miners from prosecuting their work would entail ruin upon many prosperous communities, would put an end to a vast industry, destroy an immense amount of capital, and throw thousands of men out of employment. On the other hand, a decision affirming their right to go on as heretofore with their mining operations, regardless of the effect upon the agriculturalists of the valleys, would, in the absence of preventive measures, cause great loss and injury to a large agricultural population.

THE TAX RECEIPT CASE.

In his card elsewhere in this issue Mr. Huger again animadverts in pretty round terms at the law and judgment by which he, as an individual, is, in one sense, made a victim for the short comings of an incorporated mining company of which he was an employé, as therein set forth. This case has been before us for some time, but not until the present have we inquired into its merits, as presented by both sides, sufficiently to justify an expression of our opinion regarding the same. As we do not see that this decision creates any new conditions whatever affecting deputies or agents, we are constrained to say we think Mr. Huger's warning to them quite as unnecessary as the implication of a biased decision is unjust to the Court. Let the equities be what they may, the judgment is clearly in perfect accord with common law.

Assessor Dillon's duties required him to collect regular poll taxes from certain employés of the Emigrant Mining Company. According to law and usage, the demand was made of the employer, in this case represented by Supt. Peter Taylor. Mr. Taylor accepted the duty only so far as to recommend Mr. Huger, the company's book keeper, as a reliable and capable person to make the collections and deliver the receipts. Accordingly Dillon made Huger his deputy by usual form, and left with him the necessary number of receipts (nineteen sets of three each, aggregating $114) to fill out, collect and deliver to the men. This he did and in due time returned the corresponding stubs to Dillon, but without the money they represented as having been paid. In his settlement with the county Dillon had to make this account good out of his own pocket, and did do so. Dillon, it is plain, could look to no one else for the missing money than to the deputy whose return of the stubs as paid would of course be accepted as an acknowledgement that he had received the money and was accountable for it. This made it appear an individual transaction throughout, and which plaintiff claimed it to have been all the time. So far as the facts could be made to appear in this way, Mr. Huger might have received and appropriated the money, or delivered the receipts as presents to the men whose names he had written upon them. But it is plain Dillon had a legal right to demand of him as an individual and agent either the receipts or the cash, and that is all there is this decision as affecting deputies.

On the other hand, Mr. Huger has a perfect vindication of his integrity. He accepted this appointment and its duties without promise or expectation of pay. He handed over the receipts to the men, charging the amouuts as so much cash paid them by the company, expecting the latter to make the sum good to him or the Assessor next pay day; next pay day never came. He did all this precisely as he would have performed any other clerical duty for the company that employed him, and from whose Superintendent, there is no room to doubt, he had instructions to charge the men with their respective receipts to the present credit of the company, to be paid by the latter as above stated. In this way he made himself security for the company. The company acknowledges this debt but can't pay. If its stockholders as individuals have a particle of decency about them they will not permit Mr. Huger to suffer this loss, which never would have befallen him but for desire to do his supposed duty as their employé.

Texas is anxious that our extradition treaty with Mexico should be overhauled. As it stands a Mexican cannot be extradited for crimes committed in Texas, nor a Texan for crimes in Mexico, and just now the Texans are mad because they cannot get hold of Pedro Garcia, who killed the Brackett (Texas) Deputy Sheriff who was taking him to jail, and fled across the Rio Grande. The Mexican authorities arrested the man and put him in jail at Piedras, but, as he was a Mexican, Judge Soda refused to surrender him, and hence the Texan outcry, though they cannot blame the Mexicans, as Gov. Hubbard refused to surrender one of their scamps under similar circumstances in 1878.

Mr. W. B. Taylor, a newspaper man well and favorably known in the sagebrush newspaper world, is now in editorial charge of the Bodie Standard—whether to its improvement in that department or otherwise we feel too diffident just now to say—people—"the unthinking majority"—never believe anything newspaper men say about each other except it is something mean; then they all are impressed with its truthfulness at the first glance. This is what causes our present unwonted attack of diffidence. The mean things the Mono editors properly say of each other is what gives them something of a reputation for truthfulness.

The latest public appearance of ex-Minister Washburne was a defender of mule meat. During the days of the Commune, he said, "for months there was no meat in Paris but horse meat and mule meat. I never ate horse, but I confess to have partaken freely of the mule; and I will say to the credit of that much abused animal, that I found him quite good. My secretary assured me that of the many animals he had assisted to devour during the siege the elephant was the best of all. The stories of people eating cats, rats, dogs and other small animals in Paris are literally true."

Squaw Susan, who so heroically bent her energies to save the captive wife and daughter of murdered Agent Meeker, was herself once rescued from death in a romantic manner. Susan was captured by a band of Arapahoes, who put up a stake at the mouth of the Cache La Poudre, intending to burn her to death. The commanding officer at Fort Collins, having heard of the proposed barbarity, by alternate threats and promises, obtained Susan's release. It was probably in remembrance of this that the squaw became so devoted to Mrs. and Miss Meeker.

If the pneumonia would give the Bodie Standard proof reader a square hitch, it might bring him to temporary repentance for the numerous and quite noticeable errors he ought to see but don't seem to see. Here, to correct a sample or two among many in the issue of the 18th, we will say that The Independent, thank the map maker, is not published in Mono, nor did it, as a family paper, ever say, as quoted, that fifteen assays were across anybody's "fence."

The Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee, under instructions from the Committee, has telegraphed to the President and Secretary of the National Republican Committee, asking that the place of Geo. C. Gorham in the National Committee as the representative of California, be declared vacant on account of his action during the recent campaign in this State.

The assertion of Lord Beaconsfield that thousands of our Western farmers were moving into Canada was due to his ignornance of North American geography. Sir John A. Macdonald told him that there was a large movement from "the Western Provinces" into Manitoba, and he thought these provinces were our Western States.

Bodie's Scourge.

There is something appalling in the magnitude of the death rate in Bodie, from pneumonia. During the month past it is believed over 100 deaths have occurred from that disease alone. The Bodie papers have hitherto kept discreet y silent as to its ravages, even going so far as to omit the usual death notices. But now the secret can be no longer kept. We observe the News of the 11th publishes under the head of "Deaths," no less than six fatal cases of pneumonia. A Catholic clergyman being sent for from Mammoth City to administer to a sick man here, replied that it was utterly impossible for him to come; that his time was taken up day and night at the bedside of pneumonia patients. That during the past four weeks he witnessed the death struggle of over thirty victims of the dread disease. The Bodie people are determined to attribute the cause of such fatality to some remediable agent, and therefore lay it to the condition of the water and the streets, but this is clearly wrong. The condition of the streets has but little to do with it in the opinion of the best physicians. The real cause lies in the hard, dry, biting cold atmosphere of Bodie, which renders a genuine case of pneumonia almost impossible of cure. Here in Mammoth we are especially favored. Though higher in altitude than Bodie. there is a moisture in the air from our lakes and forests which effectually wards off the fell destroyer.—Mammoth Times.

Mark Parnall died the other day in Bodie of pneumonia. The circumstances of the death were such that the Coroner held an inquest and the jury returned a verdict that death was caused by pneumonia, aggravated by gross neglect of the County Physician, Dr. Summers, and his son, who permitted the patient to be in a cold room, without change of clothes or the slightest care or comfort, other than the administration of a few medicines—no doubt reluctantly given. Mono county has long been disgraced by the inefficiency of its hospital management, but there has been no such glaring instance of incompetency and heartlessness as this. By the way, this Dr. Summers is the same who has recently been appointed Public Administrator. County Physician and Public Administrator! May God save the poor man's life in the first place, but if he must die, may heaven have mercy upon his estate!—Mammoth Times.

T. J. Dunlap and others have discovered an extensive ledge of silver-bearing ore in the vicinity of Goat Mountain, on the north side of the San Joaquin river. The ledge has been traced about five miles. It varies in width on the surface from four or five feet to forty and fifty. An assay of the ore made by Price, of San Francisco, gave a return of over $80 per ton in silver. Smith Norris has taken about fifty pounds of the ore to San Francisco for the purpose of having it tested by working process. If the assay mentloned gives a fair average of the value of the ore, there is enough rock in sight to make millionaires of the discoverers.—Fresno Expositor.

The Wrong Row.—Last evening a mother sent her daughter to the pantry to see how many cups of jelly were left, as she expected to make some jelly cake next day for a preacher's surprise party. PANAMINT.—Some Eastern capitalists, accompanied by a suitable mining expert, were, last week, taking a look at Panamint, particularly, at the Leota Company's property. What opinion or opinions they formed as to the inducements offered for investment remains to be seen; but it is safe to conclude that as the kid-glove gentlemen had a sorry outfit and a cold, rough time of it in going and coming, and badly served grub there and elsewhere on their travels, that they may get home ruffled and soured, and may allow these things to creep into and tinge their report, making it somewhat sour also, when abstract mineral facts would otherwise have justified something sweet and encouraging like. Should it take the first named form, then those monied people won't take any of the Leota stock, in which case the creditors of the company will have to await a time as patiently as they can for their money; but we have good reason to believe, however, that the company can easily pay off its entire liabilites in a few weeks out of its own absolute earnings. At least, we have it in this way: Total liabilties, about $11,000; last bullion shipment, $4,000; other shipments belonging to chloriders from which the mill draws $2,000 for custom work. All this or nearly all is available immediately for payment of labor and supply bills, so far as it will go. The mill has plenty of supplies and is running steadily along on good ore of its own, which, with the custom work on hand, is counted upon as sure to yield enough to stop clamor for the remainder; this, of course, will require a few weeks time. These facts are mentioned because some trouble and talk has already been caused by reason of a failure to pay off these labor liabilities at the set time. It is certain that the company has a very fair prospect to make a permanent success whether it meets with extraneous help or not. And it is certain to give the bats and owls full possession of the whole of Panamint, and for an indefinite length of time, if this present company should be compelled to suspend operations.

A SPECK OF WAR.—There were some symptoms of bloody hostilities over here in the Mazourka Cañon, two or three days ago, but happily, grim-fronted war smoothed his wrinkled visage considerably just before the battle, so there wasn't any battle—with carnal weapons, anyway. The road up the cañon was originally opened to use with wagons by the Hitchcock boys as a wood road, which fact, they claim, gives them a right to its exclusive use or control—a fact we shall neither admit nor deny, not being called upon for an opinion. Certain wood-haulers, however, deny this exclusive right of control on the part of the Hitchcock boys, and notwithstanding the objections of the latter, have for a long time past made use of the road same as a public highway. Two of these wood-haulers, Lawrence and Snodgrass, were on their way up the cañon as usual, the other morning, when they were suddenly confronted by a cordon of the claimants, armed with guns and things, precisely as the law don't require on such occasions. Then ensued considerable talk, the nature of which we can only surmise from these premises and subsequent results, which were, that Snodgrass pushed straight through the skirmish line and went on up the cañon, where he may or may not have met the main body, while Lawrence executed a flank movement by loading this side of the dead line and returning to town. No overt acts were committed or directly threatened so far as we know, and it is to be hoped, none may be, since that is the poorest of all ways to settle questions of this kind.

FINE ASSAY OFFICE.—Mr. S. D. Woodhull has just removed the "Independence Assay Office" into rooms in the Walters building, opposite Harris & Rhine's. As now fitted up, this assay office is as well prepared with necessary appliances and materials, and is presided over by as competent an assayer as any other on this side of the mountains—in fact, is prepared to do as accurate work in all respects as is done anywhere. In addition to this leading fact, it is a place well worth a visit by all interested in viewing countless ore specimens from all sections of this region, which, as arranged, make a fine display. Mr. Woodhull, as may be noticed by his advertisement in this issue, is now ready for all the various kinds of work and duties required of a thoroughly competent assayer, metallurgist and practical mining man.

DIPHTHERIA.—We learn, through the latest Bakersfield papers, that the diphtheria, which has recently worked such sad havoc in that vicinity, is now relaxing its hold, no new cases having occurred during the past week, while the survivors among those previously attacked have all recovered or are in a fair way to do so; among these convalescents is the eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Gregg, formerly of this place; we regret to add, however, that their youngest, attacked at the same time, was among the number from various other afflicted families who succumbed to this most dreadful disease.

RELIGIOUS.— Some pastoral duties required Rev. Mr. Willis to go to Bishop Creek last week, where he has since remained, and will not return here before some time next week, consequently there will be no preaching here before a week from to-morrow. Under Mrs. Willis' zealous and efficient supervision, however, a good Sunday school is taught every Sunday afternoon, and a prayer meeting held every Wednesday evening, storm or shine.

GONE TO BODIE.—Harry Wright, of the Taboose Station, has, with his family, removed to Bodie, there to try his fortunes and a wrestle with the pneumonia and Mollies.

ASSIGNEE APPOINTED.—County Judge S. D. Wright, of San Francisco county, has just appointed Mr. C. F. O'Brion, of Darwin, Assignee of the Emigrant Mining Company, Lee District, this county, which company has lately been declared bankrupt—which it undoubtedly is to a somewhat distressing extent. But no matter how much or how little the numerous creditors may realize finally upon their respective claims, they can depend upon business like management in the course of the adjustment and even handed justice to all in the end so far as the same in any manner depends upon the action of the Assignee, who is worthy of implicit trust, therefore the man for such a duty. During the term of our District Court just closed, Patrick Mullin, (since deceased) got judgment for some $7,000 against the insolvent concern, and now comes the question whether that judgment takes the vantage ground of a preferred creditor or goes in on the same footing as the other unfortunates.

A BIG STIKE.—By Wednesday evening's stage, we received a piece of chloride and sulphuret lead ore sent as a fair sample of a new bonanza struck that day in the Indiana, or Boley & Tuttle mine near Swansea. This specimen is of about five pounds weight, with one broad, perfectly smooth side, showing contact with an equally smooth clayey wall; its assay value is certainly not less than $500 to the ton. The important point to be noticed is, that the meagre developments already made show that there is a solid width of just that kind of ore full three and a half feet wide; this is at the tunnel heading, some 220 feet from the mouth, and about 100 vertically from the surface; the tunnel was run all the way on the ledge. This is doubtless the most valuable strike we have had to chronicle for many a day.

VEGETABLES.—We think Sherman V., and Gus. Stevens would easily take a first premium in a County Agricultural Fair for the best yield, size and quality of sweet potatoes, onions and other similar vegetables they raise on their place located just below the mouth of Cottonwood Creek, on the Lake. In size and mildness of flavor their onions are certainly the best we have seen in this market, though we are told they were raised on land apparently too poor in quality to "sprout black-eyed peas;" but their biggest success was in the production of sweet potatoes, a crop requiring special skill and attention in this region. Their operations prove that even the borders of our "Dead Sea" have a high agricultural value.

THE MARRIETTA TRAGEDY.—In an extract on the outside of this issue, taken from the Aurora Herald, will be found an account of the late bloody affair at Marrietta, Nevada. This agrees substantially with the account brought here by Stein, as alluded to in last issue. Pursuant to McLaughlin's message by Stein, Mr. Reddy left on Sunday last for Marrietta to act as McLaughlin's counsel. If the facts prove as already stated, we fail to see wherein McLaughlin is morally or legally amenable. As this town of Marrietta is a camp hitherto but little known to fame, it may be of interest to state that it is distant about twelve miles from Belleville, Esmeralda county, Nevada.

THE CHAMPION.—About the best paying ledge we know of around here is the "Champion of the Alabamas," owned and worked by Julius Schroeder and Hans Meyer. They have just made another clean-up by which they obtain 57 ounces of gold, worth $850, the result of but six weeks' run with a small, one-horse arastra, and the product of twenty tons of ore. The yield would have been somewhat larger but for the fact that the cold weather materially hindered amalgamation. On this account they will probably suspend arastra work till Spring. They have made several shipments like this during the last few months.

IN PRINT.—Inyo County generally, and Cerro Gordo and surrounding districts in particular, will soon be found in the general public print. The Hon. Jos. Wasson's line of correspondence includes the San Francisco Stock Report and New York Mining Review, and we are informed that it is his intention to make an article upon this county an addendum to his book upon Bodie and Mono county, which work is prepared specially for the New York Bullion Club.

PERSONAL.—Hon. Jos. Wasson, our Assemblyman, arrived here from Bodie on Tuesday last, and on the following morning left for Cerro Gordo, to which place he was accompanied by the junior of this establishment. Both being printer men, therefore capitalists of a certain order, we may hear of some extensive sales while they are on the hill—but if so, it is more likely to be the miners than the mines which will be sold.

PANNED OUT VERY WELL.—George Desellier has just finished tearing down and cleaning up about the old Swansea furnace, preparatory to a general reconstruction of the works. In doing so he found base bullion in the bottom of the furnace and thereabouts equivalent to about $2,500, amounting to 67 bars of 82 pounds each.

THE BRIDGE TIMBERS.—The timbers for the Lone Pine bridge are now in part on the ground and the whole of the remainder will be about Monday next. The main portion is being rafted in small sections, and except a few sticks was all afloat yesterday.

ABOLISHED.—Among other Postoffices recently abolished is that of "Kasson, Inyo county, Cal." That is a relief, since, as we are told, there is not a soul living within twenty-five miles of the place.

F. & A. M.—The regular annual election of officers for Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M., takes place at the stated meeting to-night, and members are requested to be in attendance at 6 o'clock sharp.

Important to Taxpayers.

INDEPENDENCE, Inyo Co., Nov. 21.

MESSRS. EDITORS: In the suit brought before Justice Gardner, of this place, between J. F. Dillon, County Assessor, vs. L. P. Huger, late clerk of the Emigrant Silver Mining Company of Lee District, Inyo Co., for the recovery of the amount of poll, road and hospital taxes of the employés of that company, which tax receipts had been left with said L. P. Huger by the Assessor, as per order of the then Superintendent of the Emigrant Silver Mining Company, for the purpose of collecting the same when the employés had been paid off, and which had never been collected on account of the insolvency of the company shortly after. Said case having been appealed from the decision of Justice Gardner—which was given in favor of defendant—to the County Court, of which mention was made in a previous issue of this paper; said case came up before Judge Hannah of the County Court, on the 21st instant, and was decided by him in favor of plaintiff.

The result of this decision holds any one personally liable to the full amount of any and all tax receipts which he may at any time, in any manner or from any cause or accident, hold. And I would particularly call the attention of every one in Inyo county, whatever his calling, vocation or position to the above decision, that he may have timely warning of the personal responsibility he will incur by receiving or holding in any manner, from or through any party for the purpose of assisting the County Assessor in any way, any tax receipts save his own personal receipt, whether he be Deputy Assessor or not, for the defendant in this case was not a deputy, he having simply received the receipts as clerk of the Superintendent, through the Assessor, and not having collected one dime of the same from any one, and yet the case was decided against him.

L. P. HUGER.

DARWIN.—It is hardly necessary to state that Darwin is exceedingly quiet these days, but we do say it anyway. Nevertheless, Darwin has some expectations as well as a theory. It expects good times some of these days on the theory that, a little further down, there are immense bodies of ore in a number of those mines far richer than any yet found nearer the surface; that is to say, that all true veins having rich surface deposits as certainly have rich bottom deposits, and, no less certainly, a barren zone intervening. Now, there is the New Coso or Lucky Jim: from the top to the deepest workings it has proved itself a perfectly defined, true vein, its smooth walls being generally about four feet apart; superficially, it had some fine and solid bodies of good ore; thence down to the greatest depth attained up to the present time, it continued and still continues a perfect vein, but of the tantalus order—ore to-day, not a color to-morrow. The Darwin theory in this case—namely, that some feet or scores of feet deeper an immense deposit surely does exist—is a far more reasonable thing than the old original Darwin theory about the monkey ancestors of the human race. Still, by a strict analogy between the two theories, allowing both to be true, it is clear that a surface bonanza of monkeys in the first workings of the human vein indicates a still bigger find of the same in due course of time and descent—such being the lead of the original Darwin theory, we will drop it in that relation and confine the application of the later one to mining only. It is enough to say then, that some ore is being taken out of the Lucky Jim all the time, while the chances for a big strike are of the most encouraging character; but strike or no strike, the ore being taken out will aggregate enough to warrant Supt. Williams in starting up the furnace about the middle of next month. The continuance of the run as well as the time of starting depends to some extent upon operations at the Modock, whence, it is likely, considerable ore may be brought for reduction at this furnace during this run. A crew of men are doing yearly assessment work on the Defiance. Some other mining operations are being carried on in the vicinity, but all are of a very desultory kind.

CERRO GORDO.—Our representative returns to-day only in time to report the fact that he has been there—and that he went with Jos. Wasson, who was yesterday morning safely landed upon the Mojave stage and will to-morrow morning reach the railroad. He found Cerro Gordo in time to hear the blowing off of steam and be in at what the Union Con. boys called the "funeral," i. e., the closing down of active operations for a time.

THANKS.—It is with a feeling of considerable local pride that we render acknowledgments for personal favors and courtesies extended by the citizens of Cerro Gordo to Representative-elect Jos. Wasson, during his visit to that point. Supt. Porter, John Belshaw, Wm. Crapo, W. L. Hunter, Jos. Kelly, Geo. Jackson, and Hughes, Johnson, Williams, Gregory, et. al. deserve especial mention and thanks.

DEPARTED.—Messrs. Rule and Frank, of the Kearsarge, and O'Brion and Huger, of Darwin, left by this morning's stage south, the first two for the city, the latter for Darwin. Judge Reed left for Bakersfield yesterday morning.

SCHOOL EXHIBITION.—It is proposed that Mrs. May's school here give a public exhibition about Christmas times, the exact evening not yet being fixed upon. We will undertake to say it will be a very pleasant affair.

CALIFORNIA sugar refiners have invaded the Salt Lake market, and Eastern sugars have been entirely supplanted there by the California article.

THE Bodie monument fund amounts to $120, $10 each from Bechtel and H. Ward, and $100 from the Pioneers.

Miscellaneous Items.

The fate of the balloonists Wise and Burr seems to be settled. They were lost in Lake Michigan without a doubt.

A schoolmaster at Tiffin, Ohio, used a piece of rubber hose with which to whip his pupils, and it was so effective that a little girl was nearly killed.

Several girls in Hagerstown, Ind., tatooed their legs with the figure of a garter. The coloring proved to be poisonous, and one of the girls lies in a critical condition.

The marriage notice of J. S. Hahn, in Ogden, Kansas, newspapers was printed in the same column with that of his death. Miss Harris, learning that he was dying there, hastened from Kansas City to become his wife.

The novel engineering feat of building a bridge on shore and shoving it across the river has been accomplished at Dinard, France. The structure is 314 feet long, weighs 200 tons, and was projected into its place by twelve strong windlasses.

Assistant Postmaster New, of Pittsburg, Mass., added $1,000 to his income in a year by removing fresh postage stamps from letters, putting on those that had been used, and selling the stolen ones. He used the money in maintaining his social pretensions.

Many of the mines of Leadville, Colorado, have suspended work for the Winter, being inaccessible on account of snow. Those that can be worked are carried on with difficulty, and prospecting is not easy. The ground is covered from two to eight feet with snow.

Two Chicago men went out on a week's spree, which involved an irregular tour through the West. One morning they awoke in a hotel with a dazed notion as to what city they were in. One said St. Louis, and the other Cincinnati. They bet $100 as to which was right, and neither won, for the bell-boy informed them that it was Milwaukee.

A commission from Congress is not highly desirable to an artist, according to the Boston Transcript, which says: "When a painter gets an order for a $10,000 picture, for example, he is expected to paint gratuitously the portraits of members of Congress who voted him the job. There are often expenses incident to procuring such commissions. In consequence about three-fourths of the profits are dissipated, and a $10,000 Government commission is worth really about $2,500."

ONE day recently there arrived in Leadville, Colorado, Daniel McFarland, the man who shot and killed Albert D. Richardson, and who was tried and acquitted, and Abby Sage Richardson. He, a decrepit, ragged old man, evidently in great want, pain and misery; she in the garb of a well-to-do lecturer. When McFarland learned of her arrival he fell fainting to the sidewalk and was carried to a drug store near by, when restoratives were applied and he recovered. He then began to cry and wring his hands, exclaiming: "Oh, I must see her! I must see her! If only one moment before I die! I must speak to her!"

TRACK laying has been resumed on the Southern Pacific eastward from Casa Grande, Arizona, the present terminus. It is intended to reach Shakespeare, New Mexico, by the 1st of March, 1880, and Messilla, on the Rio Grande, 345 miles east of the present terminus, by the end of 1880.

IT sounds almost incredible, but it is nevertheless true, that political visionaries are still stumping around the East in favor of fiat money. And this, when shiploads of gold are leaving Europe for New York. A gunny-bag currency should next be advocated.—S. F. Chronicle.

KEARNEY wants to organize Jacobin Clubs, for the purpose of hanging people who employ Chinese. The kind of club Kearney needs is made of hickory and he needs it right between the eyes. At a meeting of the Cigarmakers' Union recently a proposition to assassinate employers of Chinese was openly discussed, and a vote being called to determine how many of those present would "risk their lives in secret to kill Chinese-employing merchants," a general showing of hands was made.

GERMANS are said to be willing to invest $20,000,000 in extending the St. Louis and San Francisco railway to the Pacific. Emigration to the United States has formerly been of men without money; now it is partly of money without men.

THE Argonaut is furious because Gov. Irwin has appointed White, Kearney's candidate for Governor, Bank Commissioner. It says Irwin has insulted every decent man in the State for the purpose of catching the favor of the rabble.

A LOTTERY agent has brought suit against Postmaster James, of New York, in the Supreme Court of that State, for alleged illegal detention of his letters, for which he claims $2,500 damages.

ELIZA PINKSTON, of Returning Board fame, was arrested a few days ago on a charge of murdering her husband, who died suddenly on the morning of the 15th instant.

WHAT the doctors call Bismarck's complaint is immaterial. He is simply worn out with hard work. For years he has been to Europe what Atlas was to the world. His burdens are at length telling on him.

GOV. IRWIN has granted the respite of sixty days prayed for in the case of Sprague, sentenced to be hung for the murder of More, in Ventura county.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22.....1879

IT was a red-haired, gritty-complexioned man that got into a Pawtucket car while it was waiting on the turnout. With his long hair, capacious felt hat and beard like a burning bush, he resembled a Calfornian, and he probably was.—Boston Post.

It was a clean shaven, dark haired, fair complexioned man that got off the cars in this city. With his long hair tucked behind his ears, a silk hat and a saintly look, he resembled either a defaulting Boston bank cashier, a thief who stole the missionary money in that city, or a respectable scoundrel from Fall River, and he probably was.—Virginia Enterprise.

AN Eastern paper remarks that there will be more heartfelt praise at the coming Thanksgiving than there has been for years. It gives its reasons for this assertion by saying:

"Health, peace, plenty and patriotism abound. Out of great depths, and distress and depression, the country has emerged into a grand sunlight, where it is as natural to sing songs of rejoicing as for the birds to warble in the Spring."

UP in Oregon, three Indians confined for murder attempted to kill the jailer and make their escape. The jailer shot all three of them, and the dispatch announcing the occurrence, says that two of them may recover in time to be hanged. Of course, with such a laudable object in view, no pains will be spared to insure their recovery in time for the performance for which they are billed for the leading parts.

THE increase of twenty per cent. of the mail matter handled in the postal cars during the last fiscal year shows forcibly the growth of the country. The large increase in the registration of packages is also gratifying, since it must proceed chiefly from commercial traffic between the large cities and the interior.—N. Y. Tribune.

IN China mothers are unwilling to allow the arms of their daughters to be scratched with the lancet of vaccination, because unless a Chinese girl has a few marks on her face, giving evidence that she has passed through small-pox, she is considered as lacking one of the chief qualifications of a marriageable maiden.

THE Czar has confirmed the sentence by which a certain Lieut. Gortaloff, a custom house officer, was condemned to be deprived of his rank and title of nobility and be banished to Siberia. The Lieutenant's crime was that he allowed some persons to steal across the frontier with goods duty free.

THE Choctaw Nation, which numbers about 17,000 persons, has forty schools and two academies. It also pays for the college education of twenty-two students in the States. The office of Superintendent of Education is elective, and has been held by a Choctaw for four years.

"IT seems I never could find sympathy when I want it," remarked a forlorn looking girl yesterday. "I know where you can find it," said a young man, drawing up closer. "Where, oh where?" "In the dictionary, Betsey." The mother heard some words, but when she got to the room the man was gone.

JUDAH P. BENJAMIN, of Confederate fame, recently sent a poor editor in Louisiana £500. There are lots of poor editors in Louisiana and elsewhere, but £500 won't improve them. What they want is brains. They have money enough.—Norristown Herald.

W. J. MACLAY, Republican Assemblyman-elect from Napa county, died in Napa on Thursday of last week. He took an active part in the late campaign, and was soon after the election prostrated, and has been in a weak condition ever since.

SECRETARY SHERMAN and Mr. Tilden are directors in the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad Company, and at a recent meeting served together as a committee to draft resolutions.

GEN. SHERMAN'S annual report shows that the actual combative force of the United States army numbers 20,799 men. The report was written before the Ute massacre had reduced the number.

Rainless Owens Valley.

J. W. A. Wright, who is now writing a series of papers for the San Francisco Post, and which are entitled the "Cement Hunters," has the annexed in relation to why it rarely rains in the Owens Valley:

The moisture-laden atmosphere of Winter, coming from the Pacific ocean, is pretty well drained before it gets over the 3,000 feet of elevation on the Coast range and deposits it pittance of rain in the San Joaquin valley. But just think how the moisture is squeezed from it, as if from a sponge, by the process of condensation, as it sweeps on towards the summit range of the Sierras where the lowest points range from 10,000 to 13,000 feet and the highest from 14,000 to 15,000. This huge atmospheric sponge is very dry, when it rolls over the immense precipices to the eastward and in a horizontal distance of only six or eight miles falls down upon a surface from 8,000 to 10,000 feet lower than Mount Whitney and adjacent ridges. The point of saturation for that depleted or "played out" but extremely pure atmosphere is naturally very high, and is not often reached. Consequently, rain is a great rarity in those valleys immediately east of the Sierras. The annual rainfall in Owen's valley proper ranges all the way from nothing to three inches.

Fortunately, however, an otherwise arid and uninhabitable region is as thoroughly supplied in places with water for irrigation as any part of this coast. The same lofty, overbearing mountains that steal its rain are high-minded enough to send upon this valley by way of compensation, all the year round, at many points, hundreds of ice cold, crystal streams, whose water can be suitably tempered and used for effective irrigation. This done, Owen's and adjacent valleys produce well and a good variety of products. It was not left for the white man first to learn this. "Lo" was ahead of him. His civilization, low as was its grade, had brought him to that. His civilizers were hunger and necessity. Yet these did not fully civilize him—still less did they refine him. The mode of irrigation practiced by these Indians was found to be as followed by the first whites who came among the red men to locate. This was early in 1861. Other white pioneers had merely passed through their territory, bound for the gold diggings on the western slopes of the Sierras. Several large Indian camps then existed in Owen's valley. Some of their ditches for irrigation were quite extensive. To make these they went to the eastern base of the Whitney range where many natural channels exist, through which the mountain streams are disgorging their water upon the plains the whole year through. By small dams they diverted the water and led it to their fields in furrows dug with sticks and hands. They would sometimes make embankments so much as two feet high to carry the water over low places. For this work they dug earth with sticks and hands and carried it in rabbit-skin blankets and willow baskets to the desired point. It was necessarily slow work, but they constructed very respectable levees by such primitive means.

MASONRY IN FRANCE.—There are 79 grand lodges and 119 provincial grand lodges, having under them 7,900 lodges. Twelve "high councils" direct 350 lodges. There are eight lodges which are signalized as "independent," "isolated," or "excluded." There are thus nearly 8,500 lodges altogether. These include very nearly 500,000 active members. It is said that the number of members who have withdrawn from further participation in the brotherhood, or may be characterized as "indifferent" or inactive, amounts to between two and three millions.—Paris Globe.

Gems of Thought.

Truth is the most dense, yet the most transparent, of all principles.

What is fame? The advantage of being known by people of whom you yourself know nothing, and for whom you care as little.

Genius is too often like the bird of paradise, all wings. When it wishes to alight or settle on anything it finds no support.

Those who excel in strength are not the most likely to show contempt of weakness. A man does not despise the weakness of a child.

Nothing betrays a greater ignorance of the world, of the human heart, and of good manners, than the assumption of a self-sufficient, dictatorial tone in conversation.

A smile is ever the most bright and beautiful with a tear upon it. What is the dawn without the dew? The tear is rendered by the smile more precious than the smile itself.

If thou art wiser than the many, do that which thou thyself approvest, rather than what they may look at; and be assured that when they admire most, thou has not done something wrong.

A happy home is the one spot in all this beautiful world where the most perfect rest is found, and the most undivided confidence given. Its joys are like the flowers of Paradise, perpetual in their fragrance, and most delicate in their beauty.

There is a proper pride which is commendable, and which is the offering and safeguard of self-respect. We should avoid haughtiness, arrogance and presumption; but we may, and should harbor a proper degree of pride—a pride based upon self-respect, which prompts us to endeavor to preserve it.

Great thoughts belong only and truly to him whose mind can hold them. No matter who first put them in words, if they come to a soul and fill it, they belong to it, whether they floated on the voice of others, or on the wings of silence and the night.

There are four good habits we should strive to acquire, viz: punctuality, accuracy, steadiness and dispatch. Without the first, time is wasted; without the second, mistakes, the most hurtful to our own credit and interest and that of others, may be committed; without the third, nothing can be done well; and without the fourth, opportunities of advantage are lost, which it is impossible to recall.

POPE LEO is decribed by a German writer as being very frugal. The incomes of the officials of the Papal household have been cut down, and the unnecessary horses and vehicles, which formerly filled the stables and coach houses, have been sold, the Pope reserving for his own use a modest landau, in which, by order of his doctors, he drives for an hour daily in the gardens of the Vatican. "Nobody," says this correspondent of the Deutsche Montagsblatt, "now ventures to protest against the system of rigid economy which has been established—fearing, probably, that were they to do so, they would be punished as Monsignor Tavani was a short time ago. Monsignor Tavani, on his pay being reduced from 500 francs to 300 francs a month, wrote a letter remonstrance to the Pope, and in answer was at once ordered to rejoin the monastery of the Pessimists of San Giovanni Paolo, and there to live with the bothers of the order for two months."

LOOK on the bright side. It is the right side. The times may be hard, but it will make them no easier to wear a gloomy and sad countenance. It is the sunshine and not the cloud which makes the flower. The sky is blue ten times where it is black once. You have troubles; so have others. None are free from them. Trouble gives sinew and tone to life—fortitude and courage to man. That would be a dull sea, and the sailor would never get skill, where there was nothing to disturb the surface of the ocean. What though things look a little dark, the lane will turn, the night will open into a broad day. There is more virtue in one sunbeam than in a whole hemisphere of clouds and gloom.

THE San Francisco Chronicle, in a story of gambling life, speaks of a card sharp as shuffling a cold deck after it had been passed to him. This is the most absurd blunder a paper professing to be a live one ever made. Thousands of gamblers on the coast are stopping the Chronicle and subscribing for the Call. The Chronicle in fact has never had a first class disciple of Hoyle on its staff since Frank Pixley started the Argonaut.—Carson Appeal.

DURING the past season 13 vessels have been engaged in codfishing in the Northern Pacific. Most of the fish were caught in the vicinity of the Choumagin Islands and the Ochosk Sea. The total catch for the season was 1,499,000 fish, weighing about 3,000 tons. This was an increase over 1878 of 300,000 fish.

THE friends of Governor Blackburn, of Kentucky, say the reason which the Governor gives for his wholesale pardon of criminals is that there is no room in the Penitentiary for any more convicts. His object is to compel the Legislature of the State to enlarge and deversify its penal establishments and provide a reformatory for boys.

MR MORGAN BROWN, an Englishman, has invented a machine that will fire 300 shots a minute, and they will pierce an iron-plated vessel at a distance of 1,000 yards. The French Government has ordered 500 of the machines.

Oaks from Acorns.

About fifty years ago, a Jewish gentleman of wealth entertained one day at dinner the leading men of his race in Philadelphia. The banquet was delightful, and the guests were in high good humor.

"Let us remember the poor and sick of our people," said one wealthy merchant, dropping a piece of gold into his goblet. It passed around the table, and was full when it returned. The host poured out the glittering heap. "Well done!" he said. "I invite you all here this day a year hence, if you will promise to remember the poor as nobly."

The banquet was repeated and so was the contribution. Out of this petty beginning grew the great Hebrew Beneficiary Societies of Pennsylvania, which care for every needy member of the race in the State, and whose charities have amounted to millions. They still hold their annual dinner in memory of their beginning.

Another instance of a great good growing out of a small opportunity well improved, is the story of a Home for crippled and deformed children, founded by a pastor in France.

An American lady visited it a good many years ago, and was much interested in this good man and his work. After the Franco-Prussian war, she read in a French paper that, owing to the universal poverty, contributions to this Home had almost ceased, and the house would soon be closed.

She was herself a poor woman, and a helpless invalid; but she wrote a simple account of the Home as she had seen it, and sent it to the leading magazine. The pathos of the story caused it to be copied into an English paper. It was read by a man of great benevolence and wealth, who visited the Home, and at once took means of re-establishing it upon an enlarged and square basis.

"The words that I speak to-day," says the Persian poet, "shall not the echoes come back to me hereafter from every corner of the world?"

TO MAKE HENS LAY.—An exchange gives the following prescription: Put two or more quarts of water in a kettle and one large seed pepper, or two small ones. Then put the kettle over the fire. When the water boils stir in coarse Indian meal until you have a thick mush. Let it cook an hour or so. Feed hot. Horseradish chopped fine and stirred into mush as prepared in the above directions, and for results we are getting from five to ten eggs per day, whereas previous to feeding we had not had eggs for a long time. We hear a good deal of complaint from other people about not getting eggs. To such we would warmly recommend cooked feed, fed hot. Boiled apple skins seasoned with red pepper or boiled potatoes seasoned with horseradish are good for feed—much better than uncooked food. Corn when fed to the hen by itself has a tendency to fatten rather than produce the more profitable egg laying. A spoonful of sulphur stirred with their feed occasionally will rid them of vermin and tone up their system.

AN IGNOBLE PASSION.—Jealousy is the meanest of passions, for most frequently it is an effect without a cause—a monster engendered in the imagination of its victim; and feeding alike upon its heart and brain, it withers the rose upon the cheek of beauty, dethrones reason from its judgment seat, and gives the reigns to passion; it is the punishment of Tantalus, without his crime. To the jealous mind madness would be a relief, and death a blessing; it takes a martyr's pleasure in its tormentors, and adds to their intensity by the ingenious skill with which it adduces proofs from air-drawn nothings, adding fuel to the flame by which it suffers. Jealousy is a passion against which persuasion and argument are equally vain; the proofs which convince but tend to convince its fatal error.

TO STOP BLEEDING AT THE NOSE. The best remedy for bleeding at the nose, as given by Dr. Gleason in one of his lectures, is the vigorous motion of the jaws, as if in the act of mastication. In the case of a child, a wad of paper should be placed in its mouth, and the child instructed to chew it hard. It is the motion of the jaws that stops the flow of blood. This remedy is so very simple that many will feel inclined to laugh at it, but it has never been known to fail in a single instance, or very severe cases.

CORN BREAD.—Beat the whites and yolks separately of two eggs, one pint of rich sour milk, two tablespoons of sugar and one of melted butter, and a little salt; mix all well together except the whites of the eggs; roll perfectly free from lumps two-thirds of a teaspoon of soda into one pint of cornmeal; sift together and stir into the other ingredients; beat well, and lastly put in the well-beaten whites. Pour into a well-buttered pan and bake.

POSTMAN'S FRIEND: "Got a heavy load, John?" Postman: "Load? I should think so. Blow this wet weather, I say. Folks can't get out, so sits in doors and does nothing but write all this ere stuff to one another."

HOUSEWIVES who buy scales and reweigh their packages from the grocer will have the satisfaction of learning from the said grocer that their scales are not within a mile of being correct.

A VERY large number of the best gold and silver mines in Mexico are passing into the hands of United States capitalists.

SARRAH WINNEMUCCA, the Indian Princess, arrived in San Francisco from Portland last week.

"DAT cullud pusson on de jury, him's the man I objec' to," said a negro when put on trial in the Marion (S. C.) court the other day. The black good man and true was unseated, and the prisoner given acquittal. After his release the darkey was asked what he had against a juryman of his own color. "Nuffin at all, boss," said he, "but ye see, I knowed if I flattered de prejudus ob de odder jurymen dat I get off, an' goliy, I did."

A SCHOOLMISTRESS asked a child what s-e-e spelt. The child hesitated. Said the teacher: "What do I do when I look at Mr. Smith?" "Thquint," replied the pupil.

BAYARD'S WELCOME.

On returning from Europe, the other day, Senator Bayard was enthusiastically greeted by a large concourse of friends, irrespective of party. It was not as big a lift as Grant got in San Francisco, but it seems to have been quite as sincere and cordial as far as it went. In reply, Senator Bayard made a statesman-like speech, as is always his custom, from which the subjoined is an extract:

It is a Government of laws emanating from the popular will, but that will must be for honest and worthy ends, accomplished by honorable means. It is controlled by public opinion, but that opinion must be the intelligent result of knowledge carefully acquired, and deliberation, and not the unstable froth and tumult of gusty passion. And to make public principles secure they must be engrafted on private honor; the wishes of an upright and intelligent constituency must be reflected by an upright and intelligent representative.

A faithful representative should rather displease his constituency than consent to that which injures them. It is his duty, fully and freely, to account to them, but not to conceal his true opinion for fear of their displeasure, for his enlightened conscience can not be disregarded without injury to them and his entire loss of usefulness.

To maintain this Government of ours, such are some of the conditions, and it is upon the self-protecting elements of society that we must rely.

As Burke, the great Irish statesman and philosopher, said: "Flattery is not friendship, and to mislead is not to serve."

A LARGE number of the Superior Judges elect met in San Francisco last week to discuss the mooted question whether or not they could legally begin their official duties on the 1st of January next, or would have to await an enabling act by the incoming Legislature. The conclusion reached, with some dissenting opinions, was that the Constitution gave them the right to commence at that time without further legislation. A committee of five was appointed, charged with the duty of framing a set of rules to govern in the Superior Courts, after adoption by the respective Judges.

IT is now just thirty-one years since the grand discovery of gold was made in California. During this period there has been produced in the States and Territories west of the Missouri river bullion to the value of $1,985,527,939. Of this amount $1,581,443,693 has consisted of gold and $405,094,346 of silver. Besides this there has been produced to date in the several Atlantic States, something like $30,000,000, the most of it in North Carolina, Virginia and Georgia.

A PRACTICAL miner gave the Eureka Sentinel reporter his idea about a scientific mining expert that has more truth than poetry in it. He said: "As a general proposition, a scientific mining expert is a man who wears glasses and a white shirt, has been to Freiberg, talks Dutch and don't know a blasted thing about a mine practically."

THE San Francisco Journal of Commerce states that the Pacific Coast annually consumes over five million pounds of tobacco, and more than one hundred and thirty million cigars. The whole trade in tobacco in San Francisco for the year 1878 amounted to not less than $8,000,000.

A CORRESPONDENT writing recently from Leadville to the Grass Valley Union, speaking of the effects of the great altitude of the place, which is 10,300 feet above the level of the sea, says that all fermented liquors intoxicate more quickly than at lower elevations.

THE storms on the great lakes during the past few days have been among the most severe for years. Many vessels have been lost and not a few lives have shared a like fate. As between an ocean and an inland sea storm many a sailor would choose the first.

THE Irish agitation is evidently gathering force. From present indications it would seem that the repressive policy being pursued by England is but adding fuel to what may prove a dangerous flame.

TAMMANY and Republican officials are said to have entered into a compact, having for its object the removal of Mayor Cooper, of New York, on charges of official dereliction.

THE Kern County Gazette, of the 22d, says diphtheria has disappeared [illegible]ly from Sumner and vicinity, and [illegible] public schools are again re-

THE CENSUS NEXT YEAR.

As there is to be a universal counting of noses next year, it may be of interest to know how it is to be done. This information we find in the New York Tribune, which gives it as the result of an interview with Gen. Francis A. Walker, the Superintendent of the proposed census.

The entire work of taking the census is to begin and be completed in the single month of June, 1880. To do this the services of 20,000 pesons will be required. The United States will be divided into about 150 districts, each to be sub-divided by its Supervisor into appropriate enumeration districts, subject to approval by the Department at Washington, and for each a suitable Enumerator is to be appointed. The Supervisors themselves are to be appointed by Congress, each appointment having to be confirmed by the Senate. All this remains to be done at the session beginning next month (December). As the new census is expected to materially change the representation in Congress, giving a larger proportion of members to the West, which has enlarged its population immensely in the last decade—and as the statistics to be obtained for the first time under the present scheme will, it is said, be an important factor in deciding such questions as the fishery dispute with Canada every precaution is to be taken to obtain correct and perfectly reliable results. To achieve such results the entire work must be done as near instantaneously as is possible. Heretofore the enumeration had reference to a single day, namely, the 1st of June every tenth year, but the work occupied five months or more. In consequence of this many persons may have been counted twice while still more were not counted at all. This comes through so much moving about—from Summer vacations of city people in the country, migrations from one State to another, etc. From these causes and the imperfect methods heretofore relied upon, nothing like a correct census of the United States has ever been obtained; at least, such is the reasonable presumption. Originally, the census was only for the purpose of determining political representation, and each household was reported as a unit, with its members roughly classified, not even names or ages being taken; but the law of 1850 gave a wider scope, calling for the name, age, sex, color, place of birth, occupation, ability to read and write, and so forth, of each person. These constitute the main labor of the census, and most valuable results, and in the one about to be taken are to be made complete in every detail, including statistics of agriculture, manufactures, mining, fishing interests, and social statistics, such as taxation, wealth, public indebtedness, libraries, churches, schools, newspapers, paupers, crimes, insanity, life and fire insurance and railroad operations, together with those of telegraph and express companies and everything of that sort—an immense job, and it will take an immense book to tell it all.

The Supervisors are to be selected with special reference to their fitness for their duties. The law of 1879 requires that they shall be appointed without regard to party. They will be liable to a heavy penalty should they, from any cause, refuse to perform their duties after accepting the appointment. They are each to receive $500 in full for their month's work, but must pay their own traveling expenses. An allowance for clerk hire may be allowed at the option of the Department. The intention is to complete the whole work in the larger cities in two weeks' or less time, thereby to reduce to a minimum the chances for errors incident to the constantly changing population of cities. The compensation for the Enumerators, who are to be appointed by District Supervisors, has not been definitely fixed; it will probably be gauged according to the amount of work done. The total cost is limited to $3,000,000. The last census cost $3,500,000.

GOV. ROBINSON says he was beaten in New York by the adherence to Kelly of the Irish Catholics of that State.

LOCAL MAIL MATTERS.—Mr. N. T. Piper, who is again in proprietorship of his old and notable "Piper's Ranch" over here in Fish Lake Valley, was in town here last week, looking after the re-establishment of a mail service into that valley. There has been nothing of the kind there for about two years past, although the Postoffice, known as "Oasis, Mono county, Cal.," still remains on the list, and for which Mr. Piper has just received his re-appointment as Postmaster. Previous to that time Oasis had the benefit of mail service by two different routes—one from Big Pine through Oasis to Lida, the other through to the same terminus from Columbus, Nevada. As this was doubling over twenty-five miles of the road, which was contrary to law, and as one service was quite sufficient to meet the then requirements of that section, Mr. Piper and others signed a petition to release Mr. Clark, contractor on the Big Pine route, from the fulfillment of the remainder of his contract, and for the discontinuance of the service over that route. This petition was granted, and so was a similar one from Clugage, contractor on the Columbus route, for a like discontinuance on that. The residents chiefly affected knew nothing of the existence of the latter petition until it, simultaneously with the other, was granted, or not till too late to withdraw their own. And so it came about that Oasis, which before had twice as much mail service as was needed, thenceforth down to the present, had none at all. At the late letting of mail contracts, bids were asked for a weekly pony service over the Big Pine (No. 46,303) route. One by an ambitious Kentucky gentleman (who had probably become quite poor and correspondingly honest as a result of the "wah") was accepted. Then the lucky bidder made some written inquiries as to the country, character of the native whites, cost of the service, etc., and finding that he had secured altogether too good a bargain—for the Government—he subsided, and neither he nor his contract was ever in these wilds heard of more. As the whole of Fish Lake Valley and many miners in the surrounding mountains are thus cut off from the world, it is important, just and necessary that service be re-established on the Big Pine-Oasis-Lida route as soon as may be.

OLD COSO.—We have it upon the authority of Mr. Lasky, merchant of Lone Pine, that the Mexicans have now running in Old Coso fourteen arrastras, and all of them producing gold. Mr. L. is about establishing a branch store at that point. Old Coso is situate about nine miles westerly of Darwin, and is the oldest mining camp in Inyo County, having been worked as early as '61. It has ever been the resort of Mexicans, and in early days has supplied many a "raise" for some of the toughest citizens that California ever had, more especially when their existence elsewhere was rendered uncomfortable by the authorities. The statistics of the place will never be known. The gold ledges are small and flat, but many in number and extremely rich. Aside from a good opening for a small mill to reduce the ores, the accumulation of tailings furnishes a show for a big "spec" by the concentrating process.

BULLION.—At the clean-up of the last run of the Union Con. furnace at Cerro Gordo, which closed down on the evening of the 20th, a mass of fine silver weighing 420 pounds was taken from the refinery and shipped the following day. Some 280 bars of bullion in its crude state were awaiting a team to take it away—the whole being, we were informed, the product of the last nine days' run. There is still on hand at the works considerable ore, fluxes, wood and coal, besides from twelve to fifteen bars of lead bullion left for starting with again. It would not thus appear that the managers have shut the works down for any great length of time; in fact, the enormous value of the property precludes such an idea anyway.

GOLD.—Besides the works of Messrs. Porter, Hunter & Co., there are in operation at Beveridge District five small arrastras working on gold ore, mostly if not entirely owned and run by Mexicans. The product, in the shape of pure gold balls varying in size from a bullet to a hen's egg, aggregates in the average from $1,000 to $1,200 per week. Of course these Mexicans do little in the shape of systematic mining, but it is nevertheless evident that the district is a vast rich gold region, and one destined at an early day to become of great importance. Within a few weeks the new Taylor mill will begin to show up, when we look for genuine activity thereabouts and the sale of some the large ledges now being looked after by capitalists.

LAND MATTERS.—Henry A. Copp, whose annual publications relating to land laws, etc., rank as standard authority, and whose address is at Washington, D. C., makes the following proposition to land attorneys and real estate brokers: "Your names will be inserted, free of charge, in the last chapter of 'The American Settler's Guide,' a new book on our public lands, to be circulated extensively in the Atlantic States and Europe. Send for circular giving details."

I. O. G. T.—Through the exertions of Rev. F. M. Willis, a Good Templars' Lodge was last week instituted at Bishop Creek, and under encouraging auspices. We should be pleased to have a list of officers for publication. An effort will soon be made to re-organize a similar Lodge in this place.

CHRISTMAS CHURCH FAIR.—The ladies of Bishop Creek are preparing to get up a grand Fair, to come off on Christmas Eve, for the benefit of the proposed new church building.

HAD NO GUNS.—Mr. Green Hitchcock assures us that it was a mistake about himself or any of his party being armed in any way at the time they endeavored to stop those wood-haulers from making free use of their road up Mazourka Cañon. The parties had a somewhat emphatic talk on the subject, that was all. The Hitchcock boys demanded a recognition of their rights in the road, and a small payment for its use, but say they would not have made that part an issue at all but for the fact certain parties, or a certain party, had not only made free use of their road, but had made equally free in appropriating to his own use a lot of fence posts the boys had got out to where they were of easy access. The questions at issue were in due time amicably settled, and it now only remains for us to add that we gave the story touching the point first mentioned and all the rest precisely in effect as public report gave it to us.

FOUND DEAD.—On the 18th, an old Mexican named Ignacio Errara was found dead in the hills about a mile and a half from Aurora. An inquest was held, by which it was found that deceased was a native of the State of Sonora, Mexico, aged about 68, and that he came to his death on or about the 18th, by being thrown from his mule, and that death was superinduced by his being in a very feeble state of health at the time of the accident; also, that he leaves a wife in Lone Pine in this county. He was given proper burial on the 20th by his friends and countrymen at Aurora. This is doubtless the same old man who, at different periods, was engaged in breaking bronco stock for John Broder and others in this section.

GOOD THINGS.—Whether we ever have the wherewith to pay therefor or not, it is a quite frequent complaint among Valley folk that the markets do not afford many of the luxuries or good things in the eatable line. Not so, however, as to Cerro Gordo. Omitting chuckwallahs and first-class Indian delicacies generally, the denizens are in occasional receipt of game from the lake and the Sierra, and from San Francisco get fresh fruit, eggs and butter in abundance. At the store of J. T. Belshaw & Co. there is an array of canned goods really surprising in its extent and variety, which comprises about all the rare edibles produced from Boston around the Atlantic and Gulf and up the Pacific to Columbia river.

BROWN MONSTER.—The work of putting in the Frue ore concentrator is progressing, under charge of Mr. John M. Adams, of the San Francisco firm of Adams & Carter, mining and mechanical engineers, who are the introducers upon this coast of the Frue Vanner, or Ore Concentrator. The machine is creating quite a furore among miners in sulphuret and rebellious ores, and its operation upon upon the Brown Monster rock will be watched with interest and duly reported upon. A good force of men was put upon the mine yesterdry and, altogether, the thing begins to look like solid business.

THIEVING AT BISHOP.—We learn there is a good deal of thieving going on at Bishop Creek. Among other sufferers is Rev. L. Case, whose horse, saddle and bridle were stolen from the church door during services last Sunday. Two or three days later the horse came home, but minus every vestige of his rigging. Others have had horses and other property stolen. There is a chance for a big reform up that way; one such is being inaugurated wherein hemp is to become an important aid. There are very many drunken Indians there also.

OFFICERS ELECT.—At the stated meeting last Saturday of Inyo Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., the following elective officers were chosen: A. R. Conklin, W. M. (re-elected); James W. Smith, S. W.; John C. Irwin, J. W.; H. M. Isaacs, Secretary (re-elected); Omie I. Mairs, Treasurer (re-elected). Installation takes place at the next stated meeting, December 27 (St. John's Day), at which time the remaining officers will be appointed.

ENTERPRISING.—Our old time friend "Bill" Johnson, resident partner of the Cerro Gordo firm of V. Hoff & Co., is gaining great credit for his pluck and enterprise in backing up the Beveridge District gold workers with advance outfits and supplies. Such a spirit tends to the genuine development of the country, and deserves public recognition.

ASSESSMENT.—The Kearsarge Company has levied assessment No. 4, of 50 cents per share, delinquent December 29. This will aggregate $25,000, $15,000 of which will meet all demands against the treasury, leaving $10,000 for further prospecting and refitting the mill. Next Spring the money will begin to come out of it, and ten fold at that.

CHANGE OF TIME.—After the 1st proximo, we understand, the Northern stage line will resume the old time schedule—leaving every morning at 3 o'clock, instead of at 2 P. M. as now. The change is necessitated on account of the regular Winter arrangement between Aurora and Carson.

SPECIMENS.—W. L. Hunter, Esq., of Cerro Gordo, this morning favored us with a number of large specimens from the Los Angeles mine, the principal gold mine now being worked by Morales and others in Beveridge District. They are open to inspection and show for themselves.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR STOCK.—Lone Pine has been suffering of late by the frequent raid of horse thieves. It becomes our stock-owners to keep a sharp lookout and organize for the detection and punishment of the criminals.

RELIGIOUS.—Rev. Mr. Willis wil hold services in the school house, beginning at the usual hour, to-morrow evening.

THERE will be a called meeting of F. & A. M's to-night at half-past 6.

THE STORY OF A TRAMP.—That miserably cold, windy day in the early part of the week was futher commemorated in local annals by the arrival of a real live tramp—one of the tough kind we read of, but rarely or never see in all his glory in these parts. Notwithstanding the gale, he set out at once in search of adventures and something to steal, and was moderately successful in both directions. He opened an animated discussion with two gentlemen upon a diversity of topics, finally ending in quite a lofty flight by applying to one of them the foulest epithet he could recall on the spur of the moment. In recompense he got quite a respectable whaling, and from a party much smaller in person than himself; this wasn't altogether satisfying, so he arose and went fiercely with a drawn knife after the other gentleman; then it was he got knocked down with considerable emphasis; then, in tcken that he was a single woman's son in distress, he laid down against the lee side of an adjacent building and with heels wide apart, moaned and wept right manfully. Obtaining some relief in this way, he then set out to view the town, get something to eat and steal something. To prove that he was not a near relative of Mr. Thompson's fool colt, he crossed a stream of running water and went some distance out of his way to get a drink of water; the lady gave him the water, but the man of the house was at home; he went elsewhere to get something to eat, to still another to steal a lot of ivory checks, still another for an assortment of carpenter's tools, all of which different lots except the grub he had to disgorge; then he went to jail. Notwithstanding these idiosyncracies and diversified kleptomaniacle proclivities, this traveling man displays some desirable accomplishments. He is a fluent and manifestly an educated talker, saying nothing of the discursive style which brought him to grief as first mentioned. By some he would readily be taken for an unusually well educated traveling photographer; by others and a majority as an ordinary mining sharp from the city, except that he is too well informed to be pedantic so as to astonish the natives; by others, including the Sheriff, he was taken and also put away as a klepto-thief. As a soap artist he is truly a marvel. On a mirror down town he, so we are told, did some lettering and picturing, all with a piece of soap for brush and paint, in a really superb and artistic manner. As a subject for a local notice, he may be taken as covering too much space, but this we say: while he must be taken for a fraud, he is no myth.

SHERIFF'S SALES.—Poorly informed persons, glancing at the rather frightful list of Sheriff's sales in this issue, may jump to the conclusion that they are reading a Fresno or Tulare county paper for a dry year. This is an error we wish particularly to caution people against in advance; thank heaven, this paper has never been so unfortunate as to be published in either of those counties, and we wouldn't allow anybody to think so, not if there were three times as many such little romances to crowd its columns every once in a which. It is due to our self-respect in view of such hurtful misconceptions to state how it happens that this issue comes to have an air common to the official organs just across the big range. It now presents at one view the accumulations of work for our Sheriff in this line for nearly two whole years past, there having been no term of Court to adjudicate such cases as they came up for a year and a half prior to the first of this month. That's what's the matter, and the justification for this caution regarding newspaper identity, by which inferences, as above mentioned, might otherwise be drawn detrimental alike to our county and our own standing.

A NEW RAILROAD TO THE COAST. There is a cheering prospect of a new road being built across the continent as a rival to the two monopolies which are at present oppressing the industries of the coast. The New York Sun says the recent rise in the shares of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway Company and their firmness during the prevailing depression of the market, have now been ascertained to result from a combination of the company with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroad Company for the purpose of extending the St. Louis and San Francisco road under the name of the Atlantic and Pacific to San Francisco, with a branch to the town of San Diego. The agreement for this purpose has been ratified by the Board of Directors of both companies, and duly signed and delivered. The new road commences at the Rio Grande, and will be pushed directly to the Pacific Ocean. No delay will occur, the money having all been raised and the surveys completed.

GEN. GRANT is reported by the Inter-Ocean reporter to have given the following opinions of public men: Of Thurman there is no hope; he is dead and deserved political death. Of Tilden: "Oh, I guess he will be nominated, won't he?" Of Bayard: "I always liked Bayard, not because I think him a man of extraordinary ability, but because I think him a true man." Of Hancock: "He would be a stronger man than Tilden, but (laughing) poor Hancock would be assailed by the Catholics for hanging the sainted Mrs. Surratt, when he was no more responsible for it than you were."

THE Louisville Courier-Journal, one of the most uncompromising Democratic newspapers in the Union, in an editorial on the life of the late Senator Chandler, has the following: "He was a hard one to tackle. He was a good fighter. God be with him, and may he rest in peace."

BLACK SEA CANAL.—The giganic project for the construction of a canal through the Caucasus, from the Black Sea to the Caspian Sea, is meeting with great favor in St. Petersburg from those interested in direct commerce from the Black Sea with Central Asia.

SENATOR CHANDLER left an estate worth $300,000. While a merchant in Detroit he gained the reputation of "Old Yardstick."

THERE was quite an excitement raised in San Francisco a few days ago among stockbrokers and stockholders generally in regard to Coll Deane's three bonanzas, which he asserted were located on the Comstock and which could be uncovered whenever the Bonanza management felt so disposed. He also said that if the said management would permit him to superintend the work he would reveal them forthwith. The parties interested held their breath for a reply from the Bonanza Kings. A supposed expert Mr. Hoefloch by name, arrived in San Francisco from Virginia, and stated that John Mackay said he would give Dean $500,000 if he would find such bonanzas. Then, almost immediately, the rumor was started that Deane would accept the proposition if it were put into writing; in the meantime great excitement prevailed. Some parties telegraphed Mr. Mackay at Virginia, to ascertain the true status of the matter. He replied that he was utterly ignorant of any such transaction. Deane was also interviewed, which resulted in a like manner. Thus did Mr. Horseflesh prove himself a prevaricator of the deepest dye, and deserved the fate of being beaten to death with a gunny-sack loaded with pack-saddles.

A DOUBLE tragedy occurred at a wood ranch about ten miles from Eureka, Nevada, on the 22d instant, which resulted in the killing of each other two men named Bob Brown and John Chamberlain. The cause of the trouble was in relation to a wood ranch. Chamberlain had, it appears, been placed in charge of the premises by the owner, Geo. A. Hill, of San Francisco, and had been pestered for some time by jumpers, who endeavored to get possession of certain portions of the ranch. Brown had set a claim to a portion of the land included in the Hill tract, and told some parties the day before the trouble that he proposed to take possession of it. Both are said to have been brave men, and it is supposed when they met they went at it with a determination. The men had respectively a large circle of friends, and stood well in the community.

IT is proposed to restore Grant, by Act of Congress, to the position he held when he became President in 1869. It no doubt presents itself to the general reader that the welfare and disposition of the General is a case of necessity by some of his political "friends," and proves almost conclusively that nowhere—from Alaska to Maine—is there a "bigger man nor old Grant."

KEARNEY will have to look to his laurels. One Mrs. Boston announced the fact to the people of San Francisco that she would speak at the sand lots on Thursday last, which no doubt she carried into effect.

THE Sheriff of Stockton, the other day, arrested the notorious highwayman Peter Dalton, alias "Nick of the Woods," who is wanted on several charges in Nevada county.

A SPAN of the bridge over the Mississippi at Rock Island, Ill., gave way on on Thursday of last week, carrying down an engine and four freight cars, but injuring no one.

THERE was a general turning out of Irish Nationalists in Pennsylvania on the 23d, to take action in regard to the state of affairs in Ireland.

AT the sand lots on the 23d, Kearney said he and Clitus Barbour were thinking of going to Ireland to help the agitation there.

A MOTION in the San Francisco County Court, a few days ago, to set aside the indictment against Chas. De Young, was denied.

THE steamer Mosel from Europe, brought to New York a few days ago $13,000,000 in American gold coin and British gold bars.

A GREAT anti-rent meeting was held on the 22d instant near Balla, Ireland, at which there was great excitement.

JOHN THADDEUS DELANE, late editor of the London Times, is dead.

A PRIVATE letter from a business man in New Orleans, dated November 1, to a St. Louis gentleman, says: "Business is booming down here. There is an immense crop to move, and the Fall has been remarkably fine. Cotton, sugar and rice are selling at good prices, the country is full of money and every one is in fine spirits. If you want to see a big business, come to New Orleans about December.

GEN. HOOKER is said to have left a handsome fortune, which will probably go to his sisters, Mrs. Brainard and Mrs. Wood, of Watertown, N. Y. Among his effects is a large picture of Lookout Mountain, for which he paid $25,000. He had prepared a book on the battle of Chancellorsville, which is now in the publisher's hands, and was about to begin a book on the famous engagement on Lookout Mountain.

THERE are stretches of country in Arizona where for distances of fifty miles water cannot be procured for the use of travelers without paying from two dollars to five dollars per barrel.

THE DEL MONTE.—The pump has been doing good work all week, and the water is now easily held at a point forty feet below the 500 level. The stream in the face of the drift at that point has decreased but very imperceptibly, but a few more days will probably so drain the accumulated water in the north country that the speed of the pump can be decreased and the water still easily held under control. A station is being excavated on the 500 level wherein the plunger pump will be set, a tank placed and a flow of water from the north drift allowed to accumulate. It will be three or four weeks before everything will be in readiness to set the plunger, the work of excavating being necessarily slow at present, owing to the care exercised to not damage the pump column while blasting out the station. The work of cleaning out and timbering the drift in the face is being pushed rapidly, and in a short time the water will be so handled and conducted that much greater progress can be made in discovering the value of that level. A powder magazine has been excavated in the drain tunnel near its mouth, where will be stowed all the powder belonging to the company, and where it will be in such manner cared for as to prevent accidents. The new part of the main building over the shaft has been closely battened and is receiving a coat of fire paint. All the machinery is running smoothly and in good condition.—Esmeralda Herald.

MAMMOTH CITY to-day can boast of the most magnificent skating lake in America. Our largest lake, Lake Mary, which is a mile and a half long by three-quarters of a mile wide, is covered with a polished glare of ice, which in the bright sunshine seems like burnished steel. The cool weather of the past two weeks has made the ice from three to four inches thick, and the clearness of the water results in ice that is perfectly transparent. Unfortunately there are not more than four or five pairs of skates in town, but these are in constant use. These moonlight nights several parties have enjoyed the sport to the fullest extent, and yesterday a number of ladies went up but none of the latter could be induced to take a hand—or rather a foot—in it. Jerry McCarthy is talking of having two or three ice chairs made, so that the ladies who cannot skate or are afraid to try, can enjoy the smooth, glassy surface, without breaking their necks.—Mammoth City Times.

JUDGE WRIGHT'S decision that the ingenious point raised by Mr. Cohen in behalf of the officials who had subscribed to the salary pledge was well taken, has ended a disagreeable controversy in a way which, under the circumstances, will be generally accepted as satisfactory. The officers elected by the popular vote will take their seats without further contest, and the necessity of defeating what in one sense may be considered "the will of the people," is happily avoided. At the same time the discussion in regard to the legality of such a pledge as was taken by the candidates of the W. P. C. has probably had an effect which will put an end to any such demagogic measures in the future, notwithstanding the fact that a decision upon the merits of the main question has been evaded.—S. F. Chronicle.

THE Dickinson road and the Campbell-Bodie road have joined forces, and to-day completed a substantial bridge across the main south fork of Owen's river. It is a substantial structure, capable of carrying 40,000 pounds' weight, and is entirely above high water and ice. The dimensions are 22x15, with six heavy stringers and heavy hewn cross timbers. Mr. Thompson has had charge of this work, which will be a great accommodation to teams traveling from this place to the northern portion of the county, as it makes safe a dangerous and difficult crossing in the Winter and Spring months.—Mammoth Herald.

A YOUNG lady at Peoria, who has been dumb for years, recently recovered her speech while going out after a scuttleful of coal. The moral is as obvious as the example is timely.

THE Department estimates of the expense of taking the census next year, it is stated, is two and three-quarter millions, for which amount appropriations will be asked.

THE Denver (Col.) Tribune says that before the season closes 3,000 buildings will have been erected since the 1st of May.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29.....1879

Correct, Only a Little Turned.

The excited boy who said he mistook the "shottecary pop" for the post-office, but it didn't make a "dit o' bifference," was better understood and less mortified than the unfortunate blunderer here described. The Newport correspondent of the Boston Transcript says:

I know a lady who keeps a boarding house—a charming woman, always solicitous of the comfort of her household, but with a peculiarity. She remembers faces, but not names. That alone is hardly to be called a peculiarity, for how many people say that of themselves! But this lady is all unconscious of her failing, and never hesitates for a name, calling you whatever it occurs to her to call you, and feeling very certain that she is right.

Now it never mattered to me, that with every cup of coffee or tea she gave me, I was rechristened. On the contrary, I found it very entertaining. But this did distress her daughter.

All in vain she labored with her mother, who smilingly went on in her own way in spite of her. But there came a time and occasion when her daughter set her heart upon her mother's addressing a gentleman stranger correctly. All through the day of the evening on which he was expected, the daughter could be heard to say as she followed her mother from room to room: "Now, remember, his name is Mr. Cowdry," to which the mother in every instance would reply: "Yes, dear, I am sure I know Cowdry." At the dining room door, and even when sitting down at the tea-table, most emphatically was the name sounded in the good mother's ears, and there was always the bland answer, "Yes, dear, I know perfectly." The stranger took his seat at the table. That blessed woman, with a self-possession I have never seen surpassed, looked sweetly across the table and inquired: "Mr. Dry-cow, do you take cream and sugar?"

ALL the spelling reforms of all the men in all the world will not succeed in lessening the intensity of the school-boy's affection, who scrawls on a slate with a broken pencil: "I luv yu," and hands it across the aisle, with a big apple, to a pretty little blue-eyed girl who reads in the Second Reader.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED out of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, in the suit of J. T. Graves and Nancy Graves, Plaintiffs, against S. E. Martin and J. W. Martin, Defendants, upon a judgment rendered in said Court on the 16th day of May, A. D. 1877, for the sum of Two Hundred and Seventy-five dollars, duly attested the 18th day of November, A. D. 1879, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of Two Hundred and Seventy-five dollars, besides accruing costs and interest, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said defendants in and to the following described real property, to wit: Lots No. two (2), four (4), six (6), seven (7), eight (8), nine (9), ten (10), eleven (11) and twelve (12) in Block No. twenty-nine (29) in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears in the plat of said town, now on file in the Recorder's office of said county.

Notice is hereby given that on MONDAY, THE 15TH DAY OF DECEMBER, A. D. 1879, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., to wit: at the hour of 1 o'clock P. M., of that day, in front of the Court-house door, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said defendants, S. E. Martin and J. W. Martin, in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy said judgment and all costs, at public auction, to the highest bidder or bidders, for cash in hand in gold coin of the United States. TO MY DEAD MOTHER.

Dear mother, on thy tender eyes
Death's shadow lies to-night,
And folded on thy pulseless heart
Thy soft hands cold and white.

And never from those loving eyes,
Thro' all the future years,
Shall fall upon thy peaceful breast
The bitter rain of tears.

But the deep peace of thy repose
Is anguish keen to me;
Oh! mother, all my aching heart
Cries longingly for thee.

Oh! for one touch of thy dear hand
Upon my throbbing brow;
One glance of those beloved eyes
To calm my anguish now.

Dear mother! fare thee well! Death's peace
Lies around thee like an arm
Whose tender clasp forever more
Shall shelter thee from harm.

The flowers will grow above thy grave
While life finds pleasures still,
But in our hearts thy vacant place
No other love shall fill.

—JOSEPHA HARTLY.

Bishop Creek, Cal.

WORDS IN A DISTANT LAND.

Oh! to be home again, home again, home again—
Back to the farm house under the hill;
Oh! for to roam again, roam again, roam again
Over the meadow and down by the mill.

Oh! to be back with my dear old mother—
The kind old face once more to see!
Oh! for the dear little sister and brother
That's watching and waiting to welcome me.

Oh! the days are so lonely, lonely—
Darling loved ones so far from thee.
All that I wish for is only, only,
To kneel once more at my mother's knee.

—PENELOPE.

A BAD MEMORY.—To one who really desires to acquire knowledge, a bad memory is a serious defect, which should be remedied if possible. There are two secrets that will cure the worst memory. One is, to read a subject when strongly interested. The other is, to not only read, but think. When you have read a paragraph or page, stop, close the book, and try to remember the ideas on that page, and not only recall them vaguely in your mind, but put them into words and speak them out. Besides inattentive reading, there are other things injurious to the memory. One is, the habit of skimming over newspapers, items of news, smart remarks, bits of information, political reflections, fashion notes, all in a confused jumble, never to be thought of again, thus diligently cultivating a habit of careless reading hard to break. The best memory must inevitably suffer by such a system.

PRESENCE OF MIND.—G. H. Kirchbacker, a miner of Neveda City, put a blast at the bottom of a shaft, and lightning the fuse, signaled those at the surface to hosit away. When he had been drawn up some fifty feet, the rope broke and he was precipitated to the bottom. Bruised, stunned and almost lifeless, he yet had sufficient presence of mind to remember the blast, which in a moment more would explode. He drew his mangled body to where the fire was creeping down to the heavy charge of powder beneath. No time was to be lost. Grasping the burning fuse, he summoned up his remaining strength and drew it out from the tamping. Mr. Kirchbacker is severely, but not dangerously bruised by the fall.—Nevada Transcript.

PROF. KLINKERFUES, the director of the Gottingen Observatory, has, it is said, taken out a patent for a new invention in telegraphy. The Professor has discovered a method by which up to eight different messages may be sent simultaneously by the same wire, an apparatus at the receiving end printing the messages separately and all at the same time.

Two Kinds of Saints.

"Ah, this is a sad life!" said La Povera; "I often think I am like the Sorrellacia (bad sister), and hope to be happier up there," pointing heavenwards.

"Who was the Sorrellacia?" I asked.

"Have you never heard? It is one of our Pistojese legends, and I am often comforted to think of it. There were once two sisters and a brother. The brother became a friar, and also one sister took to the religious life, and became a nun; but the other one married, became a mother of a large family and had a hard life—like me," sighs the Povera, kissing the tiny baby on her lap. "The others used to call her Sorrellacia, because she made no religious profession."

Once the brother came to see her on a Sunday, and found her in her old gown, doing housework.

"What!" cries he, "are you not going to church?"

"To church?" she says. "Who's to cook my husband's dinner, and feed the baby, and mind all the children if I go away?"

"But," asked the frate, quite horrified, "do you never go to mass?"

"The last time I went was before the baby was born, about a month since."

"Well," said the frate, "go to-day, and I will stay here and mind the house and children."

Away went the Sorrellacia to mass, and the frate was driven out of his mind with the crying children and the troubles of cooking till when she come home he said:

"Thank heaven you are back again before I go mad! There, sister, if you have patience to put up with this every day, you certainly go a long way toward earning your rest in heaven."

Soon after this the frate died and went to heaven, where St. Peter was so pleased with him he made him doorkeeper under himself. One day St. Peter called out:

"Open the doors wide—as wide as you can—for the great saint is coming."

So the frate flung open the gates of heaven expecting to see a bishop or abbess enter in state, but what was his surprise when the Sorrellacia came in, with beautiful white robes and a happy smile on her face, and St. Peter himself made her welcome like a queen; for he said, "She has done her duty in the state of life to which she was called, in diligence and patience."

After awhile St. Peter said again:

"Open the gate."

"Must I open it wide?" said the frate.

"No; a little bit will do; this is not much of a saint."

But when she came it was the holy sister, who had always led a religious life in a convent. And this set the frate a thinking that God does not judge as men do and that outward religion is not much in His eyes.

A NEW STYLE OF LOCOMOTIVE.—A genius in England claims to have turned out at last a great mechanical desideratum—a noiseless, smokeless locomotive, which can be used on city railways in place of horses. It has been tested, and has shown a speed of seven miles an hour. Every condition has been fulfilled which could be expected of a street engine, save one—it will scare horses on the streets. It is a remarkable fact that horses are not easily frightened by any sort of monstrosity drawn by other horses. If a horse sees his fellow tugging at a fire engine, or a hideous van, he is easily reconciled, for his instinct teaches him that a thing can't be very dangerous which other horses can be induced to draw. If, however, he sees a huge car moving silently along the street, his sense of the mysterious is aroused, and he proceeds to demolish the dash-board of the vehicle to which he is attached, or runs away and tears everything to pieces. Dummy engines have been tried in various cities of this country, on street railway lines, but they have always been discarded on account of their clumsiness, and their tendency to convert rural horses into destroyers of human life.

GEN. BEN. BUTLER was called upon by a person who wanted to have a talk with him. "Mr. Butler," said he, "one of my neighbor's cows jumped my garden gate last night and completely destroyed my flower beds. The gate was of the height required by law. Now I wish to know whether I can obtain damages?" "Most assuredly," replied the widow's friend. "Well, Mr. Butler, how much?" "Oh, about ten dollars." "But, Mr. Butler," triumphantly, "the cow is yours." "Ah," said Mr. Butler, thoughtfully; and he looked unutterable things out of his bad eye. Then he turned to his desk, scratched off a few lines on a piece of paper and handed it to his visitor. It was in the form of an account and read as follows: "B. F. Butler, to Mr.——, Dr., to damages caused by cow, $10; Cr., by legal advice, $15; balance due, $5." "Mr. ——," said Mr. Butler, softly, "you needn't hurry about the payment."

A TRAVELER, going to bed, was surprised to see a ghost, which—or who—in a spectral tone began. "I am the spirit of one who was foully murdered here." "That's no business of mine," said the man, turning round on his pillow; "apply to proper quarters. Good night."

THE worst case of selfishness on record is that of a youth who complained because his mother put a larger mustard plaster on his younger brother than she did on him.

A PERSIAN proverb says: "Ten measures of talk were set down upon the earth, and the women took nine."

PRESIDENTIAL SPECULATION.—It has become fashionable, since the late elections, for the leading journals of the country to speculate on the probabilities of the next Presidential election. There are so many uncertainties, however, to be encountered, we may as well premise that no one can tell precisely what will be the outcome. Still, the politician dwells in a spirit of ardent expectancy over every item which holds out the prospect of victory to the party to which he belongs. The case, as it stands, is intelligently put forth as follows by the Philadelphia Ledger:

As to the probable vote of thirty-two States of the Union, Republicans, as well as Democrats, consider it likely that the Democrats will carry the South, giving them 138 electoral votes, and the Republicans so much of the North and West as will give them 181 electoral votes, leaving New York and Indiana in dispute. Either of these States going against the Democrats would give the Republicans a majority; both, with their fifty electoral votes, could, with the entire South, elect a Democratic President. There is, of course, a chance that some of the Southern States might be carried by the Republicans, or that New Jersey, Oregon, or Connecticut, might go Democratic; but these chances are slighter now than they were, and the chief interest centers in Indiana and New York. There is one other chance, of which little account has been taken, and that is, that a third candidate should carry enough States to deprive both parties of a majority of electors, and so throw the choice of President into the House of Representatives. That was what took place in 1800, and again, when John Quincy Adams, Jackson, Crawford and Clay were candidates, and parties were very much scattered. Adams was chosen President by the House, although Jackson had secured a greater number of electoral votes.

SAW SHARPENING MACHINE.—The Revue Industrielle mentions a new machine for sharpening straight and circular saws, constructed by M. Hure. A grinding wheel is mounted on a rocking shaft which can be inclined in any direction, follow all the profiles of the teeth, and even work around hooked teeth, which is something that cannot be done with other machines. This arrangement also permits of the sharpening of saws with different kinds of teeth without changing the "gummer" for another or different thickness. The pully which drives the grinding wheel or gummer is mounted on the bearings of the rocking shaft so as to avoid all tension of the cord when the wheel is lowered or raised.

AT a recent lecture in the Old South Church, Boston, given by Joseph Cook, he began it with a startling command: "Call the roll of the ghosts which float through this building as thickly as leaves in Vallambrosa—John Adams, Samuel Adams, John Hancock, Joseph Warren, James Otis, George Whtefield, George Washington. I venture to say that there is not one of these historic souls that does not sympathize with the Ponca Indians."

IT is said that 90,000,000 pounds of oleo margarine (bull) butter and cheese were manufactured and sold in the United States last year. Prof. Church says he has found in oleo-margarine, by analysis, horse fat, fat from bones, and waste fat, such as is used for making candles.

Two ladies presented themselves at the door of a fancy ball, and on being asked by the usher what characters they personated, they replied that they were not in special costume, whereupon he bawled out, "Two ladies without any character!"

MURDERER CAPTURED. — For some time past a reward of $500 has been offered for the capture of José Prudinero Lopez, the Elko murderer. On Monday morning he was captured by Sheriff Miller about ten miles from Newhall, in San Beunaventura county, California. The two men had quite a struggle while the arrest was being accomplished. Lopez drew his pistol, but the Sheriff seized the man's arm and then knocked him down with the butt of a six-shooter. The Sheriff had been on the man's track for several days.—Carson Appeal, Nov. 26.

WHAT THEY HAVE IN VIEW.

Congress convened in regular session last Monday. We have no report of actual proceedings, but the dispatches tell us of the work that is to be done. First on the programme after reading the journal of the day upon which the last session adjourned, was the swearing in of six new members, four of whom are from this State. As soon thereafter as may be the real and about the only important business of the session will begin; this is President making. No bill under that particular head is to be specially considered, but it will shape action or be the key note for all political measures in general.

The line of action to be pursued by the two leading parties respectively is thus outlined: Speaker Randall, for the Democrats, will use his best endeavors to suppress such hot-headed ninkimpoops as Blackburn of Kentucky in relation to all such manifestly unpopular measures as "Reduction of the Army," "Troops at the Polls," and similar measures which come down from the last Congress as unfinished business. It is said, however, that Blackburn does not propose to be suppressed. This is very pleasing to Garfield, the Republican leader, which party's policy he outlines this way: "We being in the minority, we are here merely to see the show. Let the other fellows do the performing; it's none of our funeral, and we will not interfere in the least so long as it is conducted in decency and proper decorum." And in these two statements we have a fair view of the plans of battle by which the opposing political captains hope respectively to attain the weather gauge upon each other for the big fight next year.

The Pacific Coast Delegation have joint and individual plans as follows: As a body to agree on some plan of action and to work together to restrict Chinese immigration. Their prospects for success in this are considered to be very good indeed. In view of the political bearings of this question on this coast, it may be considered a certainty that the Delegation will stand as one man upon it, however much they may differ upon all others. They are, however, likely to be equally as unanimous in an effort to secure an appropriation for the improvement of navigation in California rivers and harbors.

Berry's particular work is to secure some legislation to protect the farmers from further damage from the hydraulic miners.

Pacheco will labor for liberal appropriations for light-houses and fog signals at needed points along the coast south of San Francisco. He also wants to restore certain railroad lands to settlement.

Page will call up or re-introduce a lot of his old bills of more or less importance, and offer a new one providing for the voluntary transformation of national gold banks into national banks of the ordinary description, without the necessity of going into present liquidation.

Davis' mission is to procure the enactment of a bill to build a new Post-office at San Francisco. He will also endeavor to have the Presidio lands leased to the city for park purposes; failing in that, he will try to induce the Government to make a park of it for public use but subject to military control and requirements.

We have the news of the death of three notable men, all almost simultaneously. They are Col. E. J. C. Kewen, of Los Angeles; Rev. Christopher B. Wyatt, formerly Rector of Trinity Church, San Francisco, latterly of St. Peter's Church, Weschester, New York, and Gen. Jeff. C. Davis, U. S. A., who died at Chicago.

Senator Hill, of Colorado, thinks that Indians who are willing to work should be fed; Indians who are too lazy to work should have no rations issued to them, and none of them should be allowed to own or use firearms; and further, that if an Indian robs or kills another Indian, he should be indicted and tried in a United States Court.

Mrs. Eaton, who died in Washington the other day, was in her youth a bar maid in the city where she died, and was known as "Peg O'Neal." She lived to become the wife of a War Secretary, the mother of a Duchess and the grandmother of one of the house of Rothschild.

Mexico is to have its Inter-Oceanic railway, one having been just commenced across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, between the mouth of the Coazacoalco and the Upper Lagoon on the Pacific side.

"PLACING A PROPERTY."

As illustrative of the style of "bosh" now being perpetrated upon Eastern men, in connection with the mining "boom" which is supposed to have set in, we quote the following. It is taken from the Milwaukee Mercantile Review, of November 8, 1879, and is headed "The Gladstone Gold and Silver Mining Company:"

This company owns eight mines in Inyo Co., California. They were located under the United States mining laws. They carry gold and silver, much of it assaying high. The average working value may be safely stated at $100 per ton. The cost of mining and working with water power will not be over $10 per ton. More or less work has been done on the mines. The Vulture mine has on the dumps about 870 tons of ore, and several shafts sunk and drifts run exposing about 8,000 tons of ore, showing vein matter over three feet in width, and all the ore shows chloride of silver and free gold.

The mines contain more good ore than can be worked with a 60-stamp mill in 20 years. Two tons of ore can be worked daily, per stamp. With 40 stamps 80 tons of ore can be worked daily. If the ores only average $75 per ton (a low estimate) the result for 300 days' run would be $1,800,000. At least two-thirds would certainly be paid to the stockholders.

The company is now making arrangements for a 15-stamp mill. It has water power sufficient to run from 60 to 100 stamps. The stamping will be increased to the maximum of the water power. When in operation the company will declare and pay monthly dividends. The company is free from debt. Its policy is to keep on. The company will now allow its stock to go on the Stock Board; nor will it be managed after the manner of so many companies whose only object seems to be to fleece stockholders. The men who control it are not speculators or stock jobbers. They never dealt in mining stocks nor speculated in any kind of stocks. It will be their object to work these mines economically and divide the results fairly among stockholders. They have not sought San Francisco capital, nor will they do so, because they are determined to keep the property of the company free from the control of that city of stock gamblers and "mine smashers."

A number of Milwaukee gentlemen are interested in this company. Mr. A. C. Kasson has inspected the property and knows the men concerned in the company. Rev. E. Graham, of Virginia City (formerly of Milwaukee) has also examined the mines, is interested in them, and writes of them: "I am developing quite an interest in our mines. Have had assays of nearly all the ores, separately and combined. An average of our seven mines, taking samples from each, which went $22 38 gold and $203 40 silver—total, $225 78. I didn't get any of the rich samples assayed at all, only the lowest average specimens." P. P. Mast, Esq., a wealthy agricultural implement manufacturer of Springfield, O., and a man of integrity, writes, under date October 15, 1879, "I went out to see the Gladstone mines in Inyo Co., California, in which I have taken an interest. I was much pleased with my visit, and can freely say that they are all and even better than they were represented to me. I found the men connected with the property honorable and reliable gentlemen, and I consider them worthy of confidence." The President of the company is now here, and offers to the citizens of Milwaukee a limited number of shares at a price which will insure large dividends on the amount invested. The shares will not be assessed. The only object in offering these shares is to supplement the fund for the erection of the mill. After that no more will be offered. Persons desiring further information will find the undersigned for a few days only at the office of J. F. Birchard, Esq., Birchard's Block. Application may be made to Dr. Favelle, Mr. Kasson, J. F. Birchard or the undersigned.

JOHN S. THOMPSON,
President.

Notwithstanding the foregoing string of nonsensical absurdities, the Gladstone Gold and Silver Mining Company is not a myth. Its property consists of the Vulture, Blue Belle, Shiloh, Richmond, Empire, Lookout, Surplus and Hidden Treasure mines or locations, situated in Mineral Basin District, near Resting Springs, in the extreme southwest corner of Inyo County's vast domain. The corporation's principal place of business is at Los Angeles; capital stock, $12,000,000, divided into 120,000 shares, and of this it is certified that the stock actually subscribed for amounts to $8,500,000. The present Directors are—A. C. Kasson, of Milwaukee, John P. Van Winkle, of Mineral Basin, and James F. Ward, Charles J. Ellis, John S. Thompson, Barton M. O'Dair and John Haley of Los Angeles. The corporation was formed in June last, and the records and title deeds appear all straight.

But the Wolverines must be a trusting and confiding people, if they help to build that mill. It will be interesting to find out where that water power is to come from. It is also refreshing to learn that much of the gold and silver assays high. We can beat Mr. ThomPson's figuring, too. Put up a mill with 1,000 stamps, working 2,000 tons of ore, gold or silver or something daily, yielding $1,000 per ton. In a run of 500 days the company would have——considerable money.

Seth Green, the fish culturist, says there is a hybrid in the Hudson and that he would like to secure a specimen. The fish is a cross between the shad and the striped bass and is produced by mixing the melt of the bass with the spawn of the shad.

JONES' EFFORT.

We devote a good deal of space in this issue to the re-production of a long story relating to persons and circumstances connected with this region, and which story we find in a late number of the Leadville, Colorado, Chronicle. As therein stated, it was told a reporter of that paper by a Mr. "Jones," formerly of this (Inyo) county, now a "prominent resident of Leadville." We feel quite sure we know who "Jones" is, but if so, Jones isn't his name even by marriage. Our man's front name was Andrew J., and, owing to his peculiar personal idiosyncrasies (which crop out in every detail of this Leadville story) he was supposed to have been a close student of Baron Maunchausen, and also a lineal descendant of Lord Blowhard. If so, he was no disgrace to his ancient prototype or noted ancestor, but rather an improvement on both. Our man went off eastward some years ago, being last heard of in the San Juan country, which makes it probable he is now a prominent resident and furnace builder at Leadville. He is just the man to take delight in wool-winding a tender-foot reporter, and it is evident a tender-foot reporter is a magnificent subject for such a proficient to operate upon, for it is clear he is of a sort who has much, very much to learn. But this much we will say to the credit of our man: while he could with but a grain of truth for a corner stone, erect the hugest fabrics of pure fabrications of the clean cut fanfaronade style of architecture, he was in other respects a good enough and reliable sort of a man. We may err as to his identity with the "Jones" in this Death Valley story, but this much we can say—it is one he would not be ashamed of.

As for the story itself, we give it as something to amuse local readers who, knowing more or less of all the facts and places referred to, can all the better appreciate the fervency of an imagination which can take so many literal facts and string them out into so many grotesque untruths and exaggerations. "Jones" may own many shares in the famous State Line Lode, but certainly and positively never saw it or Gold Mountain or the valleys in the vicinity or any part of Death Valley proper, except possibly, as he saw it from the tops of distant mountains—either that, else he is mis-reported, else lies outright as he does about the earthquakes, alkali dust, and all the rest.

"THE THREE BONANZAS."

Coll Deane—we assume that everybody knows who Coll Deane is—in a public lecture one night last week told the people of San Francisco what unmitigated villains Flood and Mackay were, particularly the first named. His lecture was entitled "The Three Bonanzas," and so called because Deane claims that that number of huge bonanzas exists in the Comstock mines which are owned and manipulated by the villains aforesaid but which bonanzas have been covered up for two years past in order that the aforesaid can get in another swindle on the poor servant girls and all others whom they may cinch out of a shilling. He denounces the Bonanza Kings as constituting the most dangerous, heartless and cursed monopolists existing on this or any other coast, and as monopolists with more servile followers than any other. Well, Flood answers by offering Deane $500,000 to produce his alleged bonanzas. Deane accepts the offer, conditional on the right to operate in the mines as he may find requisite.

It is noticeable that about all the city papers are disposed to sneer at Deane, and leave him to fight his battle alone. This is not because they do not believe what he says about Flood nor the danders of his monopoly, nor that they are positive that he is only dreaming about the bonanzas, but simply because they love Flood for his money's sake, and know which side their bread is buttered—that is, Flood has money beyond computation and power in proportion, while Deane has little or none of either. But among the few who do not care for Flood or his money, or anything else except fair play, we find the Pacific Life. Among other things to the same purport, that paper says:

Here we see a man standing alone, before an immense assembly, to denounce one of the wealthiest and most powerful citizens in San Francisco, as one devoid of honor and honesty. We find him supporting his charges by facts and figures, the most indubitable, which he defies the accused to refute. So far, no denial of these charges has been made. What then must be our verdict? Can we, with our knowledge of the true, manly, human heart, which revolts against the suspicion of a crime, think this man otherwise than guilty? We cannot! He does not even here, as his plan hitherto has been, seek to vindicate himself by casting odium on his accuser. Complete silence appears to be his only defense, and this in the eyes of reasonable and right minded people, is equivalent to no defense. His wealth and power should not shield him from what is demanded of all public men, publicly accused—an ample explanation.

The Leadville papers attribute the number of deaths there to bad whisky, instead of pneumonia.

PANAMINT.—It seems to be a settled thing that the Leota Mining Company at Panamint is a busted institution. The poor grub and the inebriated condition of the waiter who served it up, combined with other similar sufferings experienced by that expert and the man of money who went to help him look at the property, is what probably did the business. Certain it is they got back to the city and went before the obese capitalists from Chicago with all the terrors and acute horrors of their expedition fresh upon their minds, and it is a hundred to one the pair allowed those tribulations to give color to their report. Anyway, the obese capitalists decided from this report that they could do better killing and curing hogs in Chicago than in taking chances of Inyo wild cats, such as the man of money and the expert were fearful they had really seen. So the Leota Company did not get the mere handful of dollars needed to keep things going, and this fact becoming known, the unpaid employés and other local creditors began to lay attachments on bullion and other personal property whereby to secure their dues. To this end they got control of the mill, and putting T. F. A. Connelly in charge, set it to work, and in a run of three or four days cleaned up over $5,000 worth of bullion, which they shipped off on their own account, but to be credited to the company, of course. An attachment on the quicksilver interrupted further milling operations, and so matters stand at present. The late employés are confident that if they are allowed to run the mill not to exceed ten days on ore to be procured at the same time out of the company's mines (the same that the expert examined) they can pay current expenses and every dollar of the company's indebtedness besides. The sum of this indebtedness is now placed at $18,000, less the above bullion credit. This may be more than they could or would accomplish, but the offer shows at least the honest estimate of the capabilities of the property by those best acquainted with it.

THE MARIETTA TRAGEDY.—The examination of McLaughlin for the killing of one of the Brophy brothers and Gillespie in the late tragedy at Marietta was had last week at Belleville, and resulted in his discharge in short order, Mr. P. Reddy appearing as his counsel. Two other men, names to us unknown, were also held with McLaughlin as parties in the double homicide, but, like him, were also discharged. It appears from the evidence adduced that McLaughlin was perfectly justifiable in every part of the transaction. The Brophys had resolved upon killing him, and had so informed him and the public repeatedly. They began the attack in which they were backed by Gillespie and a man named Hankins, the latter taking quite a prominent part. These four each fired a shot apiece at McLaughlin before he returned a single shot, though he at the time was advancing upon one of the Brophys. He then fired and Brophy fell; then turning on Hankins, the latter took to his heels, and, it is said, never stopped running till he got to Benton. About this juncture other shots were fired by outside parties, resulting in the wounding of Henry Brophy, John being already dead or dying, and also in the instant killing of Gillespie, McLaughlin coming out unscathed, though it appears he had been the deliberate target at close range of at least two pistol and as many Henry rifle shots, the latter being fired by parties standing unnoticed by McLaughlin a hundred feet or so away, and protected by awning posts or doorways.

RELIGIOUS.—During the week, every afternoon and evening from Sunday last, Rev. Mr. Willis, materially aided by his talented wife, has held prayer meetings and regular preaching services respectively, the first at different private dwellings, the latter at the school house. The school house, for the later several occasions, has been fairly crowded by interested listeners of all ages and callings. The unselfish zeal, faith and ability of Mr. and Mrs. Willis has greatly commended them and their efforts to all our people; they are accomplishing something of good even though nothing may be now added to actual church membership—which, indeed, is by no means a first or sole consideration. There will be services tonight as usual, and to-morrow at 11 o'clock, also in the evening.

THE OFFICERS.—Following is a list of the officers of Oasis Lodge, No. 352, I. O. G. T., just reorganized at Bishop Creek: J. C. Mills, W. C. T.; Miss —— Howell, W. V. T.; Geo. M. Clark, W. S.; M. H. White, W. T.; Wm. J. Hull, W. F. S.; H. G. Plumley, W. M.; G. Gratzey, W. I. G.; Wm. Goodman, W. O. G.; Rev. L. Case, W. C.; P. Zimmerman, P. W. C. T.; Wm. Goodman, L. D. Lodge meets on Tuesday nights.

LAKE DISTRICT.—We are indebted to U. S. Deputy Surveyor Wm. S. Lilien for a copy of his map of Lake Mining District. It is a perfect representation of the town, lakes, and more particularly the overlapping mass of mining locations, and must have taxed all of Mr. Lilien's well known ability in its preparation.

TO THE BAY.—A. Caldwell, formerly Superintendent of the Independence tunnel, but latterly in charge of the True Blue, Clarendon and Lake View mines at Lake District, passed through town yesterday en route to the city. Mr. Caldwell proposes returning to this county soon.

BUSY.—The County Clerk's office is kept quite busy these times, mostly in recording deeds, bonds, new locations, etc. A cheering sign.

NO TROUBLE.—Notwithstanding the vagueness of the New Constitution upon the question as to the time when our county officers elect shall enter upon their duties, and the fact that as yet there has been no judicial determination of the point, except in the cases of the County Treasurer and Public Administrator there can be no contest in the matter. The Clerk, Surveyor and County Superintendent succeed themselves. In the Sheriff's office, Sheriff Moore and Sheriff-elect Smith will both remain during the interim of disputed time, one as principal and the other as Under Sheriff—though it may be doubtful whether the said principal is acting de jure or de facto. As to the Treasurer and the Coroner-Public Administrator positions, it is probable that the same point may be settled in some other county in time to avoid litigation here.

MASQUERADING.—On the 27th of last month they had a masquerade ball at Bishop Creek, which, we are told, was a "way up" affair. Some of the characters represented were as follows: E. Marr, Fat Dutchman; C. Shumann, Big Injun; C. Ball, Count Buzz Fuzz; Mrs. Ball, Countess Buzz Fuzz; Mrs. Wm. Harrold, Fortune Teller; Mrs. May Gill, Indian Queen; Mrs. M. Parker, Woman in Black; Miss L. Drake, Woman in White; Miss Schober, Nun; W. Goodman, Gilbert De Bois; Wm. Gill, Reliable Contraband; Wm. Little, Woman with the Sun Bonnet, and plenty of others with characters and with no characters—in the play, we mean.

STIRRING AROUND.—There seems just now to be considerable activity among our mining men. Capt. J. M. Keeler, of the Swansea works, is at present in town and vibrating here and there generally, on business all the while. Messrs. Woodhull and Hedge left this morning for the White Mountains. Mr. J. M. Adams is at the Brown Monster mill, superintending the concentrator, which started up yesterday. Col. A. G. Boley, of the Indiana mine, is here today. Our junior leaves for Cerro Gordo to-morrow, in connection with matters pertaining to the sale of the great Ygnacio mine. Supt. F. W. Stevenson, of the Buster mine, Fish Lake Valley, was in town purchasing Winter supplies. He is working the property for New York capitalists, who have it under bond. That country is very generally looking up all around.

SAD NEWS.—Mr. P. Reddy started this morning on his return to Bodie, whence, in all probability, he will at once go East—a trip to be undertaken in consequence of the receipt of the sad news of the hopeless illness of an only sister, Mrs. Martha Corcoran, of Providence, Rhode Island. Whether he goes on to that place or not will depend upon the nature of telegraphic advices after reaching Aurora. He fears he cannot make the journey in time to find his sister alive. Mr. E. A. Reddy, the only remaining brother, resides in this place.

DR. HOWELL.—The card of Dr. Howell, of Bishop Creek, will be found in this paper. The doctor's certificate and regular license to practice has lately been received from the State Board of Medical Examiners and placed on record in the County Clerk's office.

TO WIN.—While at church the other night, he cheerfully contributed a half toward the cause, and was heard to remark: "Copper the hat and take the minister to win." And then the Deacon sweetly chipped, "There's no double on this turn."

LIST OF LETTERS.—Letters addressed to the following named parties remain in the Postoffice at this place: Jacob Denee, John Erwin, M. Pre Entone, N. S. Moffatt, Andy Rymer, in care of Homer Mayer, P. O. Box 7.

IF the Chinese do not capture California within a quarter of a century, they will have the Sandwich Islands. It is understood that there are already about 15,000 of these people on the Islands, and that they still arrive in large numbers, say from six to eight hundred per month. The natives are not likely to stop this immigration, for they obtain certain advantages from it. For instance, the Chinese cultivate small patches of land for the natives on shares.

"OLD BRYE!"

History of a Noted Man and Mine, Whose Frequent and Mysterious Disappearance and His Return with Bags of Nuggets Excited the People and Miners of the Coast—Death Valley and its Mountain of Gold—Its Exploration by a Citizen of Leadville—The Location of the Famous State Line Lode—Remarkable History of a Remarkable Man—The Skeleton Indians of the Death Valley—A Region of Country Where Rain Never Falls—And Where Earthquakes Are of Daily Occurrence—An Unwritten History of the "Breyfogle Mine."

[Specimen of lies as strung together by the Leadville Chronicle.]

Out in Nevada and near the California line there is a strip of country, which from the date of its discovery, has been known as Death Valley. It is one hundred and eighty miles long and about sixty in breadth. The fact was known that by crossing Death Valley many miles could be saved by travelers journeying on to California. In the early days an emigrant train, numbering many teams and occupants, headed across Death Valley, notwithstanding the warnings of those who had good reason to believe they could not survive the journey. The road before the emigrant train lay lengthwise through the valley, and on the morning of the 25th of May the train was started into the desert and in an hour's time was lost to sight in rising clouds of alkali dust.

"At best and under the most favorable circumstances, that train could not pull across Death Valley in less than eight days; yet before half that time has passed yonder party will perish," remarked an old frontiersman.

This first attempt to cross the valley was watched with interest, for, after all, there was a possibility that the stories had been exaggerated, and that the hurrying pioneers would come out and reach the land of gold long before those with whom they had parted and whose protestations had been turned aside as unworthy of consideration.

Weeks came and went, and months passed, yet there came no tidings of the emigrants. Inhabiting a portion of this country there are a few savages known as Death Valley Indians. But these creatures cannot, perhaps, in any sense be called savages, since they are in all respects the most emaciated and remarkable race of human beings known perhaps in history or story. But one of these creatures was ever known to come beyond the limits of the alkaline desert—it was he who brought the first news of the fate of the emigrants, nearly one year after their departure on the short cut to California across Death Valley. This Indian shadow—for he could not in truth be called anything else—some months since had discovered the bones of the animals and men and women of the ill-fated expedition about half way across the terrible desert. It was at first suspected by those nowise acquainted with the Death Valley Indian ghosts, that instead of perishing from inhaling the constantly rising clouds of alkali, the emigrants had been met and murdered by the savages. However, those who were better capable of judging, had no doubt but that the party had perished for want of water and pure air, not a gill of the one or a breath of the other ever having existed in any part of Death Valley.

At Austin, Nevada, there lived an old German miner by the name of Breyfogle. As "Old Brye," was known to every miner from Utah to California. He was an eccentric and exclusive old chap, who for intervals and for months together would absent himself from camp, going no one knew where. In 1864 "Old Brye" was missed for about four months, and it was thought that this time the old man had gone never to return. However, those who believed him dead were doomed to disappointment, as "Old Brye" put in an appearance one fine morning after the lapse of the time stated. He brought with him gold nuggets to the value of several thousand dollars. Of course his arrival created surprise in the camp, and there was not a miner in the country that was not ready at a moment's notice to set out for the new fields where Breyfogle obtained the shining nuggets. The old man was besieged with inquiries, and one party was ready to put up any amount that he might name if he would but pilot them to the new El Dorado. Nothing tangible could possibly be got out of Breyfogle, only that the gold was brought from the desert—from Death Valley. This idea was scouted at—the old man was trying to deceive them as to the real locality of the rich ground. Upon supposed hints from "Brye," several parties started in search of the big gold field, every one of which returned disappointed. The old fellow's statement, repeated over and over again, that the gold came from a point in Death Valley which he was unable to describe, was as often thrust aside.

At length Breyfogle made a statement regarding his recent adventures, and in such earnestness that there was no longer a doubt but that the old man had during his absence been through Death Valley. It was this: that while wandering through the forbidden ground he came upon the remains of a number of men, women, children and horses, which from appearances had perished from want of water. The skeleton of the travelers he said were in the wagons to which he supposed they belonged, where they had probably gathered when all hope was lost. The animals had sunk down in their harness. There was no indications of death by violence. This train was without doubt the one which set out to cross the desert.

That what had now come to be popularly called "Breyfogle's mine," was located somewhere in Death Valley, there no longer seemed a doubt. How the old man had for months managed to live there was to every one a mystery, and this part of the story being pretty well authenticated, Breyfogle was urged by several parties to let out the secret, but nothing could be got out from him further than this stereotyped reply to all questions:

"Big hill of gold way over in Death Valley."

Finally, a gentleman by the name of W. T. Wright, well known all over the coast and Western Terrritories as "Joggles," sought out and cultivated Breyfogle for the purpose of obtaining his secret, or at least that which was thought to to be such. After a time, "Old Brye" admitted "Joggles" into his confidence, telling him all about his journeyings, and, as near as he could, telling of the location of the gold pile. As near as the old man could guess this was about the center of Death Valley. He agreed to lead Wright to the spot, and having exacted from him his promise, "Joggles" and two or three friends at once began preparations for the journey, which they well knew to be a perilous and dangerous one.

This was in 1865. The departure of the party was kept a profund secret, and the start was made at an hour when the good people of Austin, Nevada, were asleep. All were provided with horses, and the party was well provisioned for a siege. After several days' ride they found themselves on the edge of Death Valley, where Breyfogle climbed down from his horse and bade his companions to do likewise. When they protested the old man told them that a horse was never kown to live in the valley—the alkali dust chocking him after a few hours. But "Joggles," who knew the character of the country, had prepared to beat this game, having provided himself with several great sponges, one of which was tied over each of the animal's nostrils, still others being left to serve the same purpose for the men. Breyfogle protested that this would be no go, but "Joggles" was prepared to take the chances, the animals being his. These novel preparations having been completed, the start into the dessert was made. The party had proceeded but a short distance, "Old Brye" in the lead, when one of the three companions called a halt, when he declared he would go no further. Breyfogle's story of "heaps of gold," and the protestations of his fellows, were of no avail—this one man had no desire to become suddenly rich at such a risk of his life. They had proceeded several miles into the desert, and "Brye" declared that the disgusted traveler could never find his way back to the point from which the party started, and that he surely would be overtaken by clouds of alkali dust and perish. However, he could see nothing but death before him, and defying all entreaties, the man wheeled his horse around, bidding the remaining number of the party good bye.

Now there remained Breyfogle, Wright and another whom we will call Jones for convenience. Jones is today a prominent mine owner and operator in Leadville, a learned gentleman of high social standing and character, who yesterday related to a reporter for the Chronicle the facts as given in this article. The party of three, as left after the return of this friend, and composed, as above mentioned, and led on by Breyfogle, continued their journey. Our informant's description of the trip across Death Valley, was graphic and full of interest, the details of which would fill a volume. The trio now wandered about the valley three days, and the direction of their journeyings could be ascertained only by consulting a pocket compass. This, however, served them no purpose, as Breyfogle did not seem to have the remotest idea of the direction in which the "gold pile" lay. The alkali dust was blinding, suffocating, and the heat was intense. Wright and Jones, in sheer desperation, at times halted the old man in his apparently aimless wanderings about, demanding that he lead them to water, as both themselves and beasts were now well nigh famished. Water was not found, and on the fourth day the horses sank down under their riders, never to rise again.

Now their danger and misery was complete, but "Old Brye" continued to manifest perfect indifference, weathering the journey better than his companions, who heartily wished themselves out of the Valley of Death. The situation was a desperate one, and desperately was it met. Lifting from the dead animals such articles of food and drink as they needed, the brave gold seekers set out on foot, Breyfogle pointing the way. On the fifth day, our informant thinks, about noon, the old man, who was perhaps twenty yards in the advance, and already lost to sight in the dust, shouted back in broken English:

"Here is the gold pile!"

Renewed exertion, if exertion at such a time were possible, was put forth by Wright and his companion, who in a few moments were at Breyfogle's side. Sure enough, a short distance away, through the rising dust, was a hill of considerable size, which "Old Brye" declared without hesitation was the point at which he obtained the nuggets. Arriving on the spot, the mound was immediately explored, Breyfogle pointing to several points in jutting ledges, where he said, with the aid of a hammer and pick, he had knocked out the coveted metal. At any rate, if they had not found Breyfogle's mine, they had come to a point where it was possible to breathe without inhaling the alkali, the point being elavated so that a little fresh air was possible. Wright and his companion gave to this mound the name of "Gold Mountain."

The party remained here three days exploring the mountain, but failed to find gold in the quantities and with such ease as was represented by "Old Brye," who seemed anxious to get away.

Wright and Jones made a thorough exploration of Gold Mountain, nearly all of which, our informant thinks, contains mineral. They found a strong vein, very rich in gold, which varies in width from four to fifteen feet, carrying porphyry, green stone and hornblende. The vein runs north and south through the mountain, the mineral from which mills from eight hundred to fifteen hundred dollars per ton. This ground was taken up in due form by Wright and Jones, and called the State Line Lode. The party now set out on the return, making the trip out in safety, where their discovery was made known to a few friends. A company was at once organized for the purpose of taking in a stamp mill, all the obstacles heretofore being in the road having been overcome by experience. Abundance of capital was provided, the stamp mill secured, a party raised, which was well provided with water, wood and provisions, and in two weeks from the date of arrival of our informant and his companion, the whole outfit was back to Gold Mountain.

The mill was at once put up, but it being impossible to obtain the water supply expected, the project had to be abandoned, and the mill, unused, stands there to-day.

"The hill stands there as a monument of your folly," said the reporter to the party known in this article as Jones.

"You are mistaken, sir. Myself and the other gentleman became bankrupts in an attempt to devise methods by which the ore could be worked. All the difficulties which we encountered will some day be overcome, and this done, the State Line lode will become the richest mine in the world. In my mind there is no question about this."

"Surrounded by such obstacles as you speak of, will it ever be worked?"

"No doubt about it. Gold is there in untold quantity, but it will take money to reach it."

The gentleman then went on to state that but for the panic of '67 the State Line lode would have been disposed of to a company of English capitalists for five millions of dollars, and declared that the mine was not only cheap at this price, but that the purchasing company, at that figure, might spend half as much more in reaching the property with all the proper appliances for actively prosecuting its development, and yet get it all back in perhaps a year's time.

For years Gold Mountain was the topic of conversation over on the coast, and numerous schemes were devised for reaching it, every one of which has so far failed, not for want of funds to carry them out so much as the grave doubt as to their practicability in the minds of men who then as now stood ready to make the necessary expenditure, if they could but be satisfied that after the great outlay the end would be attained. Our informant states that the total area embraced in Gold Mountain is about five hundred acres—which he thinks to be but as many acres of mineral running high in gold! This gentleman says that to-day he is the owner of seven-eighths of the State Line lode. He has several mines in this camp which are as yet just prospects, but which may yet turn out in time to be bonanzas, and he declares that if it should be his good fortune to come into possession of funds sufficient to do the work he will expend it in a scheme which he now has for successfully, as he believes, searching and developing the mine at Gold Mountain, which he thinks to contain untold millions in the shining metal.

In answer to the reporter's question as to whether our informant was satisfied that the gold brought out to Austin by old Breyfogle came from Gold Mountain, he replied that he was not. The old fellow brought out nuggets, and he thinks it quite possible but highly improbable that they came from the locality named.

"It is believed on the coast," said our informant, "that old Breyfogle's mine has not yet been found, and every now and then this subject is still agitated by coast papers."

It is stated as a fact that not long after the return of Wright and his friend from Gold Mountain, Breyfogle was missed from Austin for several months, returning with nuggets to the value of some five thousand dollars. The old man died in 1873, and with him died his secret, probably, of the whereabouts of the Breyfogle mine.

Death Valley is below the level of the sea, and no dew, rain or moisture of any kind ever falls there. It is a dreary, desolate waste, and is rightly named. There is preceptibly felt almost every day on Gold Mountain a rocking motion, such as may be experienced on the deck of a vessel in a light sea. The valley in all respects is peculiar and indescribable, which may be accepted as evidence of how zealous is Nature in guarding her choicest treasure.

GEN. MCCOOK has had great experience among the Indians, especially those of Colorado, and expresses himself freely as to how they should be treated. He thinks the Government entirely too lenient with its dusky wards. In a recent interview with the Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer he said:

"In the case of the Apache Chief, Victoria. Recently he and his band killed over two hundred whites in New Mexico. Some years ago Victoria and his band did the same thing and retreated into Mexico, and after awhile came back and went on to the reservation and were not punished for the former massacre. Consequently they have committed a second massacre and fled to Mexico again. The other Indians, their cousins and neighbors, see that the whites do not punish Apaches, and therefore there is no penalty for killing a few people. The only way to make savage men behave is to hang them, invariably, when they kill."

The General declares that the Government errs in dealing with the Indians as nations. It is his opinion that the British plan should be adopted, of feeding the Indians only so long as they behave themselves, and of holding each individual responsible for his misdeeds.—S. F. Call.

IN one of the interior counties, the other day, Robert Guile and Mary Williams were married. Now she is Mary of R. Guile.

Some of R. H. McDonald's Arguments.

There are in the United States 190,000 licensed rum-sellers, 2,000,000 habitual drinkers, 600,000 hopeless sots, 60,000 drunkards who fall into dishonored graves annually. Nearly all the murders committed are the results of drinking and drunkenness. Careful estimates show that there are enough fermented and distilled liquors yearly used in the United States to fill a canal four feet deep, fourteen feet wide and one hundred and twenty miles long; and liquor shops enough, side by side, to make a double row, or street, one hundred miles long.

It costs $11,000,000 a year to support the paupers of the United States; $200,000,000 are invested in the liquor trade alone; and how much in tobacco I have no statistics to show.

Fathers, mothers, guardians, young men and maidens, please read the following table of calculations, and see what it costs a young man, starting in life at the age of twenty, to take three drinks at ten cents each, and smoke three cigars at ten cents each, daily, making the expense sixty cents per day. The small amount of sixty cents a day, if deposited in a Savings Bank at eight per cent. per annum interest and compounded every six months, will produce the results as given in the following table:

1st ten years,	age from 20 to 30..	$3,200
2d " " " "	30 to 40..	10,500
3d " " " "	40 to 50..	26,200
4th " " " "	50 to 60..	60,000
5th " " " "	60 to 70..	136,360

You will observe that the above includes no extra expenditure for smoking or chewing tobacco, or cigarettes, snuff or even "an occasional bottle of wine," but merely one cigar after each meal, and three drinks during the day and evening. The above estimate is below rather than above the average with those indulging in these luxuries, or more properly, dissipations.

Every ounce of liquor costs the poor man a loaf of bread, and every paper of tobacco or cigar the same. The fire liquor builds in a poor man's stomach and brain, extinguishes the fire on his hearth; while the fiery blood that rushes through his own veins, madly burning his life away, is transmitted to his helpless children, producing and perpetuating a race of paupers and criminals.

A MOHAMMEDAN priest, Ahmed Affendi, has been for some years assisting a company of Protestant missionaries in a translation of the New Testament, receiving $25 a month for revising, correcting and clothing in poetical Turkish their versions. This coming to the knowledge of the Sheik-ul-Illam, he had the priest arrested and tried by an ecclesiastical court. A religious excitement was stirred up, and was fanned by the Turkish press, and when the last mail left Constantinople the court was besitating whether to sentence Ahmed to fifteen years imprisonment in a fortress or to death.

So far, the prospects of the India tea crop of 1879, are very gloomy. From nearly all quarters comes the same tale of a short crop and an inferior one; dividends will be but few, and for some concerns the future cannot be bright. First, serious drought, then heavy rains and a bad market to contend with, are enough to make the stoutest quail; but the Indian tea has fared a worse crisis, and it is thought that those who are most despondent now will yet live to reap the benefit of their tea investments.

AN old man, intent on making his will, was asked by the lawyer the name of his wife, when he gravely remarked: "Well, indeed, I really don't recollect what it is. We've been married for upwards of forty years, and I've always called her my old woman." The lawyer left a blank, to be filled up when his old woman's name was ascertained.

Misnamed Things.

The misapplication of a name in speaking of the common things of life is the source of many errors. Why things are not correctly named is probably due to the deficiency of our language in descriptive words. The Journal of Applied Science has this to say upon this subject:

Why should trade not have a Johnson to classify and correct the mass of inconsistencies that go to make up its nomenclature? We not only tax our brains to invent "fantastic" names for every new fabric, varied, perhaps, only by a thread or a shade from what our grandparents wore a century ago, but there are positive misnomers for many staple articles of merchandise. The following imperfect list, culled from sources already at hand, will give a fair idea of them:

Acid (sour), applied in chemistry to a class of bodies to which sourness is only accidental, and by no means a universal characteristic. Thus rock crystals, quartz, flint, etc., are chemical acids, though no particle of acidity belongs to them.

Blacklead does not contain a single particle of lead, being composed of carbon and iron.

Brazilian grass does not come from Brazil, or even grow there; nor is it grass at all. It consists of a palm leaf (Thrinax Argentea), and is imported chiefly from Cuba.

Burgundy pitch is not pitch, nor is it manufactured in or exported from Burgundy. The best is a resinous substance prepared from common frankincense, and brought from Hamburg; but by far the greater quantity is a mixture of resin and palm oil.

China, as a name for porcelain, gives rise to the contradictory expressions—British china, Dutch china, Chelsea china, etc., like wooden milestones, iron milestones, brass shoe horns, iron pens, steel pens.

Cuttle bone is not bone at all, but a structure of pure chalk, once embedded loosely in the substance of certain species of cuttle fish. It is inclosed in a membraneous sac within the body of the fish, and drops when the sac is opened, but it has no connection whatever with the sac of the cuttle fish.

Galvanized iron is not galvanized. It is simply iron coated with zinc, and this is done by dipping it in a zinc bath containing muriatic acid.

German silver is not silver at all, nor was the metallic alloy called by that name invented by a German, but has been in use in China time out of mind.

Honey soap contains no honey, nor is honey in any way employed in its manufacture. It is a mixture of palm oil, soap, and olive oil soap, each one part, with three parts of curd soap, or yellow soap scented.

Japan lacquer contains no lac at all, but is made from the sap of a tree called Rhus vernicifera.

Kid gloves are not usually made from kid skins, but of lamb or sheep skins. At present many of them are made of rat skins.

Meerschaum is not petrified "sea foam," as its name implies, but is a composition of silica, magnesia and water.

Mosiac gold has no connection with Moses or the metal gold. It is an alloy of copper and zinc, used in the ancient musivum or tesselated work.

Mother of pearl is the inner layer of several sorts of shells. It is not the mother of pearl, as its name indicates, but in some cases the matrix of the pearl.

Pen means a feather (Latin, penna, a wing). A steel pen is not a very choice expression.

Prussia blue does not come from Prussia, but is the precipitate of the salt of protoxide of iron with prussiate of potassa.

Salad oil is not oil for salad, but oil for cleaning sallades, i. e., hemlets.

Salt is not salt at all, and has long been excluded from the class of bodies denominated "salts."

Sealing wax is not wax at all, nor does it contain a single particle of wax. It is made of shellac, Venice turpentins, and cinnabar. Cinnabar gives it a deep, red color, and the turpentine renders the shellac soft and less brittle.

Sperm oil properly means "seed oil" (Latin, sperma, seed), from the notion that it was spermaceti (the sperm or melt of a whale). The sperm whale is the whale that gives the "seed oil," which is taken chiefly, but not wholly, from the head.

Whalebone is not bone at all, nor does it possess any of the properties of bone. It is a substance attached to the upper jaw of the whale, and serves to strain the water which the creature takes up in large mouthfuls.

Rhinoceros horn is not horn at all, but a kind of matted or compact hair, and is only like a horn from being a protuberance on the animal's head.

DURING the late session of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows held in Baltimore a resolution was adopted that members delinquent in assessments or dues, be retired from active to dormant members and be debarred from voting or otherwise acting with lodges or encampments. Members heretofore dropped or suspended for non-payment of dues are restored as dormant members.

THE Directors of the Northern Pacific Railroad have adopted a resolution, declaring that the agricultural lands west of the Missouri river, to Puget Sound, shall be offered for sale to actual settlers at the Government price, $2 50 per acre, with an addition thereto of 10 cents per acre to be paid to the company to reimburse it for the cost of selecting, surveying and conveying such land.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.—Last Tuesday the engineer at the Union Con. at Virginia City, ran a cage and skip with eighteen men into the sheaves. Two men were killed and all the others more or less injured. The engineer appears to have lost his head and gone completely daft. The speed at which he ran the cage up the shaft was something terrific. When the cage struck the sheave the steel wire cable, seven inches in width and three-quarters of an inch in thickness, was snapped as though it had been nothing more than a piece of twine. This cable is capable of sustaining a weight of 100 tons. It parted with a report like that of a cannon. The whole building was shaken to its foundations and not a few of those within it started to run out, being under the impression that one of the boilers had exploded. The men on the cage say that streams of fire flashed from the guides through the friction of the cage as it neared the top, and those on the top say that when the cage darted up through the floor its iron frame was covered with a sort of blue flame from the electricity generated by the friction on the guides, and a block of hard wood placed at the point where the cable is doubled back over the clevis at the top of the cage was flattened out by the concussion till it was hardly an inch in thickness. The top or bonnet of the cage was completely crushed in by the force of the concussion. The engineer immediately left for parts unknown.—Virginia Enterprise.

FOOTPRINTS OF VANISHED RACES.—Under the above title, Chancy R. Barns, of St. Louis, Mo., has published an attractive volume, of which A. J. Conant, A. M., is the author. The work refers to the Mississippi valley, and comprehensively treats of the antiquities of the vanished races that once dwelt upon this continent. The preface, giving the result of three-score years of investigation into the antiquities of North America, says: "Notwithstanding all this labor and study, the great questions continually repeated, which were suggested when our antiquities were first noticed, still remain unanswered, namely, "Who were the authors of these works? What was their origin, and what were the causes of their disappearance? Were they the red men found in possession of the continent at the time of its discovery?" The author holds to the opinion that the red men were not the authors of the most extensive wokrs of pre-historic America superior to those of Europe.—Scientific Press.

WHEAT CAKES.—Three cups flour, two cups Indian meal, white; dissolve one small cake compressed yeast in a cup of water, pour into a jar, add flour and meal; mix with lukewarm water to a stiff batter, set in a warm place to rise over night; next morning add a teaspoonful syrup, one teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful soda; bake on a hot griddle.

A RATTLESNAKE, measuring six feet in length and eleven inches in circumference, and having forty-two rattles, was recently killed on the Greenhorn Mountain, in this State. The snake, in the fight, killed two dogs. This is doubtless the largest snake of this species ever killed in this State.

ASTRONOMY VS. GASTRONOMY.—"Julius," said a Brooklyn gentleman to his colored servant, "don't you enjoy the astronomical phenomena these fine evenings?" "Dunno, sah," responded the darkey; "mush-mellons am my favorite fruit."

A CRUSTY old bachelor, not liking the way his landlady's daughter had of making free with his hair-oil bottle, filled the bottle with liquid glue the day before a ball to which the young Miss had been invited, and she stayed at home!

A. J. HAMILTON, City Tax Collector of Los Angeles, has absconded with about $9,000. The property of his bondsmen has been attached. This is the fourth defalcation the city and county has had within five years.

THE Puget Sound log product last year amounted to 250,000,000 feet. Of these a surplus of 30,000,000 now remain in the water, but will be entirely exhausted by Spring. The average price obtained was $3 50 per thousand.

WHEN the boarders in a certain Philadelphia boarding house complain of the butter, the landlady silences them by pointing to that portion of the wall on which hangs a card, reading: "To the pure all things are pure."

WHAT was supposed to be a large cave in the Iro-American ground, Cave Cañon, Hauchucas, Arizona, proves to be an old working of the Jesuits, and is considered to indicate an immense ledge.

SHIPMENTS of from 7,000 to 10,000 pounds of trout are being made from Wadsworth every week. The price is one bit per pound, which makes the revenue nearly $1,000 per week.

THE California Supreme Court has decided that where a Grand Jury is formed by a Court, and recognized as a Grand Jury by the Court, and twelve of them find a bill, that is legal.

MRS. BREWSTER, the woman who was suspected of poisoning her husband by putting strychnine in his whisky, at Wallula, last August, has been acquitted.

THE practicability of the Gould process for reducing refractory ores is proven by the shipment of several bars of bullion from Meadow Lake.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13.....1879

MR. JACOB REESE, of Pittsburg, Penn., says the American Manufacturer, puts forth some remarkable claims regarding an alleged new discovery in metallurgy. He says he is able to melt instantly a bar of cast steel one inch in diameter—which cannot be fused in less than five minutes in the highest heat attainable — simply by throwing against it a column of air having the velocity of 25,000 feet a minute. The instant the air touches the metal the fusion takes place. He further says: "By furnace heat it requires many hours, and sometimes many days, to anneal metals. By a recent discovery which I have made I can anneal bars of iron or steel at the rate of one foot per second, thus increasing the ductility of the metal 100 per cent. without the use of other fuel than that contained in the metal itself. I simply unlock the occluded (latent) heat. It becomes sensible and enlarges the metal, and by the method of doing this the enlargement is made permanent; that is, it does not contract to its original limit. Now, annealing and fusing iron and steel in one second of time may seem absurd, but it is nevertheless a fact, and reduced to practical utility in the arts."

THEY are a nice sociable people in Texas. When they have a country dance they like to make things lively, to make them boom, so to put it. It is reported that when a fellow attends a dance in Texas, he would be considered a greenhorn if he did not carry his pistol along with him, and it is held there to be a stale affair if fifteen or twenty pistol shots and a man or two for supper shouldn't result at one of these gatherings. Near Waco, in that State, only a few nights ago, at a country shin-dig, a young man's feelings were so badly hurt by the refusal of a young lady to dance with him that he pulled his pistol and commenced shooting at one of her gentleman friends. The friend responded and a dozen shots were exchanged, the friend being wounded in the hand and a bystander getting a half ounce of lead in the leg. Then the offended young man went back into the ball room and killed a man because he was a friend of the friend, and then escaped. The dead man was shoved under a bench till the festivities should end, and the dance went on and joy was unconfined.

GOV. IRWIN has certified to the President and to Congress the vote of California on the Chinese question, accompanying it with the memorial required by the Act calling for the vote; a copy has also been certified to each Cabinet officer and every Governor in the United States, and to every United States Senator and Representative. If in the face of all this emphatic appeal Congress does not do something towards abolishing the evils under which the Pacific Coast suffers through the workings of the Burlingame treaty, then will it appear that the money of the Chinese Six Companies is more powerful than American public sentiment. But a better result is anticipated, now that the course above referred to has been adopted.

HERE is a nut for Eastern croakers to crack. The Richmond mine at Eureka, Nevada, was bought for $250,000 ten years ago. Not one dollar was collected for assessments; it has paid millions in dividends, erected extensive works and is a big mine yet. The Eureka Con. situated in the same locality, was purchased for $100,000, has collected assessments amounting to $100,000, has paid $4,100,000 in dividends and is good for millions more. And yet if Eastern capitalists pay $40,000 or $50,000 for a mine in Colorado the fact is telegraphed all over the country as a wonderful financial transaction; and the croakers begin to hum that fools and their money are soon parted.

THE Czar of Russia must be a very uncomfortable individual, notwithstanding his power. He cannot go out to take breath of fresh air without some clumsy marksman taking a shot at him. The practice is very discouraging to men who have the ambition to become a Czar of Russia. If they can't enjoy the position without being popped at with pistols whenever they appear in public, they would prefer to engage in some less perilous business.

REPORTS from Los Pinos, Colorado, are to the effect that the Uintahs will join the hostile Utes and give the troops a brush. The Mormons are believed to be the advisers of the hostiles. If this belief is corroborated the Mormon problem will be greatly facilitated.

THE MICROSCOPE IN MINING.

At a meeting, held on the 4th instant, of the San Francisco Microscopical Society, Prof. Melville Atwood read a paper entitled "The Importance of a Classification of Metalliferous Veins" which possesses many points of interest to mining men, and some suggestions which, we think, may prove of decided value. As the Professor himself remarks, mining, of all the speculative employments, is the most uncertain. Miners of the greatest experience and ingenuity are frequently at fault, and sometimes completely defeated in their search after paying ore-bodies, and so abandon mines upon which men of less or little or no scientific ability will afterwards go to work upon, and make them pay well. "Book larnin'" has so often proved so utterly unreliable as a guide by which to find ore-bodies, that practical miners hold the so-called mining "experts" in very general contempt; but this contempt does not nor should not attach to the learned and practical metallurgist, whose uses and works are vastly different from those of the "expert." Expertism has so often proved a failure that miners believe in no geological rules or guides till demonstrated by pick and drill. The Professor, as we understand him, believes it possible to so classify metalliferous veins by aid of the microscope that their hidden mysteries may be read with far greater certainty than has ever been done or ever will be done by any of the applied rules of geology, and we may include, of minerology as a guide in searching for minerals. He is surprised that where such vast interests are involved, this matter of classification should have been so totally neglected. He adds:

As far as I am able to judge, the only way in which lodes can be correctly classified is by their enclosing rocks or the rock formation in which they occur, thus rendering an accurate determination of the enclosing rocks necessary. Some rocks are of a coarse and simple structure, and their mineral constituents may be resolved by the unaided eye, but far the greater nnmber are of so fine grained texture as to defy ocular analysis, so that for their determination the use of the microscope is indispensable. For instance, totally different rocks have sometimes the same chemical composition and are similar in external appearance, but a microscopical examination shows the internal structure to differ greatly. A classification of lodes would do much to stop the misuse and confusion of common mining terms, and many hackneyed phrases, such as "regular and well defined walls'" "clay walls," "true fissure veins," "perfect formation," etc., would be abandoned. Some of the most productive tin mines in England have no walls, and the vein-stone appears to be an altered granite. (See Dr. Le Neve Foster's contribution to the Quarterly Journal of the Geological Society.) Again, the richest mine in Nevada—the Comstock lode—has only one, the foot wall, the rock a dolerite. The principal gold lodes of California—the Eureka and Idaho, of Grass Valley, the Amador, of Sutter Creek, and others—can only be said to have a hanging wall, the rock of which is a diorite or diabase, that being considered the ancient form of dolerite; so that "regular and well defined walls" are not so good an indication of mineral wealth as is generally supposed.

At some future meeting I hope to be able to give the Society the result of my examination of the clays of the Comstock lode, the most interesting and important work I have ever yet undertaken.

APPLETONS' JOURNAL for December gives the conclusion of Mrs. Edwarde's brilliant novelette, "Vivian the Beauty," and a second installment of the "Memmoirs of Madam de Rémusat," the last Parisian sensation. The selection this month gives an account of a long conversation with Napoleon in regard to his Egyptian campaign, and the writer's recollections of the Duc d'Enghien tragedy, making a striking paper. A very interesting article is one entitled "Some Aspects of Robert Burns," in which we have a searching inside view of the poet's life and conduct. A paper on Charles James Mathews gives a full and entertaining summary of the recently published biography of the famous actor. Horace White's suggestive essay on "Parliamentary Government in America" is reprinted; and there are extracts from Dr. Hillebrand's letters on "Modern England," and a consideration of "George Eliot as a Goodless Writer." The editor discusses "The Purpose of Fiction," "Histrionic Realism," and "The Obelisk;" and reviews the "Books of the Day." The contents of Appleton's Journal are of a sterling character, weighty yet eminently attractive, having in view the intelligent and cultivated reader. Price, $3 per annum. D. Appleton & Co., publishers, Broadway, New York.

THE fearful tornado that devastated Louisville, Ky., on the 5th instant, destroyed a church and a cemetery, also a large brick warehouse containing three hundred barrels of whisky. Not one brick was left upon another, yet only three barrels of whisky were destroyed.

JUDGE F. A. SAWYER, for many years Justice of the Peace of San Francisco, died in that city a few days ago, aged 82 years.

Prof. Hank's Report.

The following extracts from Prof. Hank's late report to the Geological Society possess general interest:

For the information of the unscientific, it may be stated that diatomaceous earth is a sedimentary deposit, consisting in a great part of the silicious frustules, or shells, of a minute organism, which occupies a position so near the dividing line between the animal and vegetable kingdoms, that scientific men are divided as to which side it should be placed in classification.

The study of the diatomacæ is a fascinating one. The observers may be divided into two classes, one which simply admires the beautiful and varied forms; the other devoting much time and labor to their classification, and in the study of their habits, mode of reproduction and bearing on geology.

There are few microscopic object more exquisitely beautiful in form and ornamental sculpture, than the diatoms.

On every part of the earth's surface they abound; they are found in the most unexpected places—in the thermal springs in which the temperature is as high as 174° F., and on the surface of the snow on the highest mountains. On the coast of Africa and in the Indian Ocean the air sometimes becomes hazy and opalescent from the fine dust which is blown by the winds.

The dust falling on ships has been taken to cities and examined by microscopists and found to contain largely of diatoms.

The magnitude of some of the deposits of fossil diatoms is almost beyond the conception of the human mind.

Some geologists go so far as to assume that some of our most gigantic ranges, such as the Andes, are largely built up of portions of microscopic organisms.

Beds of diatomaceous earth are found on the Pacific Coast, many miles in extent and many hundreds of feet in thickness; when this fact is considered, it will be seen that the subject has geological as well as microscopical importance.

The study of the diatoms is universal in some form among microscopists, and the discovery of a new deposit is widely published, and samples are sought by thousands of earnest students in every part of the civilized world.

The Santa Monica deposit brought to notice lately, has furnished study and amusement to many microscopists; at home and abroad.

In it have been discovered many interesting forms before unknown to science; our society has collected large quantities of these interesting deposits, and has notified the scientific world that samples will be sent to any one on application.

The question of coal is one of the greatest importance to the Pacific Coast. Up to the present time, no carboniferous coal has been found. Our lignites are either cretaceous or tertiary, and do not possess certain physical properties required in the manufacture of iron, and for extensive manufacturing purposes.

The discovery of an extensive deposit of carboniferous coal would be of greater value to California than any mine of gold or silver could possibly be. The chances of finding such a deposit are greater when the geologicsl formation known as the carboniferous lies near the surface of the earth and consequently within reach.

The only proofs of the geological age of any formation are the fossils found imbedded in the rocks. The society has received fossils both from the the north and from the south, which are undoubtedly carboniferous. In view of this fact, the chances for finding beds of true coal are multiplied.

The want of a museum, and ignorance of geology and minerology, have led to many expensive mistakes by our people.

A chrome iron mine has been extensively worked for silver; realgar is mistaken for cinnabar; red jasper mined extensively under the impression that a quicksilver mine was being opened; a company was formed to make bottles of obsidian; mica and tellurium have been supposed to be of great value; obsidian has been mistaken for coal; grossularite has been supposed to be crystals of oxide of tin; yellow mica led to the Gold Lake excitement; micaceous iron is often mistaken for galena. To the ignorant miner, a rolled quartz pebble becomes a diamond, while the true gem escapes his notice. Platinum, for a long time was called "white gold," and was supposed to be gold coated with mercury. Many valuablr mineral substances are passed unnoticed by the uneducated prospector.

It is a significant fact that many substances are being imported into our State which exist in great abundance, yet are unknown except to a few minerologists, who are not consulted.

THE old trick of buying questions for teachers' examinations is again in vogue. There seems to have been no trouble in getting the questions right from the State Board. A case of this kind took place in San Francisco last week.

GEN. CADWALADER, father of George and Edward Cadwalader, of Sacramento, and Charles Cadwalader, of Red Bluff, died in San Francisco on the 1st instant. He was 80 years old.

THE Cabinet has decided to pay Capt. Eads a portion of the last installment of money claimed to be due for completing the jetty contract at the mouth of the Mississippi.

PARSON KALLOCH, Mayor-elect of San Francisco, calls on the Police Commissioners of that city to revoke the permit granted to Charles De Young to carry a pistol.

TEN millions, in eagles and half eagles mainly, will be coined this month at the Philadelphia Mint.

THE GEOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

At the first anniversary of the California Geological Society, Henry G. Hanks was elected President. Mr. Hanks is well known personally to many of our readers, having been one of our Inyo pioneers. As a scientific geologist, metallurgist, etc., he stands second to none. Mr. Hanks still has a direct interest in the outcome of our county, which fact, together with his recognized high standing as a man and no less as a scientist, must tend to attract from Inyo people more than ordinary interest in the important institution of which he is President and a chief pillar.

It is the desire of the society that every mine on the Pacific Coast which has a name shall be represented in its collection. Also, in the same, to have specimens of interesting merals, fossils, earths, rocks, etc., etc. A careful record is to be kept of each, whence it came, donor's name, and such other information as may be necessary. As the objects of the society are purely for the benefit of the State and coast, Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express and the Oregon Steam Navigation Company offer to transport all such specimens free of expenses to the doners.

Eventually the entire collection will be donated to the State, conditional on its being properly taken care of.

ALF. CHARTZ, who killed Conductor Ricker in Eureka, Nevada, a little over a year ago, and who was sentenced for life in the Penitentiary, stands a fair chance of being again soon a free man. Through the untiring efforts of a devoted sister, who has labored unceasingly since her brother's incarceration within the prison walls, will the credit be due in the event of his freedom therefrom. She has never let an opportunity pass, either by word or act, whereby she could accomplish the work undertaken. Those who know the circumstances of the tragedy cannot help pitying Chartz, even if they could not justify him. From the Bodie Standard of last Tuesday we notice a letter from Chartz' sister to one of the trial jurors, who was on the jury which brought in the verdict—Mr. Frank Eardly—praying for him to sign a petition, asking for a pardon. She says she has succeded in obtaining the signatures of all except three of the twelve jurymen interested in the trial of the case at the time. The Board of Pardons meet in Carson in January next, and there is but little doubt that success will crown her endeavors. We indorse the Standard's views in this matters.

SINCE the new tramway proved a failure, and the supply of ore ceased, the mill has of course been shut down. A clean-up of about thirteen days' run was made in the early part of the week, and showed a considerable improvement, proportionably, over the yield of the previous month. The bullion was shipped yesterday morning, and amounted to nearly $10,000. The increased yield is owing to several improvements made in the reduction process by Supt. Collier. If the mill could have run continuously during the month, the clean-up for 30 days would have been an important item.—Mammoth Times.

PREPARATIONS for the shipment of the Egyptian obelisk to the New World are attracting great crowds of people, and the progress of placing the needle into proper position has been closely watched, and excited the interest of travelers and the people generally.

A SUBSCRIPTION of $15,000 has already been collected for the orphan children of Gen. Hood.

THE national debt was decreased $799,823 during November.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of the Estate of John T. Denton, Deceased. } Order to show cause why Order of Sale of Real Estate should not be made.

It appearing to the Probate Judge of said Court, by the petition this day presented and filed by C. A. Walters, the executor of the last will and testatment of John T Denton, deceased, praying for an order of sale of real estate, that it is necessary to sell the whole of the real estate as required by the terms of the last will and testament of said deceased.

It is therefore ordered by the Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of the said deceased, appear before the said Probate Court on WEDNESDAY, the SEVENTH day of JANUARY, A. D. 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court room of said Probate Court at the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Executor to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased, as shall be necessary.

And that a copy of this order be published at least four successive weeks in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said county.

JOHN A. HANNAH, Probate Judge.

Dated December 6, 1879.

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY CLERK, of the County of Inyo.

I, John Crough, County Clerk of the County of Inyo, State of California, and ex-Officio Clerk of the Probate Court in and for said county, do hereby certify the foregoing to be a true, full and correct copy of an order duly made and entered upon the minutes of said Probate Court.

WITNESS my hand and the seal of said Probate [SEAL] Court, this 11th day of December, A. D. 1879.

SOME ENCOURAGING FACTS.—Two weeks since we made mention of a very promising location made a short time previously by Mr. Hedge and others on the eastern slope of the White Mountains. Since then Mr. S. D. Woodhull, of the Independence Assay office, has visited the ground, and from his observations and assays, together with reports of others, we have a statement of facts that can be implicitly relied upon, and which impress us with the conviction that the locations described below are equal in promise if not superior to any ever before made in this State. Situated in a detached spur of mountains just to the northward of Deep Spring Valley, and but a few miles distant from Piper's Ranch in Fish Lake Valley, are two ledges of gold and silver bearing quartz. These ledges are about a mile or less apart, and run in a northeast and southwest direction, parallel tu each other and also to the axis of the mountain. These are the locations in question. The most westerly, which has an elevation of some 500 feet greater than the other, is designated as the Great Mogul. It crops boldly out, from four to ten feet wide, for full one quarter of a mile in length. Specimens from various portions of the croppings from end to end are so nearly alike in general appearance as to be quite indistinguishable as being from different parts of the lode. This uniformity in general appearance is quite as well sustained in assay values. It appears that it is hardly possible to find a piece of rock larger than a man's fist but makes a goodly and quite uniform display of both chlorides and sulphurets of silver. the former rather predominating. Following are the figures of two assays made on Thursday last: No. 1—Gold, $14 00; silver, $103 67; total, $117 67. No. 2—Gold, $14 50; silver, $95 50; total, $109 50. Several other assays had been previously made, being from the first specimens brought in. The several results varied from each other and the last two about as the latter do from each other. The other lode is still more of a wonder in various ways. Its average width is about six feet, perhaps more as an average, since it widens to 25 or 30 feet. There are no less than five different locations, each of 1,500 feet, all marked in continuous length by the plainly visible croppings. In this distance it is cut down and exposed at one point by a narrow gulch to a depth of from 1,200 to 1,500 feet below the highest points of the same croppings on the adjacent mountain side. Throughout this great distance the uniformity in appearance and assay value of the ore is nearly as well sustained as in the first mentioned. This lode as a whole is known as the Great Eastern, and the several claims respectively as the Great Western, the Horton, the Whiteman, the Thanksgiving and the Eastern. There is a stream of running water about a quarter of a mile distant from one point of this lode, and plenty of wood about three miles distant. Assays made at the same time as the above resulted as follows: One from the Horton—Gold, $12 55; silver, $51 83; total, $64 38. One from the Thanksgiving—Gold, $50 00; silver, $337 73; total, $387 73. Unassayed specimens from other portions of the lode look quite as promising or more so than did the first named of these two. The ore of both these lodes is of the class known as free milling, though both carry a small percentage of lead. The deepest prospect hole on either is only about six feet. Their locality is about sixty miles from this place, perhaps a little more. These statements so far as they go, are given as literal facts.

GOT WELL MIGHTY QUICK.—The Sheriff's office here has received notice from the Napa Insane Asylum to come and take Mr. Michael Welch, the slayer of our late Sheriff, away, as the officers of that institution assert that they cannot find any symptoms of insanity in that gentleman whatever. The friends of Mr. Welch ought to exert their influence to get hlm a place on the boards as a first-class player of the "Artful Dodger." Mr. Welch will soon be among us again. Selah! But Tessier, who didn't kill anybody, will sojourn some years yet at San Quentin.

SPECIMENS.—We invite attention to a statement elsewhere in this issue relating to the California Geological Society, and now in addition thereto, we wish here to say that all miners and others wishing to contribute specimens, fossils, etc., to the Society's collection, can do so with but little trouble to themselves through Mr. Woodhull of the Independence Assay Office. He is a corresponding member, much interested in its objects, and will willingly forward all specimens left with him for the purpose, properly labeled and credited to the mine and donor, and without expense to the donor.

SAWMILL JIM'S OPINION.— Sawmill Jim, an intelligent gentleman of the Piute persuasion, assured a couple of mining men that he could show them a mighty big thing over in the Inyos if they would go with him. They went. After Jim's return some one asked him what the rock sharps thought of the ledge he had taken them so far to see. "Oh," said he, with a disdainful shrug, "they boff —— squirts; don't sabe nothin'. They said it no worf a —— cent!" And Jim won't run with the mining men any more.

EXPECTED.—Prof. Melville Atwood is expected here shortly to make a critical examination of a number of our leading mines. In doing so he will make use of his microscopic plan of classification, to which reference is made elsewhere.

PERSONAL.—Mrs. Nathan Rhine, who has been visiting here for some weeks past, started on her return to the city two or three days since, as also did Mr. J. S. Rothschild; per contra, Mrs. A. W. Eibeshutz has just returned from an extended visit to the city.

THE STAGE ROBBED.—The stage which left Mohave for this place on Monday morning last, was stopped by a lone highwayman about 9 o'clock that same night, and robbed of Wells, Fargo & Co's express box. This was on the desert, seven miles this side of Indian Wells. There were no passengers or other other persons aboard the stage except Miller, the driver, who was driving slowly along when a form arose apparently out of the earth, which, without any introductory remarks, ordered him to "Throw out that box!" and to "Drive on!" The attending circumstances were too peculiar to invite argument on either proposition, so both orders were obeyed. The robber was a very small man, and appeared to be going it entirely alone. By a duplicate way-bill, which reached here only last night, we learn that the box contained $3,831 gold coin, consigned to Darwin, and a watch waybilled to this place. The money taken was doubtless the proceeds of the bullion we mentioned last week as having been taken out and shipped on their own account by the creditors and late employés of the defunct Leota Company of Panamint. The thief was, no doubt, from the same place, and well posted as to the time when the returns of the bullion would be along. The box was taken about two miles and a half from the scene of the robbery in the direction of the Slate Range, there broken open and left without a single scrap of letters, papers or anything else to show what its contents had been. An account of the watch taken is given elsewhere in these columns. The mail bags were not disturbed. Had the express agent at Mohave known enough to have done what his duty required, he would by return stage have notified all other agents on the route of the contents of the box, since he was in position to be able to do so. Awaiting this information, was at least one man at Darwin ready to take the trail. Had he done so with the advantage of the three days' time lost through that agent's stupid inaction, it is a two to one bet he would have run that robber to his hole before he ever left his track—that's the sort of a thief-hunter the gentleman we refer to has well proved himself to be, anyway.

FROM BODIE.— Coroner Lank got back yesterday from Bodie, whither he went, accompanied by Omie Mairs, in an official capacity in connection with the estate of Patrick Mullen, who died lately at that place. The deceased had been up to a short time prior to his death a resident and citizen of this county, and where he left considerable property. On this account it came within Coroner Lank's official province to take out letters of administration on the estate, including such personal property as deceased had with him at the time of his death. Armed with duly granted letters of administration, Mr. Lank went to Bodie as stated, and secured possession of the property there, consisting of a twelve-mule team. This was given him by order of the Probate Judge of that county, after a hearing in which an application for letters on the same estate was made by the Mono Coroner, but denied by the Court. There is a brother of deceased residing in Kansas who is expected out here shortly. We are told that deceased had a partner in Bodie, who, like himself, fell a victim to the same deadly disease, pneumonia. Such being the case, we feel disposed to congratulate Uncle John on his escape from the same and from Pneumoniaville, for had he succumbed, it is reasonable to expect the Mono Coroner wouldn't have been satisfied to sit on him, a deceased brother Coroner, with anything short of a double bank of the weightiest kind of jurymen—all to be as a token of proper respect, you understand, not as a matter of pleasure or anything of that sort.

THE CONCENTRATOR.—Last Monday we took occasion to watch for a short time the workings of the Frue Concentrator, now, for the first time, being tried in this region. It is at the Brown Monster mill, working the low grade sulphuret ores from that mine. Some unexpected difficulties having to be overcome in making suitable connections with the battery and motive power of the mill, the concentrator had got fairly to work only that morning. It was taking the pulp from five stamps, which are working upon a lot of 50 tons of ore, to be taken in equal proportions from various parts of the mine, as a test for both the mine and process. It is, we believe, an absolute certainty the machine will do all that is claimed for it—that is, that it will save almost every cent's worth of sulphurets contained in sulphuret ores of any grade. The concentrations thus saved will consist of nothing other than the clean sulphurets and other mineral substances of equal or greater specific gravity; that it will do all this at a very insignificant extra cost after the pulp leaves the battery. Such, at least, is the sum of our conclusions after briefly witnessing its operations. It will not, however, be of any avail in chloride ores. Whether it will make a non-paying property a paying one remains to be seen. The prospects, however, for it to do so look very favorable indeed.

THE WATCH.—The watch that scoundrel got who robbed the stage was the property of Mr. Thomas Parker, the aged father and step-father respectively of the proprietors of this paper. The watch though in silver casings was of the very best grade of Liverpool manufacture. It was a most excellent time-keeper; but aside from its intrinsic value, its owner (or late owner) regrets its loss as that of an old friend in whose face he has looked and never found deceit for full thirty years past, for, during all that long period, through murky days and bright days, this old watch, yet good as new, has been literally his bosom, ever reliable companion. It had been sent below for cleaning, and, per fate, must be sent back just when this infernal thief was abroad. May he get five years for that, too!

TO START UP.—The Modock furnace will soon start up on a large quantity of ore taken from near the mouth of the long tunnel.

LETTER FROM MAMMOTH.

MAMMOTH CITY, Mono Co., Cal., Dec. 7.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Thinking that a few lines from an old land mark might be acceptable to you and possibly perused by some of your readers, I comfortably compose myself in my "little old log cabin" and proceed to spin out at the end of the pen a synopsis of the times in and around Mammoth. Although I do not presume to say that the congenial editors of our local papers are so uncivil as to decline to exchange with you, yet you know what looks well to a reader in print, looks better to an editor in script. Hence the latter.

THE WEATHER

Being an all-important subject, and with which we cannot do without, let it be good or bad, seems to be conjectured upon by everybody, both old and young, as though they were experts at conjecturing, and as though they had conjectured for some almanac factory for years, and so far they are all wrong. It is thought that up to the present time there has fallen at this place about eight feet of snow, but owing to the extreme warm weather and rains recently, there remains only about 18 inches, and while our neighbors at Bishop Creek mourn us already among the lost, we are enjoying ourselves immensely at skating, coasting, sleighing, etc., and the streets are full of coasting boys and girls from morning until 8 o'clock at night, making the night air ring with their merry laughter. So weep no more for the lost in the snow drifts, because we would not be comforted by such as ye have to offer.

BUSINESS

Assumes average proportions and a steady gait, although there are not many men here, yet those who are here are constantly at work producing something, and therefore every man has money once a month, and they generally give it a chance and invest it for clothes, provisions, wood, etc., or else deposit it in a faro bank; therefcre the handsome face of a Mammoth check is a welcome visitor, and passes as freely and as quickly as any other paper whatever.

MINES, THEIR UPS AND DOWNS,

Are a multitude in this region, and aside from the Mammoth and Headlight they have a few more downs than otherwise; and here allow me to state that until these mines pass from the hands of the present owners and manipulators the town is a failure, for be it known that not a mine with the exception of the Mammoth, Headlight and Monte Cristo is operated or manipulated on anything like legitimate principles. Although there are many other mines here which prospect about as well as the last mentioned, yet the owners are men who would rather lose an eye than unhook one dollar for prospecting. The Mammoth mine which is destined within the next twelve months to gain a world wide fame, never looked better than at present, and if the present efficient Superintendent, Mr. Hardy, remains at the helm, the enterprise is an inevitable success. The Headlight and Monte Cristo joint tunnel, which is also superintended by Mr. Hardy, has an air compressor at its mouth, receiving its regular rations of compressed air and steel from the Burleigh and Ingersoll drills, and before old Sol's vernal rays assert their rights in this region there will be a tunnel into Mineral hill from the west side, a distance of 900 feet, cutting through the north end of the Crescent mine and uniting the Headlight and Monte Cristo at their junction and at a depth of about 800 feet from the croppings thereof.

INGRESS

So far seems quite practical, as the stage arrives every other day, and the mail on horseback every other day, besides freight frequently arrives from Bodie on the north and Mojave on the south, and no difficulty is encountered so far. No route usually traveled has been closed by the snow or otherwise except the trail from here to Fresno Flats, which is abandoned for the Winter. Mr. Beck, who has the mail contract from this place to Bodie, proposes to drive in at all times, and the never-tiring Lott, of the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company, proposes to come as long as he can see the tops of the trees.

THE PRESS ASSOCIATION.

Mammoth still lives and learns. Our old timer Barnes is grinding out a livelihood for himself, wife and four babies, and probably something more, and we doubt if anything more is expected for the Winter. The Mammoth City Times is now owned, we believe, is owned by John Gilson and edited by R. D. Bogart. This paper, like many others, has had its ups and downs and numerous administrations, and if it lives through the Winter without much more of a reduction in flesh, I think it will come out all right in the Spring.

Yours,
THE DUMP.

GOT OUR CHRONICLES.—That stage robber, among the rest, got our San Francisco Chronicles of the Saturday and Sunday dates previous. That paper always comes to us through the express box, and this is the second time we have been robbed of it in this way. These days, we value the Chronicle above any other paper received at this office. Consequently, we respectfully ask the Judge, who will ere long sentence the robber, to give him at least six months' extra for this part of his nefarious work. By the way, why don't the Chronicle, while giving big prizes for the best shooter, base-baller, walker, etc., offer something of the kind for the capture of road agents?

BUSTED.—The Panamint Leota concern is now a thing of the past, everything being under attachment, while some of the personal property, including all the quicksilver on hand, has been sold under the hammer.

ALSO RUNNING.—The Snow's Cañon quartz mill is again in full operation.

FOOT RACING.—Some of the boys hereabouts indulged in the sport of running foot races the other evening, and judging from the way the participants strove to get to the outcome first, we concluded they were running for "blood," but who got away with the baggage—if any was got away with—we are unable to say.

RUNNING.—The New Coso furnace started up some days since, but the run so far has not been very satisfactory on account of a defective blower, and the consequent breakage of a pulley. At last accounts all damages had been made good, and the prospects were good for a successful run of several weeks' duration.

HOLIDAY GOODS.—Rothschild & Co. are receiving quite an invoice of new goods, among which is an abundance of superior articles designed expressly for holiday uses. A new advertise- to this effect will appear next week.

The Old Inyo Mines Coming to th Front Again.

After a lapse of many years some of the oldest mining camps in Inyo county are beginning to show signs of returning animation. In a late number of THE INDEPENDENT we notice that considerable quantities of the precious metals are being extracted from regions long since abandoned and considered worthless. We notice, for instance, the old Coso mine, situate westerly from Darwin some nine or ten miles, and long since supposed to have been worked out, has again donned the garb of activity, and where but a few years ago a few ragged Mexicans eked out a scanty subsistence with a small arrastra or two, there are now fourteen in full running order, and all producing gold. This is one of the first camps established in the county, and as early as 1861 was worked, but when the Indian troubles begun the miners were forced to leave. Some fabulous stories have been told to the writer hereof of rich gold quartz float having been found in the foothills of the old Coso range, many of which were doubtless true. The country has never been thoroughly prospected by white men; in fact, it is not an easy place to prospect in, as water is very scarce and difficult to find. Beveridge District is situate in the White Mountains southeasterly from Independence. Although but a newly discovered district, Beveridge is also yielding up her quota of wealth. A few Mexicans with five small arrastras are taking out as high as $1,200 per week. Beside this, Messrs. Porter, Hunter & Co., the original discoverers, have erected substantial works, which are paying well. Then the old mines, worked by McMurry & Co. years ago, have been put again in working condition by John Kelly, Chas. Schuman and others, and are now paying largely. Billy Lake, who opened the first stock of goods in Pine City, has a ledge which is said to be very rich. The Hitchcock boys have also a good paying gold lead, and there are many others which if but thoroughly prospected could be made to pay well. These are but a few of the many that could be mentioned. The rich silver lead mines and gold leads of Cerro Gordo, and the late rich finds made near Swansea, in fact the whole country to the east and south of Big Pine and Independence presents a field for the industrious prospector and miner that cannot be surpassed on the western slope of the Sierras. The climate cannot be excelled. Water and wood in most places are abundant, plenty of fruit in season, and the necessaries of life for both man and beast can be obtained at little cost. The only one thing needful now is pluck and energy on the part of the prospector and miner, and the assistance of the generous inhabitants of the valleys, to make Owen's River Valley one of the richest garden spots of the Sierras. —Mammoth Herald.

ON the evening of the 8th instant Shannon, a cook for the road builders, was shot and instantly killed at Tiptop, A. T. The person who did the shooting is a carpenter, name unknown, a resident of Tiptop. The quarrel was provoked by Shannon.

SLEEPING TOGETHER. — More quarrels occur between brothers, between sisters, between hired girls, between clerks in stores, between apprentices in mechanic's shops, between hired men, between husbands and wives, owing to electrical changes through which their systems go by lodging together night after night under the same bed clothes, than by almost any other disturbing cause. There is nothing that will derange the nervous system of a person who is eliminative in nervous force, as to lie all night in bed with another person who is absorbent in nervous force The absorber will go to sleep, and rest all night, while the eliminator will be tumbling and tossing, restless and nervous, and wake up in the morning fretful and peevish, fault-finding and discouraged. No two persons, no matter who they are, should habitually sleep together. One will thrive, the other will lose. This is the law, and in married life is defied almost universally.—Laws of Life.

IT has been stated by telegraph that the leading London newspapers gave the President's message to their readers on Monday morning, the 1st instant—previous to its actual delivery to Congress.

THE San Francisco sugar refiners lately advanced prices, but now they have reduced the price one cent per pound all round. They found that they had made a mistake.

DRYING and selling fruit is a new avenue of employment opening up for women in the South. A lady in Southern Louisiana sold sold $500 worth of preserved figs the other day.

THE Indians in the vicinity of Bodie pan out considerable gold dust from the placer mines near by, and are, in consequence, generally well heeled for a poker game.

A SKUNK bit a calf, near Healdsburg, this State, recently, and the calf died in nine days thereafter. The mother, becoming inoculated, also died.

SIX ladies of the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Chicago, are about to go to New Zealand to found an establishment of their order there.

Reminiscences of the Piute Princess.

BY MRS. EMMA M. WILLIS.

EDITORS INYO INDEPENDENT: In the latter part of the Summer of 1865, I was living in the then flourishing camp of Meadow Lake. I frequently saw on the street an elegantly dressed lady of fine figure and easy carriage; sometimes her vail was closely drawn or her face turned from me, when suddenly lifting of the vail or turning of the head revealed to my astonished gaze the face of a mahala—Sarah Winnemucca Snyder,

THE PIUTE PRINCESS.

Her husband, Jeremiah Snyder, was a really fine-looking man of good address, social and obliging. His parents were Pennsylvanians, of German descent, living at that time in Sandusky, Ohio, at which place he visited them in the Summer of 1866, under circumstances, in financial matters, that led to the separation of himself and wife for a time.

During the many months that we were locked in by the deep snows, as "next door neighbors," they were devoted to each other; she was a good wife and he a kind husband. He was not Sarah's equal in mental capacity. I will give an incident illustrating his devotion. Snyder being an ex-baker, ex-faro dealer, and at that time, violinist and dancing master, furnished music for theaters and dances. The parties giving these theaters and dances had "neighbored" freely with Mrs. Snyder in private, so she felt

FREE TO ATTEND THEIR DANCES,

But when a gentleman brought her on the floor to finish out a quadrille, these neighbors went off the floor. She was not slow to resent the treatment, and left the room, flinging back in a tone all could hear, "They had better leave the world because I am in it!" Snyder refused to play for the troupe again; but I believe they were persuaded back toward Spring—he to furnish the music, and she to dance unmolested.

Sarah had an excellent voice, and sang sweetly the popular war songs of the day, playing accompaniments to them on the guitar.

Shortly after their marriage Mr. Snyder engaged in the bakery business in Marysville, and paid for her tuition

AT THE SISTERS' SCHOOL

In that place. She attended that institution for several years, but books were stupid to her, while needle work was all fascination; so she learned only the rudiments of the English branches, but became proficient in needle work, and her ability in that line was wonderful, while her cookery and housekeeping equaled any proverbially neat Yankee woman's. She has made great improvement intellectually since then.

During that (to us) long snow-bound Winter we had many interesting conversations about her people, their customs, religion, wars, legends and wrongs. She spoke of the Piute nation then as "my people"—a manner of speech she still retains—and her enthusiasm when talking over plans for their amelioration made one forget the color of her face and only remember that she was the Princess of a poor, ignorant and oppressed people. We suggested plans then for the education and civilization of her race, which she has since used so far as she is able.

The Piutes name their infants after the first object that attracts the infant's attention; hence Sarah's beautiful name—Sonometa—the shell flower, the first object she noticed.

Fremont's company were the first white men the Piutes had ever beheld. Sarah remembers peeping round her mother to get a glimpse of them. A wise old fellow pronounced them "Giant-owls with hair on their faces." This caused such consternation among the sons and daughters of the forest that they FLED IN TERROR.

They carried the pappooses till overcome by fatigue, when the mothers resorted to an original measure for securing the safety of their offspring. They scooped hollows in the abundant sand and laying the babies in these hollows covered them with sand up to their faces, arranged a shade of willows over their heads and left them with the parting injunction to keep quiet, Sarah says, "and we did remain quiet until the next day." When the fleeing party, recovered from its fright, was returning to "dicker" with the "hairy-faced owls," took the babies out of their sand beds.

FREMONT'S VISIT TO THIS CAMP

Resulted in Sarah's grandfather, who had abdicated in favor of her father, accompanying Fremont to Mexico, and finally in her whole family finding their way to California and civilization.

Upon his return from Mexico, "Grandfather" Winnemucca brought with him an old gun, a bright tin plate, with opposite holes through the edge and strings tied through these holes so that it might be worn as a hat—of course this made a very flat hat—and a world of knowledge contained in four words of English which he had learned.

On gala days Winnemucca brought out these treasures for exhibition. He first allowed each brave to tie the hat upon his head and ride out on his pony where all the multitude could see. This ceremony completed, the plate was returned to its owner, who, seated on an elevation with his gun across his knees, talked English to them for two hours, usually by repeating over and over the four words he had learned, which I must tell you to the shame of Fremont's men, were: "G—d d—n good gun."

BEFORE THEIR DEMORALIZATION

By the whites Sarah thinks the Piutes were a devout people. It was a religious custom among them to immerse their infants, sometimes breaking the ice to perform this ceremony, and no matter how cold the water, she avers it never injured the most delicate infants.

I must stop here, for I find this an inexhaustible subject. Princess Sarah is a prophetess called of God, I believe, to right the wrongs of her people, and our race would do well to give her encouragement in her noble and self-sacrificing labor. She was, when I knew her, a chaste and pure-minded woman.

ALL through the inquiry at Los Pinos Ouray has sought to hoodwink the other members of the Commission. He evidently believes that if he could get those of the murderers who have been identified by the agency women to Washington, they would escape adequate punishment; and we don't know but that he's right. He has not put in evidence a single new fact connected with the outrages; and he has succeeded in securing a promise that those engaged in the treacherous attack upon Thornburgh's command shall not be punished. This saves Jack and Colorow, who have sworn to the ingenious lie that the meeting with the soldiers was accidental. No Indian has has given evidence with regard to the massacre at the Agency; and Ouray will not surrender one of those implicated by the women's testimony, unless he can get them tried where there is a good chance of their acquittal. The Government is paltering with these murderers. A handful of savage cutthroats are dictating terms to forty millions of people.—S. F. Alta.

THE REAL DEL MONTE.—All work at the mine for the past week has been centered in the excavation for the plunger pump, below the 500 level. This excavation is to be 12x14 feet and 25 feet long. In addition to this it has been found necessary to enlarge the pump compartment of the shaft 2 feet for a distance of 25 feet above the 500 level. With no accident to prevent, this work will be completed inside of ten days, when the plunger will be immediately placed in position. The carpenters are at work fitting the pump rods together and getting everything in readiness to put them in place. The pump has been running steadily at a speed of from nine to ten strokes per minute, and, with the aid of one tank, readily holds the water at a point fifteen feet below the 500 station.—Esmeralda Herald.

GREAT results are expected from Rokitanski's discovery of the efficacy of inhalation of benzoate of soda in bronchitis and all pulmonary complaints. Some remarkable cures are already reported. Benzoic acid, by the way, has long been employed stomachically for such diseases. It is better known as Friar's Balsam. Taken too frequently, however, it acts prejudicially upon the kidneys.

SOME two months ago a white man shot Postmaster Nix because he wanted to make a vacancy in the office. The other night William Aiken Nix, a brother of the Postmaster, was shot and mortally wounded. This happened at Blackville, S. C. When you ask a South Carolinian if negroes are ever murdered there, he answers "Nix."

AN English physician says: "If you feel like sneezing, throw yourself flat on your back." Yes; or it will do as well to turn a handspring and and then crawl under a sofa. By the time you've accomplished this you'll have got over wanting to sneeze, which will amply repay you for your trouble.

Table Etiquette.

Never rush in on a family without giving them warning, as you run the risk of not getting enough. If the plate handed you by the host doesn't contain the part of the fowl which suits you best, pass it to the lady next you, with a polite bow. If you sit down at a restaurant with a friend, allow him to carve the steak. If he is a gentleman he is bound to give you the tender side. If he is not, hog the tender side yourself, as politeness to such a man is like casting pearls in a pig pen. Never refuse an invitation to dinner unless you smell something cooking of which you are not fond, or unless you think that by stopping at a house or two further on you can fare better. Never decline onions, or the man of the house will think you are in love with his wife. Take the onions on your plate all the same; and by covering them up with some mashed potatoes, you will lead the old fellow to think you have eaten them. By kicking his wife's shins under the mahogany you can put her on her guard to do likewise. Don't look aghast when you upset a bowl of gravy in somebody's lap, but be ready with some little joke that will set the table laughing and detract attention from the mishap. A nicely turned pleasantry will sometimes make the man on whom you spill the gravy forget all about it. If there is a big dog about the house, throw a few pieces of meat at it. This will make you solid with the dog and pleases the children. When the champagne gives out grab up an empty bottle, tip the small end down toward your host's glass with a pleasant "Permit me to refill your glass," then on perceiving the inward emptiness of the bottle, affect a suppressed surprise. Few men can withstand a hint like this. Never refuse an invitation to dine, as it is a reflection on the party inviting you. Jeems Pipes made this one of his rules of living, and he lived by it for years.—Carson Appeal.

HOW PNEUMONIA CATCHES ITS VICTIMS.—A gentleman recently from Bodie, and who is withal a close observer, tells the Virginia Enterprise that one great cause of pneumonia in Bodie and in all other new camps is the lack of proper mattresses. Instead of a good, comfortable mattress there is often nothing but a thin pulu abortion, or a tick made of gunny sacks and scantily filled with hay or straw. He says the cold gets at the men from below coming in through and around the edges of the mattress. Men pile blankets over them until the upper parts of their bodies are bathed in prespiration and they are nearly smothered, yet all the time streaks of cold are coming in from below and attacking them when they can do the most harm. He recommends all miners sleeping thus in cabins to spread a pair of good, thick blankets over their mattress, when they will sleep in perfect comfort and pneumonia will not reach up from below and pull them down to the grave.

THE NEXT WORLD'S FAIR.—The New Yorkers have not relinquished the idea of holding an International Fair in 1883. A meeting of leading citizens was recently held to consider the project, over which Samuel J. Haines presided. Dr. Newman reported that as Chairman of the Sub-Committee on Invitations he had received a letter from General Grant accepting the invitation extended to him by the committee to visit the city in the latter part of the present month, and promising to preside over a mass meeting to be held for the purpose of advancing the movement. After a site for the Fair building has been agreed upon, the most difficult problem of the whole matter will have been solved. No doubt is entertained that ample means can be raised to make the exhibition an honor to New York City.—S. F. Call.

TO RELIEVE THE EYES.—Reading is rendered easy and fatigue to the eyes very much relieved by a simple device. Get a slip of mica, about three inches broad and six inches long, such as is used in the little windows of stoves. Place this over the page and move it along, so as to cover the lines you read. A larger plate of mica may be employed, so as to cover the whole page, if desired. The white surface of paper is pleasantly shaded, and a book may be read in open sunlight or by bright lamplight without fatigue. If the reader desires he may cover the mica with a light coat of grean varnish. This is better than green goggles, and may be used with profit by the overworked student and the consumer of endless novels.—Atlanta Dispatch.

IT was Benjamin Franklin who protested, in a letter to his daughter, against the eagle as the representative bird of the Union, and defended the claims of the turkey. "For, in truth," said he, "the turkey is a much more respectable bird, and withal, a true, original native of America. Eagles have been found in all countries, but the turkey was pecu'iar to ours."

GREAT interest was excited in a recent concert at Baden by the "pyrophone," invented at Paris by Frederic Kastner, a musical historian of note. It is an organ composed of tubes of glass, and the sound is produced by flames of gas, which cause a vibration of the tubes. The effect is pronounced excellent.

THE words for which Devitt was arrested were that "the manhood of Ireland should spring to its feet and say it would tolerate landlords and landlordism no longer." That sort of talk would be considered ridiculously tame on the sand lot.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20.....1879

Mr. Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, is a much more reasonable gentleman than one would be led to suspect from the intemperate language of some of his sayings while filling a brief term in Congress. Indeed, it would be judged that his latter utterances have undergone a radical change. Then he counseled to violence. He proposed to bring to Washington a hundred thousand men who would seat Mr. Tilden in the Presidential chair in defiance of all opposition. Since then he has met Gen. Grant, and now we actually find him rebuking the hot-heads of his party, and advising to moderation. In pointing out the weak places of the Democratic party, he says: "In sober truth, upon the sectional issue, the Republicans have a very great advantage and they know it." He also remarked in reference to Virginia and Tennessee that is was not an easy matter to answer Mr. Conkling when he says "that if Virginia and Tennessee, old and proud States, are willing to repudiate honorable debts of their own, what guarantee have we that they will be squeamish about repudiating a debt incurred by us to subjugate them?" If Mr. Watterson continues, as a Southern man, to write in this vein, there is danger he will be read out of his party down that way.

The other day we received a copy of a new magazine called the Californian. It contains about a hundred neatly printed pages filled with exceedingly well written California stories and romances. As a whole it is a most creditable production, and one which possesses unusual interest to every Pacific Coaster. For itself and the corps of able writers who have contributed to make this first number what it is, we wish this magazine unbounded success. We do not, however, expect ever to see another copy of it in this office—at least till time to "notice" a new volume—and for this reason: It is published by the A. Roman and Overland-Argonaut Company or gang, which gang, so far as our experience goes, has always made it a practice to send first copies of their several publications to country journals for introduction to the peop', after which the acquaintance between the "hebdomadal" and the immense publication from the city becomes a thing of the past.

The New York Mining Record of the 6th instant says during last week a large business was transacted in the lead market. In some instances sales were made, for future delivery, but the details were kept strictly private until very recently, when it leaked out that a large consumer had secured about 1,500 tons of common, to be delivered during January and February, at a private price, but supposed to be under the present market value. With this exception, the market has remained quiet, but prices are firmly maintained on the basis of 5½@5.60 cents for common, and 5.80@5.90 cents for refined. Sales for the week aggregate about 300@500 tons of both common and refined in lots.

The surplus stock of silver held by Germany cannot be very large, and if sales are resumed must soon be exhausted, so there is no real reason why it should much longer affect the market. Sherman complains that he cannot get silver enough to run the Carson Mint. He ought to negotiate for Germany's stock and ship it to Carson.

Gov.-elect Foster, of Ohio, says Gen. Garfield will undoubtedly be chosen to succeed Senator Thurman. He thinks that within a very short time it will be demonstrated that Garfield has such strength that he will have practically no opposition.

The recent battle between the Montenegrians and Albanians was the bloodiest and most destructive of the war. It took place on the 10th instant. Not less than 1,500 troops are reported killed, and at least 2,000 wounded.

It is said that the returns from Portland, Lewiston and other cities in Maine have some technical defect and will be rejected by the State Board, giving both branches of the Legislature to the Democrats.

It is said that twelve million five hundred thousand of the twenty-five million dollars of bonds of the new line to the Pacific have already been subscribed for in Boston.

The Piute Princess, Sarah Winnemucca, is on her way to Washington, accompanied by Natches and several other leading men of the Piute tribe.

THE "BREYFOGLE" AGAIN.

The Mammoth Herald says that "famous Breyfogle mine" is a myth. We do not doubt it. The Herald writer tells us that last year, while prospecting in Southern Arizona, he found a man (whose name he cannot recall), settled upon a ranch on the upper San Pedro river, from whom he learned the true origin of the Breyfogle story which is substantially as follows: During the earlier years of the Rebellion a party of men organized in Western Nevada for the purpose of going south to join the Confederates by going through Arizona and Mexico to Texas. While traveling south of Austin, Nevada, they were observed by an old prospector, who, after the fashion of his kind, suspected it was a party of miners "slipping on to something good somewheres," and resolved to follow them. It was not long till the party found out they were being followed, and fearing Alcatraz and Dan Showalter's fate, they hit on a plan to throw the supposed spy from Fort Churchill off the scent. One morning one of their number remained concealed in camp after the rest had gone on, and in this way soon had an opportunity to interview the object of distrust face to face. The old prospector frankly stated his belief and motive for dogging the party's steps. The Confederate, having been a prospector himself, took in the situation at a glance, and having with him some rich specimens obtained in California, he gave them to the old prospector, stating that they were from a mine in a mountain range to which he pointed; also, that the mine was large and very rich, but that under no circumstances must he again be seen upon their trail, as his companions were very jealous of outside interference and that it would be very dangerous for him to do so. 'The now greatly] excited prospector," continues the Herald, "it is supposed returned to his camp and showing the rich rock to his friends made immediate preparations to hunt the fabled mine. How that hunt was continued for many months and years, and the hardships, privations and sufferings of many of the deluded prospectors led on by this story, has become a part of the history of Southern Nevada, familiar to every miner and prospector. This man was Breyfogle. Many men yet believe in the existence of these ledges, and prospecting parties are even to this day searching for this Will 'o the Wisp. These are the factsof the case as told the writer of this by one of the party of Confederates, who is now settled on the San Pedro river near the line in Arizona." The conclusion is that old Breyfogle knew nothing whatever of any "Breyfogle ledge."

It is officially announced that the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company have purchased steel rails, locomotives and equipment for 200 miles of standard gauge railroad to be constructed in Eastern Oregon and Washington Territory during 1880. One hundred and fifty tons of the rails are now on board the ship soon to sail from Cardiff to Portland. One hundred miles will be built from the Dalles up the Columbia river, to connect with the existing Walla Walla Railroad. Fifty miles more would be the extension of the latter to Snake river, and the remainder will connect Texas Ferry, on Snake river, with the heart of the Palous country. It is stated that these extensions and new constructions are made for the purpose of opening up, in conjunction with the Northern Pacific, the great grain-producing district of Eastern Washington Territory. The line of the Northern Pacific in this region extends from the mouth of Snake river northeasterly to the Bitter Root mountains, a distance of 200 miles.

The latest news from Mexico is to the effect that Gen. Gonzales has been arrested and is in close confinement charged with conspiracy. Governor Charles, of Coahuila, has resigned, being disgusted with the extension of Federal jurisdiction over the Sierra Mojada. The Legislature opposes his resignation. The Presidential election excitement is increasing. Free suffrage is secured to the people who were before unknown in politics in Mexico. President Diaz is fulfilling his pledge to guarantee to the people their rights according to the spirit of the Constitution. The old stock politicians regard the attitude of President Diaz in the matter as an innovation on all the customs of the country. Ignacio Mariscal, formerly Minister to Washington, has been designated as Minister of Justice.

Hon. Joseph Wasson, Representative elect to the incoming Legislature, from Inyo and Mono counties, writes us from San Francisco requesting his constituents to prepare bills and statement of facts concerning such local legislation as may be needed, always bearing in mind what can and what can't be done under the New Constitution. It would be well that our leading citizens get together and consult upon the subject.

MOUNT WHITNEY.

A San Francisco gentleman, in a letter published in the Bulletin of that city, has considerable to say about some of our Inyo mountain peaks and scenery, but refers to them altogether from a Tulare county stand point. "We have," this gentleman enthusiastically writes, "the highest mountain in the United States, a glorious dome seventeen thousand feet high. The pinnacle of the temple, the cap sheaf of the Great Republic is just where it should be, in a State where all is magnificent. This distinguished peak is in the Sierra Nevada chain, about three hundred miles southeast of San Francisco. It does not stand alone. About it are other peaks that rival its greatness. It has been measured and pronounced upward of seventeen thousand feet high, and above all its fellows. Around it is perpetual snow, and at its base eternal Summer."

It would be better for all concerned if people were less given to exaggerations. A wrong impression is conveyed in both clauses of the last sentence above quoted. It is true that the summits of Mount Whitney and its fellows are far above the lower line of perpetual snow, but at times snow is found on none of them only in patches, while "the eternal Summer" part is altogether too tough a morsel for local digestion, even by the ostrich-stomached Tularians, who live at the western base of Mount Whitney, but with many another big mountain between.

Heretofore writers have shown a disposition to ignore or deny Inyo's claims to the superlative in anything, but here of late some of them are doing us rather too proud; instance, the gentleman above quoted, also, that fellow who drew such a long bow about Death Valley, etcetera, to that Leadville reporter, and which story we reproduced a two weeks since. Now, Mount Whitney is not seventeen thousand feet high, nor is it the highest peak in the United States. The late Secretary Seward robbed it of that distinction when he made Alaska and its Mount St. Elias a part of Uncle Sam's array of lofty mountains. With that exception it is, however, the highest, undoubtedly. A number of careful measurements have been made of the altitude of Mount Whitney. These vary from 14,760 feet as the lowest up to 15,300 as the highest. The first of these results was obtained by a highly competent gentleman of this county, who has ascended the mountain a number of times, and has as often taken its altitude both by triangulation and barometrically. We hope, ere long, to give from his pen a detail of not only this part of his work, but also facts touching the identity of this peak, concerning which we have here in years past had a great deal of controversy. It is now demonstrated that a rival but a few miles distant is within six feet as high as Whitney itself. Owing to their titanic surroundings, neither of these loftiest peaks possesses anything like the imposing grandeur the Bulletin writer accredits them in another part of his article; at least neither of them will for a moment stand a comparison in that regard with the majesty of either Lassen Butte or Mount Shasta, both in the same range and State. The summit of Mount Whitney is visible from our office window, from which it is only about twenty-five miles distant, but is hardly distinguishable from this or any direction owing to the so nearly equal hight of its monstrous neighbors.

The writer from whom we quote thinks it a shame that such a distinguished mountain should be put off with such an undistinguished name as "Whitney." That far we agree with him, but when he suggests that a commission be sent to the top of the mountain to then and there formally re-christen it "Washington," "Lincoln," or something of that kind, we feel it a duty to rise to a question of privilege and object. We venerate those names, but consider them less distinctive, in the midst of the thousands of petty towns, cross roads, little mountains, etc., to which they are applied, than would be "Smith," or "Jones," or "Obadiah"—far less than either in fact, as a name for a notable object of nature. To call this peak Washington would be much the same sort of veneration and distinction as is shown by the Mexicans in naming so many of their most ill-favored man-children "Jesus."

We don't want to exaggerate or belittle Inyo's claims to distinction in any particular. We claim for her not only the highest mountain peak and group of peaks in the Union (excluding Alaska), but also the lowest lying valey, having one the surface of which in considerable area is well on to 200 feet below sea level. This is not all our claims to super-excellence in nature's wonders by any means, but must suffice for the present.

In conclusion we must add for the information of this gentleman who seems to think the ascent of Mount Whitney would be a most difficult feat, that several different parties, ladies included, have often made the ascent, and riding to the very top of its equally lofty and nearest neighbor and rival.

The Quincy school system, about which we hear so much just now, is simply applying to the teaching of children the law of intellectual development, as exemplified in the babe's progress from infancy to childhood. The School Board of Quincy found that the old system merely made intellectual machines of the children, that they could parrot off what they had got by rote, but that their comprehension went for nothing in the matter. It was a mere effort of memory, and when the lesson had served its turn it was never more thought of. The Quincy School Board only found what can be found in any school in the Union; but they have made an innovation which is striking in one respect. Instead of placing the smallest children under the least experienced teachers, they reverse the rule, and place the most competent and experienced teachers over the primary children. It is at this stage of tuition, they say, that the greatest ability is required in the teacher. In the higher classes any pupil who is farther advanced than the rest can efficiently fill the position of teacher.

Max Lyman, a prairie scout, who lived at the White River Agency a year and a half ago, tells this story to a reporter of the Dubuque Times: "Ouray was in love with the oldest daughter of Agent Meeker, and I think had this not been the case every one of the Meeker family would have been butchered. He often told me that he loved the white girl, and it made him feel bally to think that he could never marry her. I have seen Ouray follow her around and watch over her as if she were a child. He would do anything to please her. Ouray's sister knew her brother loved the Meeker family and so took good care that no harm should come to them. I was there when the women were brought back, and Ouray was so happy that he rushed up to the Meeker girl and shook her hand for an hour. He tried hard to stop her from weeping, but she said: 'Ouray, you knew this trouble was coming all the time, and I can never forgive you.' I learn now that he is doing all in his power to bring the bad Indians in."

Dr. L. D. Morse, of San Mateo, proposes in the Rural Press that the next Legislature provide for the appointment of a Commissioner of Agriculture for this State, whose duty it shall be to collect information, statistical and descriptive, from all parts of the State, in regard to the resources thereof and the condition and progress of agriculture, manufactures and other industrial interests, and to collect such other facts and information as may be deemed important for the promotion of the interests and for the encouragement of immigration and the investment of capital in the development of the resources of the State.

Bogart, late of the Mammoth City Times, speaks (to a Bodie Standard reporter) of Supt. Hardy in anything else than as the "able and efficient" etc., usually applied to these important officials. In other words, he thinks Hardy is utterly *in*efficient, and intimates that there is much rascality connected with his management which the stockholders will soon see to their sorrow. It is proper to state, however, that Bogart had a little personal difficulty with the aforesaid inefficient.

The House of Representatives has passed the Fortifications and Pensions Appropriation bills, and is expected to take final action the coming week upon the Consular and Diplomatic and Military Appropriation bills. This will leave the way clear after the holiday recess for the renewal of the contest over the Army, Navy and Legislative, Executive and Judicial bills.

About as severe a criticism as has been passed upon the President's message is that expressed by the Advance, which remarks that certain portions of the document "indicate, as it seems to us, on the part of President Hayes, a growing intellectual mastery." The President ought to feel encouraged.

Recently, during the conference near Lake Utah, the Apostle John Taylor called upon the congregation to manifest by raising their right hands, whether they were in favor of obeying the laws of God with respect to polygamy. There was an unanimous response in the affirmative. Taylor talks fight.

The President of the Ute Peace Commission expresses the opinion that nothing remains but to fight the Indians. People a thousand miles away came to that conclusion some time ago, and without any prayerful investigation.

The increase in the price of grain renders an increase in the German military estimate necessary.

This is the deliberate opinion of the Louisville Courier-Journal: "The South is not for Grant, or an empire, or a third term, though there are elements at the South thus minded. But if the chuckle-headed Democratic leaders at Washington continue the gait they have been going, they will break themselves and their party down, indirectly making Grant's way for him, and the South once divided, the existing Democratic fabric will go to pieces. That is all there is in it."

Negotiations are on foot for the purchase of the Texas Pacific by the Anglo-American Land Association, a financially powerful organization controlled principally in Edinburgh. The proposition is to contract to pay for the whole body of lands at a minimun price of fifty cents per acre within fifteen years, as fast as this association colonizes them, and to make an immediate payment, of say $1,000,000, in advance of the colonization.

The President insists on the appointment of John Morton, of Indiana, as Collector of Internal Revenue in San Francisco. Our California would-be office holders are "kicking like a bay steer" that a Hoosier should be sent here, when there are so many native competents. It is mean.

The Bodie Daily and Weekly Standard has passed unto the management and editorship of John I. Ginn, one of the best known newspaper writers on the Coast. We congratulate Bro. Harris upon his fortunate selection, and will guarantee success if John can be made to stay with it long enough.

An Indiana Sheriff presented himself in Court and asked to be relieved from his office, assigning as a reason his fondness for intoxicants. We move that full particulars of this remarkable event be pasted on the desk of every Congressman.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the District Court of the Twelfth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the City and County of San Francisco, in the suit of H. Kramer, Plaintiff, against the Brown Monster Mining Company, a corporation, Defendant, upon a judgment rendered in said Court on the First day of November, A. D. 1879, for the sum of Six Thousand Six Hundred and Thirty-eight Dollars in gold coin of the United States, besides costs amounting to the sum of Twelve Dollars, duly attested the First day of November, A. D. 1879, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of $6 650 00 in gold coin of the United States, besides accruing costs and interest, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said Defendant in and to the following described real property, to-wit:

That certain mill and mill site known and designated as the Brown Monster quartz mill and mill site, together with all the machinery and appurtenances belonging thereto, with the canal or water ditch leading from Owens River to said mill. Also, the boarding house, blacksmith shop and all buildings at or near said mill. Also, that certain mine or lode known as the Brown Monster mine or lode, together with all the machinery and appurtenances belonging thereto. Also, the Hirsche mine or lode, formerly known as the South Extension of the Eclipse mine or lode. Also, the Yluva mine or lode formerly known as the North Extension of the Eclipse mine or lode. Also, the railroad and tramway between said mill and said Brown Monster mine, with all the cars and appurtenances belonging thereto, with all the rights of way and water rights belonging to said Brown Monster Mining Company. Also, the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter and the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter and the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter and the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of Section Number Seven (7), in Township Number Fourteen (14) South, of Range Number Thirty-six (36) East, Base and Meridian of Mount Diablo.

Notice is hereby given that on MONDAY, THE 12TH DAY OF JANUARY, A. D. 1879, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., to wit: at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, in front of the Court-house door, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said defendant in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy said judgment and all costs, at public auction, to the highest bidder or bidders, for cash in hand in gold coin of the United States.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20.....1879

THE PRINCESS SARAH.—On the first page of this issue will be found some interesting reminiscences of Sarah Winnemucca, the Piute princess—so called—who, as the first of her sex and race, is now delivering public lectures in San Francisco touching the wrongs of her people. The writer of the article, Mrs. E. M. Willis, wife of Rev. F. M. Willis of this place, knew Sarah well, and all herein given by Mrs. W. as actual truths may be accepted as wholly above question, while the writer's estimate of her subject's peculiar traits, worth and characteristics is worthy of the highest consideration as matters of opinion. We make this allusion for the reason that since Sarah Winnemucca has been showing up Reinhart, Indian Agent at the Malheur Reservation, and other scoundrels of his too common stamp, she is being denounced as a miserable, lying, debauched Indian squaw, daughter of a dirty old Digger Indian, who was neither king nor chief by hereditary right, "consequently," one newspaper remarks, "this Digger squaw is no princess," therefore, as deduced by the paper in question, her sayings and noble efforts to right notorious wrongs are unworthy of notice. According to that editor's notions, rank and high training are of vast importance in an Indian woman when battling for the commonest rights of her people.

CERRO GORDO MAILS.—There could hardly be any worse arrangements than at present obtain as to mail matters at Cerro Gordo. It is carried. mostly on horseback, on Mondays. Wednesdays and Fridays, and the return is made on same days within an hour or so after its arrival there. The frequent result is that four or five days are consumed in getting a letter to or from San Francisco, whereas by a different arrangement it might be done in two and one-half days. As now, eighteen miles of the route—between Lone Pine and Swansea—is doubled. The remedy is simply to have the mail leave Lake Station, by horse or buckboard, after the passing of both the up and down stages, returning the next day before they pass again. As there is no post-office on that side of the Lake, it would be necessary to have two special Cerro Gordo sacks, for mail assorted at Darwin and Lone Pine. Returning, our model P. M. at Cerro Gordo would fill the same sacks with north and south mails, to take their places on the respective stages at the Lake. By rights, the mail service at Cerro Gordo ought to be increased to six times a week and on the whole Southern route to an every day mail, to correspond with the Northern route as it is now being run.

I. O. G. T.—Through Rev. Mr. Willis' energies and most commendable desire to aid those who most need such aid, a meeting was held on Thursday evening, at which a sufficient number of responsible names were obtained to apply for a charter for a Good Templar's Lodge in this place. The prospects are considered good for a large Lodge in due time; at least, quite a large number say they will take stock in it after its organization; of these, several procrastinate because they feel that they can't resist the holiday toddies and temptations and consequent headaches and heartaches and all such cheap fun now so close at hand. After that comes reform of course, but of the kind which usually winds up with a fine, but quite private, snake show.

GOOD.—As the Secretary of War has recommended the sale of a number of unoccupied military posts and reservations, there is hardly a doubt now but the present Congress will soon order the Camp Independence buildings sold or otherwise disposed of, and the lands restored to public entry.

HERE.—Mr. Wartelle, general agent for this region of the Cerro Gordo Freighting Co., gave our sanctum a visit the other day. The company are now paying for large quantities of hay and grain in the valley, and in consequence the producers thereof are happy.

SWANSEA.—Peter Perrier has purchased from W. K. Miller the old Dockweiler station at Swansea, and is re-establishing it in good style—affording quite a convenience for the number of miners and prospectors thereabouts.

IN TOWN.—My. Harmon and Constable Frank Fitzgerald, of Darwin and Lookout, were in town yesterday. Frank is a very efficient peace officer in that region, and his official card will be found elsewhere this week.

INSTALLATION.—The new officers of Inyo Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., will be regularly installed upon Saturday evening next—St. John's day. The brethren, with their families, are respectfully invited to attend.

SAYING IT.—Since we won't have an opportunity of saying it again this year before the proper time, we may as well say it now—"A merry Christmas to all!"

NEW YEARS.—It has been proposed that a programme of horse racing and a big dance be arranged by Independence folk for New Year's day and night.

TIME.—Now is the time to renew your subscriptions to THE INDEPENDENT for 1880. Anything raised upon your farms—except family rows—taken on subscription.

ASSESSMENT.—The Virginia Consolidated mine, of Kearsarge District, has its shares assessed five cents each. Day of sale, February 10th.

PREACHING.—Rev. F. M. Willis will preach in the school house here tomorrow evening, beginning at 7 o'clock.

The Indiana Mine.

AN INDEPENDENT representative had the pleasure of visiting, recently, the Indiana mine, belonging to a corporation of the same name and represented here by Messrs. Boley & Tuttle. It is situated about three miles west of Owens Lake, in the Inyo mountains, at an elevation of 1,500 feet above the lake. The country lying to the east of Swansea is attracting considerable attention, and having in view its future importance, we devote some space to what appears at present to be the best developed and so far the most productive property.

THE CENTRAL VEIN

Cuts through a long hill of solid and apparently primitive formation. Its course is north 10° west. On the west the country is quartzose and black slate; on the east the mineral zone is confined by lime, greenstone and slate strata. In the cañons, on either side, are shown small veins of argentiferous rock tending to a common center somewhere on the principal line of locations. The Indiana was discovered some eighteen months ago by James Hanger, and in April last purchased by Messrs. Boley & Tuttle, who have since made the property pay its purchase money and all expenses. The vein is a small one, standing nearly vertical, of a width ranging from four to eighteen inches, perfectly continuous and in walls well defined. The ore is of sulphide and gray carbonate, the first class carrying 800 ounces silver per ton, the second 400 and the third 100. A specimen on exhibition at the San Francisco office, which weighs 12 pounds, shows horn silver and sulphides and is estimated to contain $60. With a force of

FOUR MEN

A tunnel has been run on the line of the vein 230 feet in length, attaining a depth of 115 feet. From this level two winzes have been sunk to a depth of 85 feet and (at the time of our visit) 18 feet, showing very rich ore in all and presumably a block of it 85x140 feet. On the dumps were four tons of second and six tons of third class ore, the whole assaying from $210 to $380 per ton, which is now at the New Coso furnace in Darwin for reduction, where Mr. S. D. Woodhull, of the Independence assay office, has gone to deliver and sample the same.

THE EXTENSIONS

Consist of claims of the legal length of 1,500 feet and comprise, 1st—the "Virginia," adjoining which comes the "Marx Stemler." Finding a vacancy here on the lode line, Capt. J. M. Keeler located and owns the "Grand Center," comprising 1,320 linear feet. Next adjoining is a claim belonging to Thos. Moran, upon which he has run a tunnel 40 feet in length showing ore of the same rich class. The "Flagstaff" mine, the property of C. Meysan & Co., is the next location. This is developed so far by a shaft 110 feet in depth, and has upon the dump 15 tons of $300 ore. Ore sent to San Francisco from this mine has well repaid all the cost of extracting and shipment. A claim of Geo. Desalier, Stone & Co., comes next, followed as you ascend the slope by locations more or less opened belonging to Jas. Hanger, J. H. Dodge and C. Meysan, and one called the "North Discovery," owned by Col. Boley. For all this long line, comprising

OVER 13,000 FEET

The ledge is distinct and the ore assays hold the same high average. Certainly, "there is something in it."

The Programme.

Following is the programme of exercises set for Mrs. May's school exhibition, which is to take place on Christmas Eve, which, it may be as well to remark, occurs next Wednesday evening. The exhibition promises to be something well worth attending by everybody in reach. The dialogues or plays and casts are as follows:

"The Runaways"—G. Willis, W. Willis, W. Chalfant and M. George.

"Tit for Tat"—Norman and Maggie Conklin.

"The Modern Wedding"—Alvah Conklin, Della Willis and Harry Cook.

"The Widow's Mistake"—Maggie Graham, Morton George and Louisa Sherrer.

"The Rival Politician"—Norman Conklin and George Willis.

"Our Father's Care"—Louisa Sherrer and Lena Harris.

"Circumstances Alter Cases"—Norman Conklin, Fred. George and Willie Chalfant.

"The Bungtown Lyceum"—Maggie Conklin, Julia Cook, Louisa Sherrer, Carrie Willis, Morton George, Willie Chalfant, Fred. George, Winton Willis and Norman Conklin.

Declamations, etc., and speakers as follows: "Not so Easy" by Allie Rose; "Ding Dong," by Harry Cook; "The Broken Window," by Minnie Harris; "Georgie's First Speech," by George Rose; "Over and Over Again," by Maud Cook; "Ambition's Fall," by Norman Conklin; "No Sects in Heaven," by Carrie Willis; "The District Schoolmaster," by Winton Willis; "The Prayer of the Drunkard's Child," by Maggie Conklin; "The Little Boy's Dream," by Frank Sherrer; "Aunt Tabitha," by Julia Cook; "How They Had Him," by Henry Harris; "I am Seven," by Della Willis; "A Yankee in Love," by George Willis.

BEVERIDGE.—Beveridge District is still the attractive point for Cerro Gordoites. Among those looking into the rugged cañons leading down from the Inyo range into Saline Valley are Messrs. Hunter, English, Crohn and others. The Mexicans, who now number about 70, keep on sending in balls of gold to the amount of $800 to $1,200 per week. They have seven arrastras in operation and two under process of construction; besides, there are those who content themselves with a mortar or a flat rock in pounding out gold from the small but exceedingly rich surface strata.

CLOSED.—Mr. Daniel Crough's school at the Post closed yesterday for the term.

The Holidays at Lone Pine.

LONE PINE, Dec. 16.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Notwithstanding the hard times, we Lone Piners are making preparations for a good time Christmas. We are going to have the regular old-fashioned Christmas tree, on Christmas Eve. The same evening the Lone Pine Dramatic Society will appear at Peterson's Hall, in two plays, entitled "Simpson & Co.," and "Turn Him Out," commencing at 8 o'clock; admission free. On the 25th we will have horse races, etc., and in the evening a dance and supper. We cordially extend an invitation to all. H.

GOVERNMENT SURVEYS.—L. D. Bond, Deputy United States Surveyor, with a party of sixteen assistants, is now engaged in the work of running township lines and sectionizing Saline Valley, across the Inyo mountains. We are informed that he connected with old surveys near Big Pine, continued across the range and will run southward to the fourth standard. The valley in question lies at the east base of the mountains, and is only valuable for its vast deposit of salt. It is but 1,290 feet above sea level being 2,132 feet lower than Owen's Lake, and 6,790 feet below Cerro Gordo. It is an exceedingly hot place in Summer and abounds with pestiferous flies and gnats the whole year round. About the center is a small lake carrying salt in the highest per cent. of solution. Various small streams of fresh water empty into it from the Inyos, at one point flowing over some good land. Here the Indians have long held in possession and cultivated patches of ground, raising corn, watermelons, etc., and when the surveying party put in an appearance with their instruments and began operations the Indians imagined that war had been declared and they all disappeared; and they still think that it is being done to rob them of their land. It would be shameful if such should finally prove the case. Our Indians, since the early wars, have lived peaceably with the whites mainly because they have been decently treated; but the tribes hereabouts have received no benefits from the millions annually appropriated by the Government for the support of our "nation's wards." Hence, the disposition of Cerro Gordoites in particular is to see that the Saline Valley red men shall not be disturbed in their equitable rights. As to the survey itself, it is extremely doubtful if it will be of any practical advantage to the Government or citizens for a century to come, or until after the stakes and monuments are obliterated by time.

CRAPO'S CATS.—Wm. Crapo, U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor at Cerro Gordo, has in his cabin a pair of most rare and interesting little pets. They are what is left of seven of them, captured around the camps of the Beveridge District miners. A late number of the New York Forest and Stream contains Mr. Crapo's query and description of the cats, and the substance of the answer, as follows: "Be kind enough to oblige me by giving through your columns the correct name and genus to which belong the small quadrupeds known from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific as a 'mountain cat.' The animal when full grown weighs from four to five pounds; is from ten to twelve inches long, stands five to six inches high; is a dun or mouse color; has a tail seventeen to eighteen inches long, bushy like a squirrel, with alternate black and white rings; feet and claws like a cat; with long pointed nose like a fox; teeth and mouth like a cat; large, wide-spreading ears like a cat's ears, only four times as large; large, black, beady eyes; growls, snarls and barks like a cayote; is carniverous, living on mice, birds, etc.; is nocturnal in its habits, is easily tamed, and makes a capital mouser. Litchenstein gives the species the scientific name of Bassaris Astuta, and places its habitat as from Texas and Southern Rocky Mountains to the Pacific." The little fellows are perfect beauties, and are becoming tame enough to handle, provided you make the right start in the first place. "Bright Eyes" and "Fannie" are furnished with an ingeniously arranged cage and are the especial pets of all Cerro Gordo. The Indian name for them is Tu-in-go-ah.

EXHIBITION.—For those who desire an intellectual treat, we would respectfully suggest that, weather permitting, they visit Lone Pine Christmas Eve, to witness the exhibition of the Lone Pine Dramatic Society, which event is mentioned elsewhere by a correspondent, as being on the programme. Mr. S. W. Blaisdell, of the Lone Pine school, has for a long time had under training a corps of youthful singers, whose proficiency in music has been well recognized by all who have had the pleasure of hearing their efforts.

PERSONAL.—Among the mining men taking a look at Inyo is Mr. G. R. Cottrell, of New York, who is in town today, with Capt. Keeler and John Ely. Under John's convoy, "Doc." Cottrell has examined Cerro Gordo and other points of interest and promise thus far, and will continue northward if the weather permits. We can vouch for the fact that he can set a horse, talk about mountain sheep and play big pete a little better than anybody.

CLOSED DOWN.—The experimenal operations with the Frue concentrator upon the Brown Monster ores have been completed and further work suspended for the time being. Practical conclusions remain to be arrived at through critical assays of the concentrations and tailings, the results of which will be given next week.

THE BRIDGE.—Some eight setts of piles have been driven for the Lone Pine bridge, and the work of framing appears to be going slowly ahead. Supervisor Meysan takes an active hand in swinging the ax, saw and adz.

DIED.—On the 10th instant, at Woonsocket, R. I., Mrs. Martha Corcoran, only sister of our townsmen E. A. and Patrick Reddy, Esq.

THE WEATHER.—It is seldom in this valley that a rain-gauge or pluviometer would have occason to show much of a result in the way of rainfall, most of the atmospheric moisture being caught by high mountains on either side in the shape of snow. However, were there one in the valley it would have had a fair opportunity to set forth some interesting facts during last eighteen hours. Beginning at about 10 o'clock last night it has given us a regular rain, Oregon like, until noon to-day. The Sierras are white with snow down to a low line on the foot-hills, while the Inyo range bears a robe of the beautiful liable to wear some time. At this writing the sun is essaying to show himself, but laboring under serious difficulties all the while.

IDLE MEN.—There are fewer men out of employment at present than at any time since the rush here in midsummer. Those here and at work are apparently saving their money, at least not a great deal of it is going for faro and sporting purposes. A great many of the idle men are of the character not fond of work, and are not disposed to hunt it. This is a drawback to the place, even if the number is small. It is hard for restaurants and boarding-houses to thrive when bummers and dead-beats have full swing. Business men have hopes that as Winter advances money will be more plentiful and bills met promptly The outlook is not discouraging in the least, and when Spring comes the place will be found in a healthy condition.—Bodie Free Press.

THE Postal Department, it seems, has issued an order relative to letters which are dropped in boxes unstamped. The person to whom such letters are addressed are to be informed that letters unpaid are directed to them, when if the postage shall be sent, the letters will be forwarded to the persons addressed. This is a decided improvement over the regulation which required all unstamped letters to go to the Dead Letter Office. This improvement in the Department is most manifest.

WORDS IN A DISTANT LAND.

Oh! to be home again, home again, home again—
Back to the Aldine drinking my fill;
Oh! for some rum again, rum again, rum again,
Dealt over the bar of that nobby gin-mill.

Oh! to be back to that wholesome pasture;
The flushed old faces once more to see;
Faces so flushed with smiles and whisky,
Salubriously waiting to welcome me.

Oh! the days are so lonely, lonely—
Back to that bar-room my mind often flees—
All that I wish for is only, only,
A little more sugar in mine, if you please.

A PLAYED OUT GAME.—After hoisting in his morning cocktail at the Bank Exchange, Mr. Blankstare said: "Put in a tag for that."

"We're not running by tags just now," said the stern-visaged barkeeper. "It's against the recommendation of the Coroner's jury. If you play that game on me again I'll run you into the sheaves."

Exit Mr. Blankstare, fully impressed with the terrors of Brown station.—Carson Appeal.

THE following is the result of Postmaster General Key's late order by some one out at Tem Pahute: "Willie Steadman, Esq., Kensington, Hartford county, Connecticut, New England, Columbia, Yankeeland, North America, Land of the Free, Home of the Brave, Land of Wooden Nutmegs and Blue Laws, Gem of the Ocean, 'Long May She Wave.' A LADY writes an indignant note to a contemporary, in which, with true rustic innocence, she expresses a belief that editors never go to Heaven. We thought that even country people knew that journalists never went anywhere. They don't get the chance. They just sit up nights thinking how to do good, until the tops of their heads wear holes through their hair.

THERE have been many dergymen on the turf in England. The Rev. Mr. King openly kept race horses and raced under the name of Mr. Launde, and the Rev. Sir Henry Bate Dudley avowedly owned and trained race horses, and there have been Judges on the English bench, one of whom is now living, who kept and run race horses.

THE forthcoming Patent Office report will show that during the twelve months ended June 30, 19,300 applications for patents were received and 2,674 caveats filed, 12,471 patents issued, 1,547 trade marks and labels registered, and 828 patent granted.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of the Estate of John T. Denton, Deceased. } Order to show cause why Order of Sale of Real Estate should not be made.

It appearing to the Probate Judge of said Court, by the petition this day presented and filed by C. A. Walters, the Executor of the last will and testatment of John T Denton, deceased, praying for an order of sale of real estate, that it is necessary to sell the whole of the real estate as required by the terms of the last will and testament of said deceased.

It is therefore ordered by the Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of the said deceased, appear before the said Probate Court on WEDNESDAY, the SEVENTH day of JANUARY, A. D. 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court room of said Probate Court at the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Executor to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased, as shall be necessary.

And that a copy of this order be published at least four successive weeks in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said county.

JOHN A. HANNAH,
Probate Judge.

The Artesian Well Bill.

Senator Hill, of Colorado, has introduced a bill which we hope will become a law. We allude to his experimental artesian well bill. It directs the Secretary of the Interior to contract for sinking five artesian wells—two in Colorado, on the plains east of the Rocky Mountains, and three at such other places as the Secretary may designate, in the States or Territories west of the Rocky Mountains—and appropriates $50,000 for this purpose. It also provides that contractors shall report weekly the character of ground or rock through which the boring progresses, giving the thickness of strata and samples of material encountered.

Of the three provided for west of the Rocky Mountains, we hope Nevada may secure at least two of them. The Government would be largely gainer by demonstrating that water can be found for the desert lands of this State. The whole area of the public domain would at once come into the market and be eagerly sought by permanent settlers. The future gaeatness of Nevada, no man can foretell, if artesian water can be obtained in abundance to irrigate our arid lands. The Battle Mountain Messenger has some interesting data on the subject of artesian wells, from which we extract the following:

There are now some fifteen wells in and around Battle Mountain, the average depth of these being 140 feet. All of them, with the exception of one, are flowing a steady stream of pure water. The Nevada Central Railway Company have sunk two wells on the line of their road. One is down a distance of 130 feet, the other 30 feet, and the pipe has arrived for another one. The cost of the wells sunk near Battle Mountain was, on an average, $2 per foot, but the cost of those being sunk by the Nevada Central Railroad will be twice that amount, as the ground is much harder than at Battle Mountain. The number of artesian wells in California continues to increase, and is probably greater now, certainly in proportion to the population and probably in proportion to the area, than any other region of equal extent. The ordinary cost of a well in California, with a good pipe eleven inches in diameter, in favorable ground, is $5 a foot for the first 100 feet, $6 for the next 100, $7 for the next 100, $8 for the next 100, and beyond 400 feet the expenses vary greatly, according to circumstances. We feel safe in predicting that inside of five years there will be, at the least calculation, one hundred artesian wells in operation between Battle Mountain and Austin, and instead of a waste plain, covered with sagebrush and greasewood, there will be a valley dotted with fine farms and numerous schoolhouses.—Eureka Sentinel.

ALFRED PARAF, the bull-butter-man, who is well known all over the coast in connection with his attempt to introduce oleomargarine, is one of those men that it is hard to keep down. He went to Chili, where he got up a big swindle in the shape of a pretended process for transmuting base metals into gold and silver. After getting a large amount of money invested in his scheme by capitalists, the cheat was detected and Paraf was arrested, tried for felony, convicted and sentenced to a long term of imprisonment. The war breaking out between Peru and Chili, he was put "i' the imminent deadly breach," where he displayed such gallantry as to induce the Council of State to grant him a free pardon. Probably the next news we hear of Paraf is that he is commander-in-chief of the Chilian forces.

Two Meriden men are in trouble over a ladder, and are taking steps for a lawsuit. The result of this will be that one lawyer will get the sides and the other lawyer will get the rounds, leaving the holes to the litigants.

Swindles and Swindlers.

We find the following in the Rural Press, and commend it to the especial attention of all those who are given to sending money to unknown advertising concerns, particularly those who resort to private circular letters: Says the Press:

The innumerable swindlers who operate through the mails are being made known through the Postoffice authorities. The Western Rural prints an alphabetical list of names which represent people whose letters the Postoffice officials have ordered retained in the hands of the Postmasters of the several towns because the parties are doing a fraudulant business through the mails. It would be well for our readers to preserve this list for reference, and whenever they see an advertisement of questionable character, to examine the list and ascertain if it contains the name of such advertiser. THE WHITE RIVER MASSACRE.

Exciting Scenes at the Peace Commissioners' Meeting Last Saturday—Promised Surrender of the Guilty Indians on Condition that they be Tried in Washington.

DENVER, December 8.—Specials to the Denver Tribune from Los Pinos, dated the 6th, represent that Saturday witnessed some decidedly annimated occurrences at the Commissioners' meeting. After Jack had declined to inform the Commissioners what Indians had been concerned in the White River massacre, the Indians retired to Ouray's house to debate what course to pursue. No Indians appeared at the agency until Saturday, but they seemed to be engaged at Ouray's house in conducting the wildest dances, and in making fiery speeches. A man was sent from the agency to Ouray's with feed for the horses of the Indians, and discovered from the noise on the inside that the Indians were greatly excited. What he saw ot them were bedecked in feathers and war paint, and was so frightened that he turned back and did not deliver the hay. On Saturday, at 12 o'clock, the Utes came into the agency buildings. Jack, Colorow, twelve others of the White River Utes, and, of course, Ouray, being among the Indians present. When the Indians and Commissioners had taken seats, Gen. Hatch addressed the Indians, setting forth the full demands of the Commission, its right to make the demands, and the patience already exercised with the Utes.

"To-day," he said, "is your last chance. We will wait no longer; we want your final answer, and we want no evasions."

A list of Utes charged by agency women in taking part in the massacre was then read, and the question put by Hatch, "Will you surrender the men whose names are in this paper to be tried; the guilty to be punished, and the innocent to be acquitted?"

The question was put twice, and after consultation, evasive answers were returned both times, Ouray replied, without consulting the other Utes, "How do we know that these Indians you name were at White River at the time of the massacre? or, even if they were there, we do not know that they were concerned in it. These women mentioned the names which came first to their lips, whether they knew them to be or not. We cannot depend on what they say."

"That is what we depend on," said Hatch.

Adams then addressed the Indians, making a speech of over half an hour's duration; saying, amoung other things, that the Commissioners did not want to punish Colorow, Jack and others that took part in the Thornburgh fight, but the cowardly dogs who participated in the massacre of unarmed men at the agency, closing by saying:

"We want those Utes, and will have them."

The Indians held a consultation in a low tone of voice among themselves, but did not seem inclined to reply at all, when Hatch again arose and asked if the guilty Indians were to be surrendered, saying he had made the last appeal. No one moved or spoke for a few moments, when Colorow lighted a big pipe—the "pipe of peace." Each Indian present drew his knife and laid it on his knees. The question of peace or war being the one pending, Colorow passed the pipe to the next man without smoking, and it went around. When the circle was finished, he jumped to his feet, straightened himself up to his full height, pulled his belt around until the knife sheath came in front, pulled his knife out and threw it with force on the floor, quivering and ringing. Instantly every Indian present dropped his hand to the belt, and laid it on knife or pistol. The whites did the same, and the two parties stood fronting and defying each other for some moments, each waiting for the other to make a forward move. There were but six white men, while there twenty-five Indians in the room, and fifteen soldiers in the adjoinrng room. Finally, Ouray spoke as follows:

"We cannot deliver up to you those Indians, unless they are tried in Washington; they must not be tried in Colorado. The Colorado people are all our enemies, and to give them up to be be tried in this State would be to surrender them to be hanged. We will bring those twelve men here for you to see, and then those whom you shall decide to be guilty shall be taken to Washington, and the President shall determine their guilt or innocnce. Douglass will have to go; we know he was in the White River troubles, and you shall decide who else. Upon this condition, and no other, will we surrender the guilty Indians."

This he said with great arrogance and boldness. Ouray said it would take about a week to bring the men in.

Hatch told him he would accept the proposition, so far as bringing the massacre men in, but as for taking them to Washington, he had to telegraph for permission to Secretary Schurz.

Colorow and Jack were immediately dispatched to bring in the twelve named, including Douglass and Persune, saying they would be back in five days.

After they had taken their departure, Ouray again spoke, reiterating his statement that the Utes could not get justice in Colorado, and could only get it in Washington. "You there," meaning Hatch, Adams and the legal adviser, Valol, "are all my enemies. I am one against three. You are all Colorado or New Mexico men, and a French devil. I have not one friend among you. You will not give me justice, and that is why I want to go to Washington, where I can have at least one friend."

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 27.....1879

1880.

Compliments of the season to all, and—A HAPPY NEW YEAR!

IT is now a settled fact that the adjustment of all differences between San Diego and the Texas Pacific Railroad has been amicably arranged. Telegrams exchanged between the city authorities of San Diego and President Scott indicate the setting aside of all pending litigation. The Texas Pacific will deed one-half of the railroad lands to the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroad Company. This gives the latter company a splendid deep water frontage on the bay, and 5,000 acres of well located lands, with ample facilities and privileges for a first-class depot, wharf, etc., accommodations. Details will be settled as rapidly as possible between representatives of the companies and of the city. The adjustment gives great satisfaction to the people of San Diego.

NEWS from Havana to the 23d instant is to the effect that Captain General Blanco has issued a proclamation announcing that the incendiaries and robbers captured in disturbed districts will be tried by court-martial, and upon conviction sentenced to death; and that general officers of the army in the provinces will have authority to approve of such sentences. An official dispatch states that the ex-insurgent Chief Pancho Jeminez, lately pardoned, took arms again on the 26th instant, and joined a party of insurgents from Sancto Spiritus in an attack upon Arroyo Blanco. The troops repelled the attack, killing Jiminez with two of his so-called lieutenants, and dispersing the remainder and capturing a boat containing 1,000 cartridges.

AN extra holiday edition of the San Francisco Stock Report, of the date of December 22, is probably the largest and most complete mining paper ever issued. A lengthy and exhaustive review of Bodie District, from the pen of Hon. Jos. Wasson, in his thorough and incisive style, is one of the finest mining articles we have ever read. The Stock Report has ever been friendly to the mining interests of Inyo county, and in the number referred to gives a long descriptive article of Cerro Gordo, with reference to other prominent points, by the same talented writer. For this section in particular the paper mentioned surpasses in interest any daily newspaper ever printed in San Francisco.

PARNELL will deliver addresses in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis and probably several other cities. His purpose is not only to arouse an interest in the political condition of Ireland, but to secure financial aid for the relief of the thousands of poor peasantry, who otherwise must suffer terribly during the Winter. Parnell has received pressing invitations to extend his journey to the Pacific Coast, but will be unable to do so, owing to the pressing nature of his engagements at home.

DEWEY & Co.'s Scientific Press Patent Agency has received official notice of the issue of the following patents to Pacific Coast inventors, (one of whom —Chaquette—is an ex-Inyoite), for the week ending December 9, 1879: 8,993, E. Bœsch, S. F., street lamp, (re-issue); 222,380, E. Chaquette, S. F., dredging machine; 222,331, E. Chaquette, S. F., machine for raising tailings in mines; 222,418, J. Moore and G. W. Dickie, S. F., operating pumps.

R. J. EDGAR and John A. Russell, representing Edison, have been in Cincinnati several days to arrange for the introduction of the new electric light. Monday they made a contract with John Shillito and associates to allow them the preference in bidding for the management of the business of lighting Cincinnati, Covington and Newport.

THE report comes from Washington that President Hayes has expressed himself of late of being of the opinion that Gen. Grant is obviously a most available candidate for the Republican party for President. He says he sees no objection to a third term for the reason that it would not be a continuation from a second term.

ALL the Ministers of the French Cabinet have handed in their resignations to President Grevy. It is thought that Leon Say will be charged with the formation of a new Cabinet.

PARNELL, the Irish agitator, has sailed for New York. He will be formally received in New York.

SCHOOLS, TEXT BOOKS, ETC.

That wonderful invention, the new Constitution, will soon be in full force and effect, and it is well for our Supervisors and other officials who will have new and special duties to perform under it to begin to speculate a little in relation to the same. One point of direct interest to Boards of Supervisors, and of great importance to the public generally, is embraced in Section 7, Article 9, as follows:

The local Boards of Education, and the Boards of Supervisors, and County Superintendents of the several counties which may not have County Boards of Education, shall adopt a series of text books for the use of the common schools within their respective jurisdictions; the text books so adopted shall continue in use not less than four years; they shall also have control of the examination of teachers and the granting of teachers' certificates within their several jurisdictions.

As we have no local Board of Education in this county, the duties above provided for will, of course, devolve upon the Superintendent and Supervisors, jointly—so those gentlemen had better begin to read up a little. But as they may not all have time to do this, we feel it a duty to offer a suggestion or two as to the plan of procedure, but that only. In the first place, it will be essential for them all, collectively and individually, to begin to fortify themselves on all sides against an irruption of book agents, the Constitution, with the same perspicacity which permeates it throughout, having made special provision for at least one such irruption every fourth year into every county in the State. The object of this wise constitutional provision is simply to give every part of the State an equal show to withstand corrupting influences instead of allowing a monopoly of that business to a favored few at Sacramento, as has been the law heretofore. The plan as a whole is eminently democratic (we do not use that word in a partisan sense), its intention being to insure every county community the felicity of its own distinct ruction about text books, choice as to necessary qualifications of teachers, etc., and also to privilege fifty-two sets of officials to stand off the text book agents, instead of confining all such things to the arbitrament of a few specially trained gladiators at the State capital. There's nothing mean in the new Constitution; it won't permit a monopoly in even a text book war, nor in the application of a corruption fund. It thinks, in its peculiar way of thinking, that a mere handful of State official and legislative bloats have had a monopoly of these paying enjoyments long enough. There is also a moral end to be subserved in the provision which pits County Boards individually against the book agents and question brokers, those Molochs who have so often gobbled up weak but unfortunate State officers. It is simply a crucial test by which corruptible officials in the several counties shall in due time be brought to grief, while the incorruptible shall earn an epitaph to this effect: "Here lies a man who stood off the book agents and question brokers and fell not down before them; a man who voted teachers' certificates every time on merit only, and not on sympathy or denied any on prejudice."

But as our geographical position is such as to afford at present very good natural defenses against an onslaught of book agents, our local Board can rest easy for a time, and proceed quietly but firmly to select a series of text books.

If conservative, liberal-minded, and moderately intelligent books are chosen it may be all the better. It will be observed by reference to the final clause and its context in the section above quoted, that "they [the books] shall also have control of the examination of teachers and the granting of teachers' certificates," etc.—hence the need of books of ordinary discernment. But some members may not be willing to be governed by the literal significance of the clause in question, and may arrogate to themselves the powers and duties the Constitution therein says shall devolve upon the books. Should such be the result, and as the fundamental instrument defers so much to the discretion to such Boards, it is well to now consider, while everbody is cool, how several things are to be done. There being an equal number of votes in the Board, who is to decide when the members, standing two to two, lock horns on some leading question? Again, how are candidates for certificates to be examined, orally, or by written questions got up by experts on contract? Or are we to follow out the line indicated by the Constitution, and revert to the old time "deestrict school system" in selecting "masters" rather than "teachers" for our schools? If the former, would'nt it be well to advance a little on strict constitutional requirements, and have both—school "teachers" as well as school masters? And if so, should not physical power in the latter be a prime question of fitness? Anyway, we should propose to have say two classes, the one to take the schools long enough to subdue the hoodlums and render them sufficiently tractable to receive knowledge from the other, the teachers selected because of their supposed knowledge of books and ability to impart a portion of such knowledge. It is true the Constitution does not seem to think this last qualification a matter of any consequence, since it leaves everything to the vote of officials who, as a class, are not qualified for a line of duties so utterly foreign to those which they were chosen to perform, and which new line should never have been imposed upon them, at least with such unlimited powers.

LIGHT FOR ALL.

Edison has triumphed at last. The New York Herald says: "The first public exhibition in Edison's long looked for electric light will take place New Year's Eve at Menlo Park, on which occasion that place will be illuminated with the new light. The new light, incredible as it may appear, is produced from a little piece of paper—a tiny strip of paper that the breath would blow away. Through this little strip of paper is passed an electric current, and the result is a bright, beautiful, mellow light. Edison makes the little piece of paper more infusible than platinum, more durable than granite, and this involves no complicated process. The paper is baked in an oven until all its elements have passed away, except its carbon frame work. The latter is then placed in a glass globe, connected with the electric-producing machine, and the air exhausted from the globe. Then the apparatus is ready to give out a light that produces no deleterious gases, no smoke, no offensive odors; a light without flame, without danger, requiring no matches to ignite, giving out but little heat, vitiating no air, and free from flickering light, that is a globe of sunshine; and this light, the inventor claims, can be produced cheaper than from the cheapest oil. The inventor finds that electricity can be regulated with entire reliabitity at the central station, just as the pressure of gas is now regulated. The entire cost of constructing the lamp is not more than twenty-five cents."

STEPS for procuring a writ of error in the case of the Arthur Tichborne claimant, were taken by Lord Rivers. and Guild Nord Breslaw, under advice of Dr. Kenealy, who applied for a similar writ in 1874, but it was then refused. It is stated that the case will be taken to the House of Lords for final decision, and that Dr. Kenealy will exercise his right, as a member of the Irish bar, to appear for Orton before that tribunal.

THE present Winter in both hemispheres is one of the severest for many years. From all parts of Europe come reports of terrible cold, while the Eastern States are piling up their snow banks, and Canada is trying to congeal the mercury in the thermometers.

THE proposition to remove the Utes, now in Colorado, to the Uintah Reservation in Utah, is looked upon in some quarters as an attempt to make Mormons of them, because, it is said, all the Uintah Indians are Mormons.

A PETITION has been received in Washington that Delegate Cannon's right to a seat in the House be investigated. He is charged with having six wives. One of the signers is a sister to Schuyler Colfax.

JOHN BRIGHT's fine eulogy of America at the free trade meeting at Rochdale, elicits numerous acrid comments. The Tory journals castigate Mr. Bright and America equally.

"JENNIE, darling," he said, as they sat cosily side by side in the big old-fashioned chair, whose generous arms had often encompassed a similar pair, "my sweet girl"—and the fire blazed and crackled, and snapped its lively glances of light out in the darkening room; "my dearest one"—and the fitful shadows came and went into the apartment, making grotesque figures upon its handsome walls; "light of my life,"—and her pretty head nestled against his manly vest, through whose folds the beating heart was plainly audible; "my beacon light,"—and he pressed in his honest palm her little hand—oh, so little!—and he said: "my little pet,"—and outside the wind blew fierce, while the dashing rain smote hard against the pane, hightening the peaceful influence of the glowing grates; "my own dear girl," and the tremor in his voice was born of purest love; "my guiding star,"—he said—he said—well, blest if we know what else he did say; but that was enough. With a woman's intuition she knew his meaning, and she scooped him in.

THEY do nothing by halves in Eureka. A man recently built a house in that town, and the morning after its completion, when he went to move in, there was nothing left on the site of the house but the stone chimney. During the preceding night some thieves had stolen the house and carried it away. It was expected that they would return the following night for the chimney.

A PENNSYLVANIA dentist has been sued for dislocating a lady's jaw. A Chicago newspaper says the suit is brought by the lady herself, not her husband.

BEN. BUTLER needn't be discouraged. Marcus Martin ran for Governor of Massachusetts fourteen times and was finally elected by one vote.

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISOO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22.

MESSRS. EDITORS: I did intend to pen you a few lines yesterday, but the weather has been so cold that a man could not write anything correctly. My thermometer has indicated about 70 degrees below zero under the stove. If you think it is not cold here you may call me a horse thief. The hail storm we had last night reminded me of Green Bay, Wisconsin.

Mining stocks have gone to the devil entirely, and still the people ain't happy and contented to leave them alone. Californians will gamble, and they might as well go against stocks as the tiger, for one is as square as the other and a great deal squarer. Our new Chief of Police is trying to put a stop to all dice, faro and tan games, and he is succeeding very well. He has arrested forty or fifty of the sports and they were made to pungle very lively. No faro games now running in town.

Our politics are in a bad state, and it will take Satan himself to straighten them out again. The Workingmen will not pull with the Republicans, and we will have some fun bye-and-bye. Mayor Kalloch has had the other bullet extracted, and he feels confident he will come out all right. He had a close call, and I think he will know enough to keep his mouth shut.

That dirty, little, low-lived maggot, Denis Kearney, has left us and gone East, and it would be a good thing for this community if he would keep on going east until he got to China or some other place from where he could never get back here again. He has made a great deal of mischief and it will be a long time before it can be rectified. There is a great deal of dissatisfaction among the Workingmen's party. They thought when they joined that party every one of them would get an office or a good position; but how they all got fooled! Tax Collector Tilson and all the rest who were elected had to go outside of the party to get bonds, and the bondsmen had friends who needed work, and those were the ones who got the situations. Great guns! but didn't the "Chaws" kick when they saw those places filled by Democrats and Republicans not belonging to their organizations! If all the curses which have been pronounced on Kalloch, Smoot and the rest of those city officials elect were to fall on them they would never be heard of at the day of resurrection. It is doubtful if the Workingmen will make out another ticket. They will in all probability go back where they belong. The Democrats are not as harmonious as they might be, and there may be a serious break in their ranks before the next campaign. The Bepublicans being victorious in the last election are now anxious to draw very straight party lines and have Republicans employ none but Republicans. That never was done here before this Fall.

Business of all branches has been good, especially the wholesale trade. They have all done a remarkably good Fall trade. As the holidays are now at hand, the retail business is getting very active. Our streets are literally thronged with people who are out making purchases for presentations. If you were here no one would have to tell you Christmas was coming, for you would find it out soon enough by the sound of those infernal tin horns. It seems as if every child in the city had one and was trying to see how much noise it could make. I just wish Ned Reddy, Pat. Reddy, John Wilson, yourself and all the rest of the good people around Independence could be here to enjoy that sweet delicious music. I met Billy Welch, one of your townsmen, on the street the other night, and he told me all the news from your place. He went over to Napa to get a prisoner who the people of Independence wanted to make out insane. I saw the man and I do not think he appears crazy now. He may have been so when he did the killing, but that is some time ago. I do not envy Billy his job, and I hope he will get back home all safe and sound.

It would do your heart good to go through the markets just now, and see the fine display of game, fruit, fish, flowers, vegetables and such stuff. I think these are the finest markets in the world. What can't be had here is not worth having, and the beauty of the thing is you can get it so cheap and so abundant and such a variety. If you don't believe me you may ask Billy Welch. He was telling me that he found a very nice family over on Howard street, and they all cleaned their teeth with snuff. They were all very anxious to have him remain here till Christmas and take a Christmas dinner with them.

Pedestrianism has broken out again, and the chances are we will have it bad. Another six days' go-as-you-please concern takes place at the Mechanics' Pavilion, commencing next Monday.

The theaters are all doing a very good business, but nothing extra.

Horse racing, dog fighting, prize fighting and cock fighting are all things of the past. We are getting (like Chicago) too moral for such amusements.

W. G. L.

KATE, wife of Martin Corcoran, and only surviving daughter of the late Michael Reddy, died at her late residence, 87 Front street, Wednesday forenoon, aged 41 years. She was the last of five sisters, and leaves but two surviving brothers out of a family of nine children, all but one having died of the same disease. Her surviving brothers are Edward and P. Reddy. both living in California, the latter named being a prominent lawyer who has held many offices of trust and honor in his adopted State.—Woonsocket (R. D.) Patriot, Dec. 12.

THE employés of the Custom House at Cincinnati got so enthusiastic over the Grant procession that they rushed to the street to view it and left the institution to take care of itself. Some thieves took advantage of the situation and entered the building and stole between $800 and $1,000, the property of one of the employés.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 15.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Congress, at the present session, seems to be emulating the example of the old Indian chief Powhatan and his council, as represented in the burlesque opera of "Columbus." They meet to adjourn. They have adjourned almost every day after 45 minutes' labor, and have crowned the pyramid of adjournments with a resolution to adjourn from the 19th instant until January 6. An old salt remarked that at sea a dead calm was the precursor of a big storm. If the nautical sign is applicable to an American Congress, we may look for a big political earthquake or a first-class simoon when the flags are run up over the Capitol after the statesmen have returned from eating the rural rooster and the aristocratic turkey of the holiday. In looking over the House Committees we were struck with the strange mutations of time. Fifteen years ago Gen. Joe Johnson, one of the most skillful of the Confederate Generals, commanded a Confederate army, and was striving with all his power to destroy or disorganize the army of the United States. To-day he is a member of the Military Committee of the House of Representatives, and chairman of the sub-committee on the reorganization of the army of the United States. If the wheel of fortune continues to turn as it has been turning for a few years past, we would not be surprised to see his portrait yet hung up in the War Department by the side of Stanton, and Rawlings, and Sherman and Grant.

Apropos of the War Department, in tearing down the old War Department building this Fall, it was discovered that the FOUNDATION WAS NOT OF STONE.

The bricks were laid on the ground in a bed of mortar, and the place of a corner-stone was taken by a mortar-imbedded brick. This curious piece of masonary in a somewhat dilapidated condition, has been fixed in a glass case, and is kept in the office of the Chief Clerk of the Department.

Writing of the mutations of time reminds us that one of Washington's old farms, a part of the Mt. Vernon estate, is advertised to be sold at auction in that sleepy old town of Alexandria, on the 18th instant. Washington had five farms, all lying adjacent to each other on the Potomac. The "Union Farm," containing 928 acres; "Pogue Run Farm," containing 649 acres; "Muddy-hole Farm," containing 476 acres; "River Farm," containing 1,207 acres, and the small "Mansion House Farm," where his beautiful home and silent tomb look down from a lovely slope on the broad river below it. What portion of this large estate again changes title, the lucid description of the auction does not indicate.

Among the many superb statues which adorn the public parks and squares of the National Capital, there have none yet been reared to any of the great and accomplished jurists of America, whose names and learning stand out in our legal literature and on the pages of history as great as those of Erskin, Eldon or Coke. It is gratifying, therefore, to see that a bill has just been introduced in the Senate appropriating $20,000 for the erection of a statue of ex-Chief Justice Marshall, of the United States Supreme Court, in Judiciary Square, Washington City. Whether it will pass, depends on the Congressional appreciation of America's most eminent jurist and greatest Chief Justice.

We have two classes of migratory birds in Washington just now. The tramps from the North, who are moving southward, and the black-bird exodus from North Carolina, on their way to

THE HAPPY LAND OF CANAAN,

Known as Indiana. The first are in tribulation at finding the doors of the station-house closed to them after the second night's lodging, and the workhouse open to them as vagrants. They are therefore gathering pennies through the day. Six or eight will meet among the board piles at night, dump their pennies into a common bank—"pool their issues"—get a quart of whisky as a partnership blanket, and make night hideous with their orgies. The black emigrants come here by rail, not alone, but with their ebony families, not in small gangs, but by the car-load. Out of money and out of transportation, they are given a place of refuge, in a colored church—men, women, children and dogs—until money is raised by contributions throughout the city to send them to their land of promise in the ague districts of Indiana, where they can shiver and rejoice as they look back with scorn on the deserted tar-heels and clay-eaters in the turpentine forests of the Carolinas.

The Joint Committee of the Library has under consideration a proposition to purchase the sword worn by Gen. Washington when he resigned his commission at Annapolis. The sword is offered for sale to the Government by Mr. H. H. Lewis, of Maryland, who has come into possession of it, by inheritance, through Major Lewis, a nephew of Gen. Washington. The action of the committee will doubtless inspire our zealous antiquarians to resurrect a car-load of old hatchets with which Georgie cut the cherry tree.

The English astronomer, Richard A. Proctor, whose predictions of a magnificent meteoric shower kept thousands of people with their heads out of the window till 2 o'clock in the morning, and sent them to bed with a cold in the head, disappointed and sold, is lecturing in this city on

"OTHER WORLDS AND OTHER SUNS."

Many who remember his brilliant display of meteors keep away from this shower of worlds and suns.

A subscription list is being circulated in the House of Representatives in aid of the indigent districts of Ireland. About seventy-five members have contributed, and it is expected that the list will be adorned with the names of all the members of the House, and many dollars of our dads, before it is sent to the Emerald Isle. In emulation of the example of our national Representatives, the Irish citizens of Washington are organizing with a view to secure contributions from the citizens of Washington for the suffering poor of their native land, and in view of the proverbial generosity of that race, we think they will make as good a showing of contributions as any other city. The Irish stand here, in numbers, next below the colored people; but when any public demonstration, involving their nationality, is called for from them, they exhibit on our streets an astonishing mass of drilled, able-bodied men, out of all proportion to the displays of the other race.

X. Y. Z.

A COMMON MISTAKE.—It is a mistake to suppose that little can be accomplished if a man has reached the age of thirty years. Nine-tenths of our clever men have actually exhibited more vigor of intellect at fifty than forty. Franklin was forty when he began, in real earnest, the study of natural philosophy. The principal of one of the most flourishing colleges in America was a farm servant until past the age when most students have completed their collegiate education. Sir Henry Spelman did not begin the study of science until he was between fifty and sixty years of age. Greek was the first foreign language which Cato, the celebrated Roman censor, acquired, and he did so in his old age. Alfieri, whose writings have caused a revolution in the dramatic literature of Italy, was left without a father in his infancy, and he wasted his early years. John Ogilby, the author of poetical translations from Virgil and Homer, began the study of Latin when about forty years of age, and Greek in his forty-fourth. Boccacio, one of the most illustrious writers that ever appeared in Italy, suffered nearly half his life to pass without improvement. Handel was forty-eight before he published any of his great works. Dr. Arnold, of Rugby, learned German at forty, in order to read Niebuhr in the original.

THE NEW PLACER DIGGINGS.—Tom Brown has an abiding faith in the placer gold mines on the South Fork of the San Joaquin river. These diggings have been known to exist for several years, and Brown himself has been prospecting in that region for the past four or five Summers. This past Summer he got higher up on the South Fork and its tributaries than he ever was before, and higher than the streams had heretofore been prospected. He claims that in that region are acres of gravel and blue clay ranging from a few feet to fifteen in depth which prospect as favorably as did the placers of the American and Yuba rivers in early days, and that when water is introduced and the proper means for legitimate placer mining secured, wages ranging from four to ten dollars a day can readily be made. Mr. Brown has made locations, and will return there next Spring prepared to open up his mining ground in a proper and workmanlike manner.—Bentonian.

HE said her hair was dyed, and when she indignantly exclaimed "'Tis false!" he said he presumed so.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 27.....1879

THE EXHIBITION.—The exhibition by Mrs. May's school come off according to programme on Christmas Eve, and was quite an entertaining and well conducted affair from beginning to close. With bare two or three exceptions, the children, each and all, rendered their respective parts very creditably indeed. The exceptions were those smaller ones who spoiled their efforts by smiling or grinning throughout the delivery of pieces, the sense of which did not require such evidence of their merits by the speakers themselves — but these were but little children, not actors, and it is mean to criticise. Several of the boys, particularly the larger ones, executed their parts well, but the degrees of excellence, one with another, were hardly sufficiently marked to warrant individual specifications. Of the girls, we will venture to name a few whose execution was heartily commended by all present—in fact, the declamation of at least two of them, would, in dramatic effect, have done credit to any stage. These four we shall name: little Alice Rose, for a first effort, and Misses Carrie Willis, Maggie Conklin and Maggie Graham.

WEATHER, MAILS, ETC.—Among the sequences of last week's snow storm and subsequent cold snap, are the following: The snow lies about two feet deep at Benton, and so much deeper between that place and Aurora as to stop all travel with animals, so that the mail has to be carried over that division on hand sleds; but one through mail from the north has so far reached us this week. Between Round Valley and Lake the snow lies full five feet deep, and in consequence of that same, a certain newly married couple who left here a few days ago for their home in Mammoth, are yet sojourning among the Gospel Swampers—and no one can get in to disturb or make the Mammoths afraid. At the Kearsarge mill near this place the snow is about four feet deep. None has fallen in the valley proper anywhere. For a day or so, Owens river was nearly jammed with anchor ice. The weather is now comparatively warm, and promises another big fall of snow and rain.

MARRIED.—That was truly a most enjoyable social event at the Masonic Hall and the Court House, on Saturday evening last, upon the celebration of the marriage of Geo. M. Gill, Esq., and Miss Annie Eudey, third daughter of Supt. and Mrs. Eudey, of the Brown Monster mine. The young couple have long been residents of Inyo, and number well nigh everybody in the county among their host of warm friends and well wishers for smooth sailing on the matrimonial sea. On the Monday following they left for Mammoth City, where George has attained quite a successful practice in his chosen profession, the law.

COLD.—It occurs to us that last Tuesday night was about the coldest we remember to have ever experienced in this region. During the day and most of the night the wind blew a strong gale fresh and penetrating right from the Arctic regions, via Aurora and Bodie. It was this wind that gave zest to the occasion, and made people think the mercury had got down lower than it ever did before, but in which all were more or less deceived, inasmuch as it stood for the lowest at 10° above zero this time, whereas, it has on more than one occasion in years past marked full three degrees lower than that.

A NEW HALL.—Articles of incorporation have been filed in the office of the Secretary of State, at Sacramento, of the Masonic Building Association of Bishop Creek. Its capital stock is divided into 1,400 shares, of the par value of $5 each and aggregating $7,000. The Trustees are J. H. Stoutenborough, Wm. O. Harrell, John Clark, M. H. White and John S. Magee, and the association to continue 49 years. We hear that over $5,000 of the stock has already been subscribed.

CHURCH BELL.—The Baptist Church at Bishop Creek has lately been provided with a fine-toned, 32-inch Blymer bell, weighing 535 pounds. On the quiet Sabbath morning its echoes are heard in the valley for five miles around, and if the average Gospel Swamper doesn't appreciate the presence of such a clear-tongued monitor, it would be well enough to anchor him —the G. S.—in the river.

DID COME.—The stage from the north, which got in at 9 this morning, brought a through mail, including the Mammoth City papers, the first and only copy of the Times of that place we have seen since it came under its present management, of which more hereafter when the press hour is not pressing the composing rule as it is at this moment.

CHRISTMAS TREE.—A fine and well loaded Christmas tree was exposed to view and stripped of its pleasure-giving burden immediately after the close of the school exhibition at the Court-house on Christmas Eve. H. T. Walker got a number of fine prizes.

THE MEETING TO-NIGHT. — Inyo Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., meets to-night to install the newly-chosen officers. This installation is to be public. Members are requested to be on hand promptly at not later than half-past 6 o'clock.

NOTARIES.—Gov. Irwin has commissioned John R. Hughes as Notary Public, to reside at Cerro Gordo, vice himself, term expired. Mr. H. R. Gregory has also received a like commission, to reside at Resting Springs.

DELINQUENT.—One week from Monday next, the 5th of January next, taxes become delinquent and five per cent. added to the amounts unpaid.

"WILD BILL, THE SCOUT."

INDEPENDENCE, December 26.

MERSSS. EDITORS: Seeing a notice of Capt. J. W. Crawford's book of poems, and knowing him to have been a "pard" of my old friend "Wild Bill," (William Hickox) I sent and obtained a copy. It is a beautiful bound book—an ornament to any center table.

Through the poems of "Captain Jack, the Poet Scout," three things stand out constantly in bold relief, which render them irrestible in their impressions, and should be in every household for their influence alone, namely: his love and adoration for his mother, his adherence to temperance, and his belief in and reverence for God.

His tributes to "Wild Bill" are gems, and aptly portray his noble character, and of whom it can truly be said a braver and better man never lived.

The price of this book is $2. Address, J. W. Crawford (Captain Jack), 235 Kearny street, San Francisco.

Upon the fly-leaf of my copy, Capt. Jack inscribed, in his own hand writing, the following poem:

LINES TO ALVA R. CONKLIN, "WILD BILL'S" FRIEND.

And you were a friend of Bill Hickox?
Then shake! You are Jack's friend as well.
How I loved the brave fellow while living,
Is more than my poor words can tell!
Why, man, if the pine trees above him
Could weep, I am sure they would cry,
And say in soft whispers, "We love him,"
As the brooklet that murmurs close by.
Poor Bill! what a heart there was in him!
He always took sides with the weak;
Scarce a night but I see him in dreamland,
And wake with a tear on my cheek.
He was rough in his ways, but dead honest.
When drove to the wall he would kill,
For his veins run with true blood, you bet you—
There was no milk and water in Bill!

Yours, sincerely,
J. W. CRAWFORD
(Capt. Jack.).

December 18, 1879.

A. R. CONKLIN.

PRACTICAL.—A little four-year old Miss, and an intimate friend of this establishment, is of a very practical turn of mind, else has missed considerable Sunday school training. A short time ago she made her debut as a Sunday school scholar, and here is the literal result of her first examination in the infant catechism: "Who made you?" "God." "What did he make you for?" "Jist cos he wanted to, I 'spect." "Well, who gives you your home?" "Nobody didn't g'im it to me; my folks bought the lumber and built it." "Tell me, does not God give you all the victuals you eat and the clothes you wear?" "Why, no!" was the astonished reply; "we buy 'em at Harris & Rhine's!"

NEW DIGGINGS.—N. B. Mikesell writes us from Panamint that himself and others have just made a promising discovery at a point about 20 miles north of Panamint in the same range. They have organized a district there called Breyfogle. It is well supplied with wood, water and grass. From one large lode called by the same name as the district, a number of assays were made by Smith at Panamint; the "buttons" from three of these assays are now in our possession, and finer or larger ones are rarely seen. These assays foot up respectively as follows: $3,879 48, $556 69, and $536 66. We think there is something in this new discovery, and shall be pleased to have fuller reports concerning it.

NO ARRESTS YET.—Up to date of our latest advices, no arrests have yet been made for the late stage robbery near Indian Wells, nor has any of the stolen values been found, though the officers have not nor will not give up the pursuit till somebody is corralled. Wells-Fargo made good the stolen money immediately after the news of the robbery reached the head office.

SICK.—Manley Conkrite, a popular and well known employé of the Freighting Company, has been lying almost at the point of death at the Post Hospital for a number of days past, and is yet by no means out of danger, though under Dr. George's unremitting and truly skillful care, he will probably pull through. His affection is of the pneumonia type, or quinsy.

TO ORGANIZE.—The petitioners for a charter for a Lodge of Good Templars for this place, are requested to meet on Monday night, January 5, 1880 (a week from next Monday night), for the purpose of effecting a permanent organization of the lodge. The place of meeting will be announced next issue. The petition now bears something over twenty responsible names.

AND DON'T YOU FORGET IT.—Plans have been perfected, and the work of preparation begun, for the ball and supper of the season, to take place New Year's Eve (Wednesday night next, to be exact), the one in the Court-house, the other at the Blaney; but see what the ad. has to say about it, and then prepare to come right along, everybody.

WILL BE SOLD.—Coroner Lank will soon offer for sale, at public auction, fourteen head of team horses and mules with harness, and five wagons, part of the estate of the late Patrick Mullen. Terms, time and place will, some time this coming week, be duly announced by posters.

QUERY.—Where has all the money gone? [Newspapers are requested not to answer that one.] But, will somebody please pay this office a bill, or something on account, in order that we may realize what the "circulating (?) medium" really is?

A SALE.—P. Reddy, Esq., has made a sale to San Francisco parties of the May Lundy mine, in Homer District, Mono County. The mine was located by Jimmy McDonald, now of this place, and the consideration of sale was $10,000.

RETURNED.—On the evening of the 24th instant Deputy Sheriff Wm. F. Welch arrived home from Napa, having in charge Michael Welch, the slayer of Sheriff Moore. Hence, it will be about the first business of the incoming Superior Court to try the prisoner upon the original charge of murder.

INVITED.—From the appearance of the hights all around, it is only the fair thing for us to invite mountain folks to come down into the valley out of the snow, and—take a rest.

GOOD ORE.—The assay value of the ten tons of second grade ore shipped to Darwin by Mr. Woodhull for Messrs. Boley & Tuttle, of the Indiana mine, was $288 67 per ton.

IT turns out that the war in West Africa, in which the dead, wounded, and prisoners are eaten by the contending armies, is carried on under the eye of the English, who have vessels and troops within easy reach. The British naval commander will not interfere so long as the cannibals only eat each other.

THE following is a sample mining item taken from an Eastern paper: "The Pewterinctum mine made its monthly clean-up last week, the result being $1,100 44. This ought to send the stock to at least 35 cents a share, as it sold for 30 cents before the clean-up."

A STRIKE has occurred among the Chinese laborers on the Southern Pacific Coast Railroad in the south end of tunnel No. 3. Some 60 or 70 Celestials are employed there, who receive about $22 per month, and now they demand $1 50 per day.

SCENE IN A PARIS RESTAURANT.—Customer: "Waiter, I can't get on with this lobster; it's as hard as flint." Waiter: "Beg pardon, sir; a slight mistake. That's the papier-mache lobster out of the show case; shall I change it?"

GEO. M. PINNEY has sworn out a warrant for the arrest of C. F. McGlashan, editor of the Truckee Republican, on a charge of libel, in having published an article charging Pinney with defrauding the Government while in its employ.

"A THING of beauty is a jawer forever," said a —— avenue husband as he rolled over on the other side after a protracted curtain lecture from his pretty wife.

TRYING to do business without advertising is like winking at a girl in the dark. You may know what you are doing, but no one else does.

IT is believed that Jacob was the first Indian agent, for the Bible represents him as saying, "Lo, I have served thee many years."

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 27.....1879

BROTHER GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN, the model G. W. Secretary of the model Grand Lodge, of California, has just kindly furnished us with his report to the recent session of that body. For fullness, clearness and perspecuity it was just what was to have been expected from that source. But the most gratifying thing about it is the admirable showing which it makes of the past work and present condition of the Order in the Golden State. Years ago we imagined that the Grand Lodge of California had struck twelve, but it was only imagination. Each added year brings multiplied evidences of real vigor and substance, of increased strength and more widespread usefulness. The present number of lodges is 230, and the membership 11,189, a net increase of 13 lodges and 1,140 members during the last year, although during the year 16 lodges and 608 members were cut off and organized into the Grand Lodge of Nevada. Twenty-six lodges own their halls, the aggregate value of which is estimated at $21,372. The report shows that there is an average of $32 50 in the treasury of each subordinate lodge in the State. The one remarkable fact about California which staggers everybody outside of that jurisdiction is the large amout of money received and disbursed by the Grand Lodge. The total receipts from all sources last year was $23,551 61. Some of our members think they were heavily taxed to carry on the work of the Grand Lodge, and yet California, with half our membership, received almost three times as much money as we did last year. There was paid to the Good Templars' Home for Orphans, $10,277 60; to Grand Lodge Lectures, $4,255 16; towards the support of the official organ, $1,200, etc. Surely this exhibit speaks volumes in praise of the Good Templars of California, as well as the efficiency of their Grand Lodge administration.—Good Templars Gem, N. Y.

THE corps of skaters, a force peculiar to the Norwegian Army, has been lately reorganinzed, and consists now of five companies, each of 110 men, which in time of war can be reinforced by calling in 270 skaters belonging to the landwehr. The men of this corps are armed with rifles, and can be manœuvred upon ice or over the snow-fields of the mountains with a rapidity equal to that of the best trained cavalry. The skates they use are admirably adapted for traveling over the rough and broken ice and frozen snow, being six inches broad and between nine and ten inches long. In ascending steep slopes the men take a zig zag course, tacking up the mountain side as a ship does against a head wind. As an instance of the speed at which they can go, it is mentioned that last Winter a messenger dispatched from Roeraas at 3 o'clock in the morning arrived at Drontheim at 9:30 in the evening of the same day, having, consequently, accomplished 120 miles in 18½ hours. It must be added, however, that Roeraas lies some 2,000 feet higher than Drontheim, so that the course of the skater was down hill all the way. On the return journey the same man took 54 hours to reach Roeraas from Drontheim, but the route he took led him over very rough and broken snow-fields, which rendered great caution and slow skating necessary.—Galignani's Messenger.

INFORMATION has been received at Washington that Delegate Cannon, of Utah, has taken a fifth wife within so recent a period that his plea of the statute of limitations will not avail him. Cannon goes to Washington as Delegate from Utah, and purrs and talks smooth, and says the Mormons, though believing polygamy to be a divine revalation, will not violate the laws of the land by practicing it. When the session is over he goes back to Utah, examines the latest cargo of tow-headed girls from Denmark, picks out a new wife from the lot, goes to the Endowment House and gets sealed to her, and the next Sunday mounts the pulpit in the Tabernacle and tells the faithful that polygamy is a God-giving institution and the Mormons must continue its practice even at the sacrifice of the last drop of their blood. That's the kind of a son of a gun this Cannon is.—Stock Report.

ANNIE DENVER, a young American woman, twenty-one years old, was married on the 15th instant in this city to a Chinaman, in the most approved New York style. Unlike New York and Boston girls who marry Chinamen, she did not choose a common washhouse heathen, but a high-toned and wealthy Celestial in the mercantile line. There is no accounting for tastes, and this is a free country, and if a girl wants to degrade herself by marrying a filthy Chinaman there is no law preventing her doing so.—S. F. Stock Report.

REV. A. G. VEAL, a well known Texan minister, has been expelled from the Masonic Brotherhood for attempting to seduce the wife of a brother Mason. Veal, to be good should be well done, and this veal is most effectually cooked. The dispatch announcing his expulsion from Freemasonry does not also state that he has been expelled from his church—but perhaps the church considers his offense only Vealnal.—S. F. Stock Report.

THE steps taken by Congress to reserve the California Big Tree Grove as a public park is hailed with delight by the people of this State. There are other tracts, now being raided upon by lumbermen, which should be placed under the direct charge of the State authorities.

ARTICLES of incorporation were filed on the 16th instant in Reno for the Western Nevada Railroad (narrow gauge) from Wadsworth to Walker Lake, 55 miles in length. Capital stock, $500,000. Directors: J. T. Davis, S. M. Holmes and Jos. Mechan, of San Jose, and A. J. Rhodes, of Belleville.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of the Estate of John T. Denton, Deceased. } Order to show cause why Order of Sale of Real Estate should not be made.

It appearing to the Probate Judge of said Court, by the petition this day presented and filed by C. A. Walters, the executor of the last will and testament of John T. Denton, deceased, praying for an order of sale of real estate, that it is necessary to sell the whole of the real estate as required by the terms of the last will and testament of said deceased.

It is therefore ordered by the Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of the said deceased, appear before the said Probate Court on WEDNESDAY, the SEVENTH day of JANUARY, A. D. 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court room of said Probate Court at the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Executor to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased, as shall be necessary.

And that a copy of this order be published at least four successive weeks in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said county.

JOHN A. HANNAH, Probate Judge.

Dated December 6, 1879.

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY CLERK, of the County of Inyo.

I, John Crough, County Clerk of the County of Inyo, State of California, and ex-Officio Clerk of the Probate Court in and for said county, do hereby certify the foregoing to be a true, full and correct copy of an order duly made and entered upon the minutes of said Probate Court.

WITNESS my hand and the seal of said Probate [SEAL] Court, this 11th day of December, A. D. 1879.

JOHN CROUGH, Clerk.
